THE STUDENT BODY

DUKE UNIVERSITY

DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

DEDICATION

THE aims of Duke University are to assert a faith in the eternal union of knowledge and religion set forth in the teachings and character of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. To advance learning in all lines of truth; to defend scholarship against all false notions and ideals; to develop a Christian love of freedom and truth, to promote a sincere spirit of tolerance; to discourage all partisan and sectarian strife; and to render the largest permanent service to the Individual, the State, the Nation, and the Church. Unto these ends shall the affairs of this University always be administered.

THE year was 1953. You felt a quiet uneasiness pervading the atmosphere of Duke—a reflection of the global threat of communism that you read about in the United Nations' meetings, the cold war in Germany, and the bloody tale that is Korea. Somehow it didn't seem real. You liked to forget that there were events more important than beating Carolina in football 34-0. You liked to forget the implications of your first enthusiasm for the national election in November; for it was rapidly replaced by fraternity and sorority rushing, Thanksgiving with the Coed Ball, and parties at Christmas. To the outsider looking in and oftentimes to you yourself, college life was a happy-go-lucky interlude before the real business of life began. But was it really that?

Gradually you came to know that there was more to your four years here than these superficialities. This revelation made you realize that your education was not mere pedantry or frivolity. It had a real significance for later life. The words on the plaque in the main quadrangle began to have meaning for you. This aim of Duke University is no accident of a blending of empty words; it is a result of the experience of men and women who met life with courage and conviction. Their faith in the eternal union of knowledge and religion as the true aim of an institution of learning presents not a panacea for the world's ills, but rather the state of the inquiring mind which seeks truth and reality. Because of our firm belief in the value of our education in this modern world and of the sure foundation as set forth by the University's founders, we dedicate the CHANTICLEER of Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-three to the aims of Duke University.

Administration and Faculty

INSTRUMENTAL in the rise of Duke from a small, struggling college to the foremost university of the South in little over a quarter of a century have been its administrators and professors. These men through their vision, patience, and intellect have guided the University in a program that is never stationary but always changing. Mistakes were made, but each time they emerged wiser and better counselors, directors, and teachers.

The administration has adopted the policy of a better not a bigger university. Their emphasis on quality and not quantity is evidenced by the recent development program that has stressed better facilities for students in housing, recreation, and education. Research, which is an essential ingredient to the progress of any educational institution, is advancing in the important realms of physics and medicine. Above all, the President and his assistants strive to maintain communication with the students. They become his disciplinarian, his counselor, his friend. In the final analysis, however, it is the student who determines how much he should be governed. As a consequence, students have been given only that share in their government for which they are willing to assume responsibility.

Because Duke is a liberal arts college, the faculty's purpose is not to teach the students special skills, but to teach them how to think. In teaching students to make logical decisions from the evidence present, the faculty hopes to show them the academic relationship to real life. It is not, however, the courses or the facts taught by professors that students will remember in later years. Rather it is the impact of the personalities —how the professors think and what their ideas mean in terms of life. Their influence as men is their distinct contribution to the university without which its climate is sterile and barren. The realization of the students' true relation to the administration and to the faculty is the first step in the process of education.

"My chief ambition for this college is to keep among the teachers . . . really great men, who have a gift for teaching and genuine interest in young men."

—William Preston Few

A. Hollis Edens, President of the University, pauses briefly before attending to his many administrative duties.

Men Who Turn

Paul M. Gross, Vice-President in the Division of Education, was formerly President of the Oak Ridge Institute;

Charles E. Jordan is the Secretary of the University and the Vice-President in the Public Relations Division.

AT the head of any educational university such as Duke, it is inevitable that the task of administration should be entrusted to only a few men, each one being capable of understanding personally the problems confronting each new and old student during his years on the Duke campus. Duke University is well able to pride itself in its administrative group. Each man seems interested in activity at Duke and through previous experience and training is able to handle each new situation with the best interest of the student in mind.

Dr. Arthur Hollis Edens was inaugurated as President of Duke University in October, 1947. He received his B.Ph. and M.A. degrees from Emory University; M.P.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard University; and LL.D. from Davidson, U.N.C., Emory, and Wake Forest. Since his coming to the Duke campus, Dr. Edens has won the admiration of all for his great dignity and the warmth with which he handles his every contact with the student body.

Paul M. Gross, dean of the University and Vice-President in the Division of Education, studied at the City College of New York, Columbia University, and the University of Leipzig. He was present at the General UNESCO Conference in 1949 and was also elected president of the Oak Ridge Institute in Nuclear Studies.

W. H. Wannamaker, University Vice-Chancellor.

the Master Wheel

The Vice-President of the University in the Division of Public Relations, Charles E. Jordan, is a graduate of Trinity College. He attended Duke Law School, and he received his LL.D. from Elon College. Mr. Jordan is membership director for the N. C. Symphony and also is Chairman of the Duke Athletic Council

Herbert J. Herring, the Dean of Trinity College and Vice-President in the Division of Student Life, obtained his degrees from Duke and Columbia universities. Juanita College also conferred an honorary LL.D. degree upon him.

In addition to his administrative duties on campus he has been President of the Academic Deans of Southern States.

The Treasurer of the University is Charles B. Markham, who also received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Trinity College where he was accepted into Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa.

William H. Wannamaker is Vice-Chancellor of the University. In the past he served Duke very ably in the position of Vice-President and as its representative to the Southern Conference.

Alfred Smith Brower serves in the capacity of Business Manager and Comptroller in the Business Administration Division of the University and supervises the finances.

A. S. Brower, Business Manager and Comptroller.

Herbert J. Herring is Vice-President of the University Student Life Division and Dean of Trinity College.

Charles B. Markham, Treasurer of the University, finds it is a full-time job directing the finances of Duke.

Alan K. Manchester, Dean of Undergraduate Studies and Professor of History.

Spokes That Stand Stress and Strain

Men Discover Counsel of Deans Helpful, Valuable

ONE of the reasons for Trinity College being an efficiently run and a vital part of Duke University is the number of outstanding men who are the deans of the college and who do all in their power to aid and counsel the individual student.

Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Alan K. Manchester attended Southwestern University, received his A.B. from Vanderbilt University, obtained his M.A. from Columbia University, and later received his Ph.D. at Duke. During 1951-52, he served as Cultural Affairs Officer at the U. S. Embassy in Rio de Janeiro.

Robert B. Cox, Dean of Men, did graduate work at the University of North Carolina and at Duke University after receiving his A.B. from the University of Tennessee and his M.A. from Peabody College. Dean Cox is also Secretary of Omicron Delta Kappa.

Associate Dean of Trinity College, William Councill Archie, came to Duke in 1946 and served as Assistant Dean in Charge of Freshmen until this year. Before coming to Duke, Dean Archie spent four years as an interpreter in the United States Army. Dr. Archie received his B.A. from Davidson College, his M.A. from Wake Forest College and Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Everett Broadus Weatherspoon, Director of Admissions, came to Duke in 1931 and has served in his present capacity since 1949. He attended Duke and received his B.A. from here in 1930 and is also an Army veteran of World War II. He is the Duke representative on the College Entrance Examination Board.

William C. Archie, the Associate Dean of Trinity College

L. W. Pratt, Assistant Dean of Trinity College.

L. J. McNurlen, Assistant Dean of Freshmen.

Lanier Ward Pratt, Assistant Dean of Trinity College, received his A.B. from Davidson and his M.A. from Duke. He has taught in Georgia and Mississippi schools and served in the Navy before coming to Duke.

In the capacity of Assistant Dean of Freshmen is Lewis J. McNurlen. Dean McNurlen obtained his B.A. and M.A. from Drake University and his Ph.D. from Duke University.

E. B. Weatherspoon, Director of Admissions.

Robert B. Cox, Dean of the Undergraduate Men.

East's Women Guided by Deans Who Earn Respect

MISS Roberta Florence Brinkley, Dean of the Women's College, during her six years at Duke, has brought many new ideas. Dean Brinkley, who is also author of several books on English poetry, came to Duke after completing a year of research in England. Miss Mary Grace Wilson was officially given the title of Dean of Undergraduate Women this year. Miss Wilson is a graduate of Winthrop College and did graduate work at Columbia. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi. Dean of Undergraduate Instruction, Miss Ellen Huckabee, is active in the American Association of University Women. She received her A.B. and M.A. from Duke University and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Miss Marianna Jenkins, appointed Associate Dean of Undergraduate Instruction two years ago, obtained her M.A. and her Ph.D. at Bryn Mawr. She is a member of the College Art Association of America and teaches several art courses.

Mary Grace Wilson, Dean of Residence, Woman's College.

Director of Admissions, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Persons, received her A.B. and M.A. from Duke University, after which she studied at the University of Pennsylvania.

In addition to being the Dean of the Woman's College, Roberta Florence Brinkley is also a professor in the English Department.

Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Persons and Miss Huckabee use wisdom and kindness to guide East Campus coeds.

Aspiring young engineers wend their way to eight o'clock classes in the comparatively new College of Engineering building

Experts With Blueprints And Slide Rules, They Direct Engineers To Be

William Hall, Dean of Engineering College, took engineering degrees at Duke, Michigan, Wisconsin.

CENTERING around the Engineering Building which was completed in 1948, the College of Engineering is headed by Dean William Holland Hall. Dean Hall has been associated with this division on the Duke campus for thirty-six years, since receiving his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Trinity College.

Chairman of Civil Engineering, Harold C. Bird, has had experience in directing water power development and factory construction. Walter J. Seeley, Chairman of Electrical Engineering, is an expert on submarine detecting devices. R. S. Wilbur, Chairman of Mechanical Engineering, has had much experience with shipbuilding and manufacturing companies.

Charles Dukes, Director of the Alumni Department, and Anne Garrard, Assistant Director, discuss Homecoming plans.

The Tie That Binds Duke Alumni

THE purpose of the Duke Alumni Association is to serve the faculty, students, and university community, and to maintain a channel through which Duke can make known its needs, aims, and hopes to its former students.

The important activities of the Alumni Association include handling the annual Loyalty Fund Drive and compiling a complete personal record of every student who attends Duke from the time he enrolls until he dies.

The Alumni Register and Alumni News are mailed to all of the located alumni. Alumni week-end in the spring, various class reunions, the University Information Desk, and the University House are only a few of the many activities of the Alumni Department.

Alumni flood the campus on Homecoming Weekend, anxious to look up old friends and classmates, and to take part once again in those activities which filled their lives here at Duke.

Mainsprings of the University

TO manage the financial affairs of a university as large as Duke requires the time and services of a group of men who are both qualified and eager to do their job well. Such a group is the Board of Trustees.

The Trustees consist of thirty-six members, many of whom are prominent North Carolinians. Each is elected for a term of six years as provided for under the University charter.

They have complete discretion in controlling the funds left to the University by James B. Duke. In addition to this, the Board makes any rules, regulations, and bylaws which they deem necessary for the good government of the University. All degrees and marks of honor are conferred by the Trustees in conjunction with the faculty members.

All Look to Trustees to Form Fundamental Policy

An integral part of the Board of Trustees is the seven-member Executive Committee which controls the internal regulations of the University and fixes all salaries and emoluments. The President of the University serves as an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees. This body has all the powers of the Board in the interim between Board meetings, and it appoints and designates the powers of the investment committee.

E. G. Mueller, Aesthetics, Art, and Music

C. B. Hoover, Economics

AT the head of each of the academic departments of Duke may be found a person who is always searching for new fields of endeavor. Earl G. Mueller, Chairman of Aesthetics, Art, and Music, won a Belgian-American Scholarship for study abroad. Col. Robert J. Knight, Chairman of Air Science, newly appointed this year, was awarded the Legion of Merit during the past war. Dr. Hugo L. Blomquist, Chairman of Botany, was recently elected Chairman of the Southeastern Section of the Botanical Society of America. Dr. Marcus E. Hobbs, Chairman of Chemistry, has been conducting research on explosives for the government. Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, Chairman of Economics, was co-author of the book Economic Resources and Policies of the South. Dr. William H. Cartwright, Chairman of Education, was among eight historians to present papers at the First Congress of Historians of Mexico and the United States. Dr. William H. Irving, Chairman of English, recently returned from England where he completed research for his forthcoming book. Dr. Edward W. Berry, Chairman of Geology, represented Duke and the American Association of Petroleum at the International Geological Congress in Algiers.

Dr. Clement Vollmer, Chairman of German, recently worked on a revision of the constitution of Delta Phi Alpha, national German honorary. Dr. James N. Truesdale, Chairman of Greek, served as Lt. Commander in the Air Combat Intelligence during the last war. Julia R. Grout, Chairman of Health and Physical Education, Woman's College, is a past officer of the National Association for Physical Education of College Women. Thomas M. Aycock, Chairman of Physical Education for Trinity and Engineering Colleges, joined the Duke staff in 1937. Dr. Charles S. Sydnor, Chairman of History, was elected chairman of the Institute of Early American History and Culture in 1952. Dr. Robert S. Rogers, Chairman of Latin, has studied at the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, and the American Academy in Rome. Dr. John J. Gergen, Chairman of Mathematics, served as a Research Fellow at Princeton, Oxford, University of Paris and other universities. Capt. John M. Ocker, Chairman of Naval Science, recently served as a member of a scholarship board at a West Virginia recruiting station. Dr. Glenn R. Negley, Chairman of Philosophy, was co-author in 1952 of a book entitled The Quest for Utopia.

WORK BEHIND THE SCENES

Teaching Includes More Than Lectures, Exams

Between classes, professors often get together informally to exchange ideas and to discuss their courses.

AS students become accustomed to their professors as merely part of the daily routine and as necessary evils, they find it hard to visualize them in any other capacity than that of quiz-grader. In the student's mind the deans seem permanently seated behind cluttered desks. This conception is, unfortunately, as wide-spread as it is mistaken.

The professor, in reality, has two jobs—that of teaching and also that of fact-finding. Research work is as important to him as are his classes, for through research he is able to keep abreast of developments in his particular field. Panels and student-faculty coffees provide a means of informal discussion between students and faculty. These frequent discussions are usually candid, unrehearsed, and honest. The professor is always ready to take time for a private talk with any individual who comes to him for advice or merely to talk casually.

Students on West confer with their faculty advisors before they register in order to prevent class conflicts.

In its monthly meeting the Undergraduate Faculty Council discusses the selection of courses and the adoption of academic regulations.

Dr. Gross and Dean Manchester take charge of an active discussion held by Faculty Council.

As a division of the University Faculty, the Undergraduate Faculty Council meets once a month during the academic year. The Council is composed of the President, two Vice-Presidents, the University Secretary, Dean of Undergraduate Studies, all deans of Trinity, Engineering and Woman's Colleges, and the chairman and representatives of the departments of the three colleges. It functions to consider objectives of undergraduate education and problems in curriculum, to encourage high standards of teaching, and to adopt regulations concerning matters of student academic life. Their activities, however, are not centered only around the University, for many of the faculty members living in or near Durham have children or hobbies to occupy their time. This aspect of the lives of the faculty is as important as their academic duties.

Dr. Garmezy demonstrates child psychology while he relaxes in his living room with his wife and children.

Professor Torre instructs students who are hoping to become proficient in the Spanish language.

The faculty takes time out to talk both business and pleasure in the faculty dining room on East Campus.

Duke Builds for a Better Tomorrow

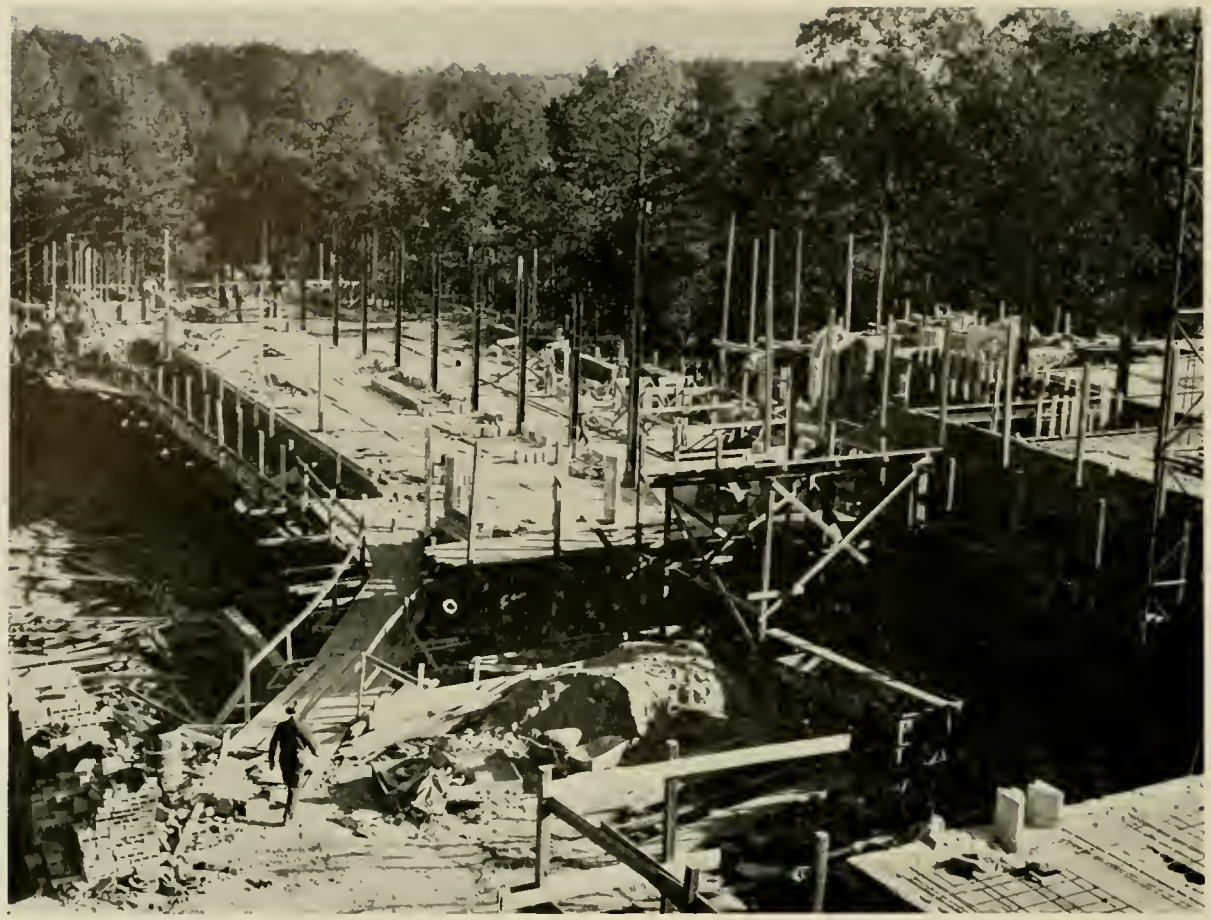
TO further prove that Duke University is constantly expanding and improving, one need only look at the new buildings which have been, or are in the process of being erected on campus. This year two new dormitories have been occupied for the first time—Hanes House and the Graduate Dormitory. The new nurse's dormitory with its modern facilities is designed primarily for the student's comfort, while the Graduate Men's Dormitory contains many conveniences, such as private dining rooms and a coffee shop. These new buildings, like the Engineering and Physics buildings, are not situated on the main quadrangle but are located a short distance from the hospital.

In line with the University's policy for improvement, grants have been made recently to provide for further graduate research in the physics department of nuclear and atomic energy.

Under construction during this year has been the Administration Building, the final structure to complete the University Quadrangle. Construction has progressed despite several delays, and the occupancy date has been set in February, 1954. The Student Activities Building is scheduled to take the place of the old administration section, and authorities say that the junior class will possibly see this new setup, the sophomores will probably see it, and the freshmen will undoubtedly see it. As the architects dream in gothic circles the entire quadrangle, we can see Duke expanding in quantity, but primarily in quality.

The construction of the new Administration Building, which completes the quadrangle, is fascinating to students.

When not at classes or on duty, the student nurses live at their new Hanes House, the most modern and comfortable dorm on campus.



Construction continues on the new administration building, which is expected to be completed by February, 1954

Chapter Two

Classes

THE four happiest years of your life." . . . How many times have you heard that expression and laughed it off? When you were a freshman, the idea seemed ludicrous; when you were a senior it gained credence, but finally as a graduate the adage became a certainty. What was it that made up those four years? It certainly wasn't the class that you became a part of as you entered your freshman year. Sure, you had been conscious of your class during those first three months when the dinks and bows were conspicuous. You had gone to freshman assembly and lived with the rest of your class. Finally, however, you became a sophomore and everything changed. With the ardor of a Shakespearian actor, you played the role of the sophisticated upperclassman. All class ties were forgotten. Your next two years were a succession of events: dances, fraternity parties, football games, Christmas and spring vacations.

Finally you entered your last year of college. But something was wrong; you didn't feel like a senior. Perhaps it was because you had been acting the part of the senior for the last two years and had already become one. Gradually, however, you realized what had happened. You had idealized the senior into an unattainable superman. The mere fact of entering your last year of college did not make you any wiser, far from it. The role of the senior that you had performed so perfunctorily became the means for understanding your own inadequacies and failures. The mature, all-knowing senior that you had pictured was not a reality.

And then you graduated. Maybe you weren't as intelligent as you had thought, but you had learned true humility. When you looked back at your college life, some of the things you had considered important became hazy; other insignificant things became meaningful. Fraternities and sororities, organizations and honoraries were forgotten. As returning alumni you proudly stated your class numerals in hopes of finding someone with whom to share your "four happiest years." The unity of your class took on new purport as you identified it with the successive stages of your education.

". . . with education, a new type of existence, a new bloom upon the tree of life. New thoughts, customs and modes are possible — richer and holier than anything in the past."

SENIORS

A PERIOD in your lives is about to end. When people speak of the younger generation or college men and women they will no longer mean you. You are to be confronted by a new way of life. The vision of graduating from college that had always seemed so distant is now upon you. The activities of your senior year—Homecoming, the senior banquet, and finally Commencement Week—will soon fade into the memory you will recall as college.

JUNIORS

Hard Work Bears Fruit As Honoraries Tap Juniors

ENTERING your junior year, you the class of 1954 had survived the traditional sophomore slump and were free for a time at least from the worries of the senior year and graduation. You were beginning to make a name for yourselves as you became potential members of the honoraries, Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Phi Kappa Delta. You worked hard on your class's activities and with your leaders moved on to new accomplishments. On West joint meetings were held each semester with the sophomores and seniors in order to more firmly unite the upper classes. On East the Junior Class met Miss Alice M. Baldwin at a coffee and later through a spring project made a sizeable contribution to the scholarship fund. You soon were to become a part of the most important group on campus, and as your last year commenced, you began to realize a new sense of responsibility—your college days were numbered, but the best ones still lay ahead.

SOPHOMORES

YOU are a sophomore, a freshman without naivete, a senior without savoir faire. For you this is the transitional year, the year during which you really enter the activities of college life. Now you can drive a car, live in the "section"; even more satisfying, you can snarl, "Where's your dink?" to a freshman. Starting the year perhaps overconfident, you soon find yourselves engulfed in parties and classes, corsages and lab reports, football games and Chapel services. Honoraries and organizations keep some of you saddled with responsibility. By the end of the year, order begins to form from this chaos. You really come to love your university, really to discover your place as a student. You have made a beginning, but you have infinitely more to learn.

FRESHMEN

EARLY September brought you from high schools all over the country; you found yourself with hundreds of others in a new world of books and lectures projected against a gothic background. You were indoctrinated in the traditions which had begun long ago — you wore your dink or bow, you attended freshman assembly and you guarded the bonfire before the Carolina game. Football season faded into memories of rushing, fraternity Christmas dances and then exams. You became Greeks, full-fledged brothers and sisters, and finally came spring vacation and again exams. You had become older and wiser and perhaps had even begun to assimilate an education.

In the gym on East Campus, freshmen and sophomores waltz in a snowy setting at their own informal Pilgrim's Prance the night following the Coed Ball at Thanksgiving.

Classical Orientation

LATE in the summer, a group of nervous, apprehensive boys and girls converge on the campus. Misgivings, resolutions, and the girl back home are forgotten as the new student gets his first glimpse of the Chapel and his classmates. The days to follow are exciting and busy. East-west social functions, new friends, and awe-struck inspection of gothic buildings vie with placement tests, assemblies, and meetings with faculty advisors. Duke-Durham day, sponsored by local merchants, and the guidance of "Y" men and advisors serve to make the freshmen feel welcome and a part of things. With the purchase of his dink at the week's end, the "frosh" feels well on his way toward becoming a Duke man.

Decked out in their newly acquired dinks, these freshmen are seen in Van Straaten's claiming one of the many free gifts, given on annual Duke-Durham Day.

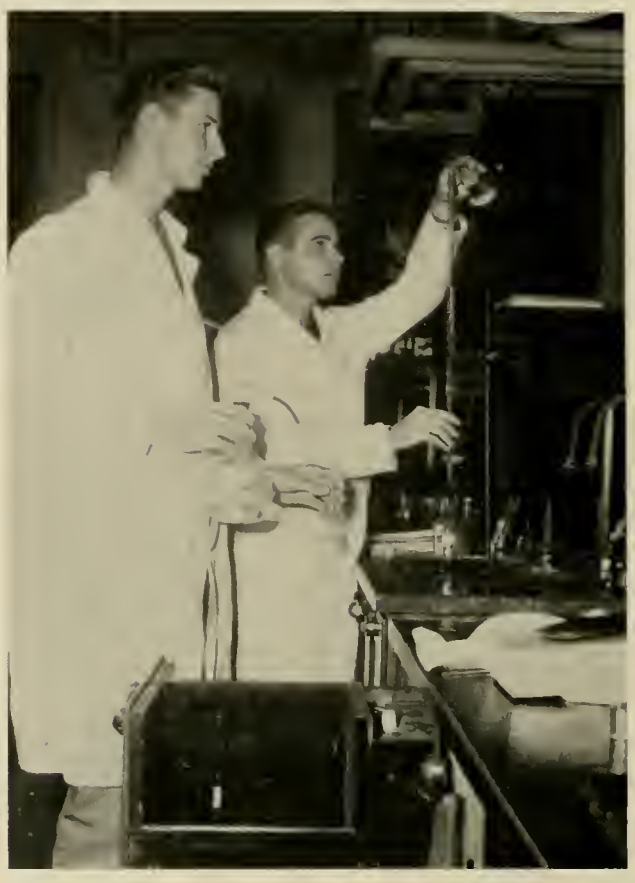
Freshmen exhibit their class enthusiasm as they line up to purchase the traditional Duke dink.

Lectures and Lessons Are Only Segments of Learning

Classes form the very core of the school; they are the reason for its existence; and there is as much variety in these classes as there is in the buildings provided for them. A zoology instructor confronts an assembly of nearly a hundred people while a small group of students performs an experiment under the guidance of a lab assistant. Meanwhile, by bus and car, there is an hourly exchange of commuters to classes between the East and West campuses. Finally after classes there is preparation—the inevitable hours spent huddled over books in the library that give classes meaning.

The reference room in the library on West is a favorite place for those who want to do concentrated study.

Chemistry students spend many a long hour in the lab struggling with set-ups and performing experiments.



In the twenty minutes between classes, students mob the wayward bus for transportation from West to East for classes.

rses' Self-Government flects Their Maturity

AT the center of a great number of the activities of the nurses is the Student Government Association, its governing body. The purpose of this body is to regulate all matters of life not under faculty jurisdiction, to increase a sense of individual responsibility, and to co-operate with the faculty in creating and maintaining high ideals for the nurses of the University. The Honor Council, set up by this organization, is a strong, well-respected system of self-discipline. In addition to serving as a governing body for the nurses, N.S.G.A. sponsors many social activities. There is the orientation of freshmen, the Thursday night vespers in the amphitheater of the hospital, and the sending of its president to the National Student Nurses Convention. The chief task of the association this year was to adjust the student body to living in a new dorm.

Social-ized Nursing

CENTERED around their beautiful, modern dormitory, the social activities of the nurses this year reached a new height. For the first time they participated in the displays so characteristic of West Campus for Homecoming Week End. Hanes House was decorated for Homecoming with the Blue Devil jamming a pitchfork at a yellow jacket with strains of the "Flight of the Bumblebee" in the background. Santa soon replaced the Blue Devil as the Christmas festivities got under way, highlighted by the Christmas dance and the crowning of the nurses' queen. These activities, combined with bridge parties, television, and other forms of entertainment show that social life can be quite adequately woven into the daily life of the students of the School of Nursing.

Miss Betty J. Larson, a senior nurse, was crowned queen at their Christmas Dance. She was also the nurses' representative to the Homecoming Court in October.

Taking care of babies like these is all part of the day's work for student nurses in training at Duke hospital.

Chapter Three

Organizations

WASHINGTON DUKE

GRADUATION from high school had been a memorable occasion. There was the expectation of college and all that it implied. For the first time you could assert your independence; there would be little pressure to participate in activities that demanded your time and effort. But when you did come to college, you found that you wanted to become a part of organizations. Your motive was difficult to discover. It could have been the drive to achieve something, to be someone that dominated your personality. Organizations presented an opportunity for the expression of your ideas, and the hope persisted that through them you might gain a permanent place at Duke. Your motive, however, may not have been primarily a selfish one. In extracurricular activities you were presented with the opportunity of satisfying the gregarious phase of your nature. You enjoyed being with people; you wanted to work with them; and you liked the sense of accomplishment achieved in group co-operation.

By the time you were a senior, you had probably spent over eight hundred hours in meetings and attended over five hundred different ones. What you had actually learned was debatable. You had found that in organizations democratic principles were tested to the utmost. You knew that this process took a lot of time. Other than that you couldn't be sure. There were platitudes that seemed to be verified by your experience in organizations: that a unified effort of a group always accomplished more than individual endeavor and that you could learn to understand people through association with them in organizations.

Organizations are responsible for more than these things, however. They can create a state of mind that teachers and men strive to inculcate in your being. It is a spirit of respect, not merely tolerance but a sincere appraisal and appreciation of your fellow man's beliefs and opinions. Organizations in themselves will soon fade; but the ideas they inspire and the character of the men and women with whom you come into contact will be remembered long after you have become a graduate.

". . . good organizations promote good discipline, good order and good teachings."

Rogers' Rules of Order

Nolan Rogers, President of M.S.G.A., is also the vice-president of the senior class and a Red Friar.

UNDER the energetic leadership of Nolan Rogers, the Men's Student Government Association completed a year that emphasized the closer co-operation of the faculty and M.S.G.A.-student interests. The President's cabinet with its subsidiary committees brought vital issues before the student legislature and activated a more efficient channel between students and their representatives.

Student Gov't Enlarges Activities During Year

From committees came such proposals as a revised cut system, possible visiting speakers and programs, car-wash facilities, student forum, and celebration of various commemorative weeks. Approval of the executive cabinet was required for most bills to be considered by the legislature. The independent representative system was revised to be on a proportional basis with the fraternities, and an investigation of a raise in bus fare was undertaken by S.G.A. members.

Every Wednesday night finds the representatives to Men's Student Government Association assembled in room 201 of the Law Building, where they work for the interests of the students, faculty, and administration in both campus and academic affairs.

Dottie Platte, President of W.S.G.A., was also selected for membership in the honorary, White Duchy.

THIS year under the leadership of Dottie Platte, the Woman's Student Government Association has gained vitality and student interest. Following the administration rejection of the plan of the cut system, W.S.G.A. combined with M.S.G.A. to stimulate an alternate proposal. W.S.G.A. sponsored a protest against the rise in bus prices, a suggested alteration in the emphasis of the physical education grading system, and a recommendation of non-rushing for next year's council members. Election machinery was revised and the office-holders' point system was re-evaluated. W.S.G.A. sought to be more truly representative of the whole student body by encouraging discussion and participation in assembly meetings. Interest in W.S.G.A. proceedings was discovered when a motion to dissolve monthly assemblies and to adopt a legislative system was defeated by a large majority.

Freshman Aid Clinic

The Men's Freshmen Advisory Council is a carefully selected group of men whose duty it is to act as "father" to all the incoming freshmen and advise them on all the problems of college life, both social and academic, which may arise during those first few weeks.

THE project to help Freshmen become acclimated to college life at Duke under the Freshman Advisory Council was widely expanded this year. The progressive program of upperclassmen's revealing the inside story of life at Duke and in Durham to their F.A.C. boys was continued. More concentrated efforts were made to assist the freshman in every way. From the very first evening when the F.A.C. man took his freshman to the movies in Page, until after exams were over, the upperclassmen made frequent visits to the freshman dorms.

As a result of last year's questionnaire, a criticism of their program became an actual part of F.A.C.'s function in the fall. In answer to "Why not have women F.A.C. men?" East Campus girls assisted the men in sessions held with their freshmen in the social rooms on West.

Fred Brooks is F.A.C. president and co-chairman of the Religious Emphasis Week Steering Committee.

Take Care of My Girl

DUKE University could be a bewildering maze to freshmen girls coming from all parts of the nation; anticipating this, a small organization with a large task—the Freshman Advisory Council was established.

The duty of the F.A.C. is to make every girl feel that she has a definite place at Duke. Each F.A.C. has been chosen to help her freshmen meet the problems of college. The introductions and activities of Freshman Week do not constitute all of her role; she later becomes a sincere and interested friend as well as a counselor.

Barbara Evans is Pres. of W.F.A.C. and also a member of White Duchy.

Social Savants of East

AN organization which has great influence on East Campus life is Social Standards, an auxiliary of the Woman's Student Government Association. It's members work to promote "good taste and gracious living on campus" by forming rules of dress and behavior. This year Social Standards has revised its rules to keep up-to-date; one of the changed rules now allows girls to wear blue jeans to gym without raincoats. Another innovation was the institution of lawn concerts in the spring.

This group's two publications are a pictorial calendar and It's Not in the Handbook, with informal advice for freshmen. The most publicized activities of Social Standards are the two Coed Balls. THE CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen and her court were presented at the first on Thanksgiving Eve, and President Edens crowned Mary Bryson as queen during the intermission of the dance. At the second Coed Ball the May Queen was crowned.

Coed Harmonizers

tudent Opinion Relayed hrough Co - ord Board

STUDENT Co-ordinate Board was established in 1945 for the purpose of creating a closer spirit of harmony between faculty and students and has achieved this purpose by investigating and acting on suggestions concerning campus improvements. Under the capable leadership of Chairman Barbara Seaberg, this year's Board has made many noteworthy accomplishments. Some results of its labors have been faculty advisers for freshmen, the synchronizing of campus clocks, and the long-sought change in registration to eliminate confusion. Several times during the year, Co-ordinate Board presented dinners in East's Union at which the members served, and coeds and their dates enjoyed a relaxed meal. These dinners help to draw the campuses closer together.

The members of Co-ordinate Board have also worked hard to find satisfactory solutions to such problems as an effectual honor system and a cut system.

Gentlemen of the Jury

THE Judicial Branch of M.S.G.A. continued to hear student cases and send recommendations for punishments to the administration. Headed by Bill Werber, the Board encouraged greater student responsibility in matters of behavior. The fraternity and house presidents were charged with keeping order in their own dormitories, and under the new House Council bill the student leaders helped to limit the action of the Judicial Board. Agreement was reached between the administration and Judicial Board on nearly every major policy concerning the interpretation of student regulations, by frequent meetings between the two groups. Through these meetings, both the administration's and students' viewpoints are merged into a satisfactory solution.

In order to set a standard for the future, the Judicial Board this year published a group of regulations and punishments for the various offenses they have to rule on. The Judicial Board is demonstrating its worth and effectiveness in the organization and management of West Campus affairs. Its ultimate aim of greater student responsibility is closer to becoming a reality.

The Scales of Justice

Woman's Judicial Board, left, clockwise: Kathleen Landon, Carolyn Westbrook, Mary Alice Longcrier, Anne McDonald, Avis Watchman, Nancy Miller (chairman), Dorothy Platte, Nancy Alyea, Frances Schneidewind, Margaret Kennedy, Judith Hull

THE impressive black-robed members of the Women's Judicial Board are the judicial representatives from each dormitory, W.S.G.A. president, and the chairman of Judicial Board. Meetings are held twice a week. Each Tuesday is devoted to judicial proceedings, while committees meet on Wednesdays to revise the constitution, the handbook, and the rules. Among the major accomplishments of this year were the liberal changes in dating rules such as unlimited dates for second semester freshmen, and 11:30 permission for everyone on Friday and Sunday nights. Suggestions for revisions are brought from the dorms by the representatives. Their duty is to stimulate interest in student government as well as to conduct judicial proceedings in house council meetings. Thus, aside from functioning as a unit for the entire campus, each member of Judicial Board has individual importance in her dorm. Minor violations such as latenesses and excessive noise in the dorm come under the jurisdiction of the Judicial Representative.

However, these girls are not to be thought of as merely policemen, for their work on Judicial Board encompasses many areas. They put much time and effort into their work, and do much for the benefit of the campus. No longer is the black robe to be considered a "stigma."

They Bring Eyes, Ears of the World

Last spring, Carl Sandburg, presented by the Forum, spoke informally to the student body.

TO satisfy the students' appetite for increased knowledge and to supplement the regular classroom and extracurricular activities, the Student Forum Committee presents a series of lectures by well-known speakers. The coed committee selects the lecturers from leading personalities who are on tour. The lectures, financed by the students, are open to anyone wishing to attend.

Eric Sevareid, noted correspondent and news commentator, opened the series with "The Crisis of Our Times." Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt discussed the value of the United Nations as our only organizational hope for peace. Emlyn Williams, English actor and author, repeated his readings of Dickens which he had successfully presented in the New York theater. The fourth speaker was Vincent Sheean, noted Middle East authority, author of several books on the subject of his speech, India.

Young Men of Creative Action

THE Y.M.C.A. started the year as they returned to West Campus to greet, give directions, and advise the new freshmen during Orientation Week. Another highlight on the list of its activities was the Dad's Day week end when fathers from all over the nation arrived on the Duke campus. To liven the Thanksgiving festivities, the "Y" presented its annual Wheelbarrow Relay. The Lost and Found was reorganized this year, campus tours were guided daily, and many worked at Edgemont Community Center or Wright's Refuge. Foreign students found "homes" for the Christmas holidays through its efforts, and a vocational guidance clinic was planned for the spring. A student directory, sponsored by the "Y," was compiled of all the students of Duke. During the fall, campus discussion groups, a free dance, and a campus-wide meeting were held. This year the membership drive was the best in the history of the school, and through the work of the three cabinets, Senior, Junior, and Freshman, the "Y" has worked to serve the school.

John J. Carey is president of the "Y," a Red Friar, and a member of ODK, national honorary.

Seeking Service Everywhere

'WCA Activities Included Mom-Daughter Week End

SERVICE to community and campus is the prime object of the Y.W.C.A. During the past year its committee on Campus and Public Affairs with other groups sponsored International Affairs Week. Its coffees brought students and faculty members for discussion of such questions as "Ike or Adlai?" The "Y" Committee on projects sponsored clothing drives and a lost and found department, while one of the activities of the Social Committee was the annual Hanging of the Greens. Another Christmas note was the Madrigal's Singing Tree under the direction of the Worship Committee, which also planned weekly vesper programs. Edgemont Community Center, Wright's Refuge, Durham Day Nursery, and Duke Hospital were aided by the Social Service Committee, which last year contributed a record of 3,000 hours to Durham in social work.

Willing Workers

THE Freshman Y.W.C.A. cabinet is a co-ordinating link to the Senior cabinet. Its activities this year included a Thanksgiving Party for the maids' children, Christmas caroling with West Freshmen, and a series of lectures featuring Dr. Rhine and Dr. Hart. Assistance was given to the "Y's" programs for Freshmen's social service training and for the Mother-Daughter Week End. Early in the fall, officers for this group are elected from the Freshman class. These girls carry our their own projects as well as aiding the Senior cabinet of the "Y."

Barristers Across the Bar

Bench and Bar, Duke's society for all pre-law students, assembles in room 206 of Law Building for a mock trial. These trials give the aspiring attorneys a chance to demonstrate verbal prowess in prosecution and defense before a critical jury of fellow members.

AS an undergraduate organization, Bench and Bar serves to introduce interested pre-legal students and those majoring in related fields to the law profession and to acquaint them with requirements for law school. This year's program for the organization's meetings included a rally, a mock election, a movie on the Nüremburg trials, a mock trial, and several interesting speakers.

Kappa Delta Pi, the education majors' honorary, holds one of its monthly meetings to encourage high professional, intellectual, and personal standards.

The Nurses Education Club, which has existed three years at Duke, is composed of graduate nurses who plan to enter the teaching profession.

Groups Combine Devotion, Duty

KAPPA Delta Pi, a national honorary for both graduate and undergraduate students, promotes high standards of leadership in education. This year, as part of its program, this group had initiations, a spring banquet, such speakers as Dr. Abrams from Raleigh and Dr. Cartwright of Duke, and discussed problems in foreigh education.

The Helen Naum Nurses' Education Club, started at Duke in 1949, creates a friendly relationship between nursing education students and all other Duke students. A branch of the Town Girls' Club, this group also has its own meetings and social activities aside from meeting with the Town Girls' Club.

Life's Madness Masked In Drama

DUKE Players is the dramatic group on campus. In it actors, make-up artists, and back-stage workers find expression of their abilities. Readings from Green Pastures by Stewart Henry, Presbyterian minister, highlighted one of the fall Duke Players' meetings. Such dramatic entertainment topped off many 1952-53 meetings. Few members will forget the startling introduction to the club of Mr. Graves, new technical director; at the first gathering of the year, he appeared on the program as the bridegroom in a one-act play entitled "The Wedding Night."

endig Stars In "Summer nd Smoke" Performance

Productions can be presented in Branson's theater-in-the-round with an informality not found on the regular stage. Because the audience has such close contact with the players it is more easily drawn into the action of the play. Though the experience is new for most people, it has become increasingly popular with the students.

The Duke Players production of Remains To Be Seen stars Judy LeFever and Geoff Edwards and features Harry Bernard. This play, the first of the year, was presented in Page Auditorium as part of the Homecoming festivities.

Harry Bernard is president of Duke Players, member of Pi Kappa Phi, Tau Kappa Alpha.

This year's Duke Players' program called for the presentation of three plays. The first, "Remains To Be Seen," was given in the fall. "Summer and Smoke" captivated winter audiences, and "The Glass Slipper," given in the spring, brought the season to a successful finish.

There's 'Nuthin Like It' Because 'Anything Goes'

IN its sixteenth year as the only musical comedy club in the South, the Hoof 'n' Horn Club successfully presented "All's Fair In Love" as the sum total of its season's work. In the tradition inherited from Princeton's Triangle Club, Hoof 'n' Horn members produce and direct an original script and score—as in this spring's show, written by Duke students Ed Naylor and Bob Van Deventer. As usual the result was a highly polished musical comedy and a highlight of Joe College Week End.

The business of this organization is directed by an Executive Council consisting of five officers and two members-at-large. It approves committee appointments, receives reports from committee heads, elects active members, and reviews petitions for offices. All scripts are placed in the Council's hands for consideration; technical and directorial advisers aid in the final decision. After a script receives approval, a director is selected for its production. The club, one of the largest on campus, then comes to life —general work for all begins.

Nayor's Talent Inspires Hoof 'n' Horn Spring Show

Beyond the Executive Council's general leadership, the director of each show—like Ed Nayor, director of "All's Fair In Love"—holds tryouts to select a cast for the principle characters, the singing chorus, and the dancing line. The business staff, under the business manager's leadership, prepares and carries out the budgets of each production and its committees. Chairmen of committees appoint members to aid them in organizing such components as scenery, costumes, tickets, playbills, and ushers. This theory of "many hands make light work" produces, not only a general effect of hustle, bustle, and fun, but also a successful musical comedy.

The cast of the Hoof 'n' Horn show line up for the spectacular finale of Cole Porter's Anything Goes, starring B. Roberts, D. Blair, J. Lewis, D. Marks, and D. Brown. This production was the club's first presentation of a show not written by Duke students.

The Duke Cavaliers play it soft and sweet at this year's Coed Ball, the "Frost Frolics." Their music is in popular demand not only at many Duke functions, but also at several neighboring colleges like University of North Carolina, N. C. State and Wake Forest.

Extremely Mild and Mellow

Cavaliers Played Dances For Both Duke and U.N.C.

THE year 1952 celebrated the fourth birthday of the Duke Cavaliers, the popular campus band consisting of men from Duke and the University of North Carolina. Under the leadership of Pete Hull, the Cavaliers furnished the mellow background for many campus social affairs, including the BOS-Sandals and the Seniors' Homecoming Dances. A wide variety in selections and arrangements of dance music made the 1952 version of the Duke Cavaliers a favorite with the Duke students.

Rhapsodies of Rhythm

Under the direction of their leader, Benny Steele, the Duke Ambassadors, the older of Duke's dance bands, performs for many Duke social functions such as the Military Ball and the I.F.C. dance, as well as for the Governor's Inaugural Ball held in Raleigh.

Benny Steele is the leader behind the Ambassadors.

THE band which for years has been known as one of the leading college bands is still in full swing on the Duke campus. Featuring music that is listenable as well as danceable, the Ambassadors play arrangements which are written especially for the band, and thus carry through the distinctive style which has earned them national acclaim since their organization in 1932.

For the last time the Duke spotlight falls on Benny Steele, able leader for the past two years. but business manager Dick Gabler will return next fall along with most of the band.

High Up in the Midnight Blue

THE Shoe 'n' Slipper Club was organized primarily for the purpose of bringing name bands to the Duke campus twice each year. Representatives of fraternity, freshman, and independent groups form the Shoe 'n' Slipper Council. Each member of the Council marks a preferential list of the most popular bands, which is tabulated in order that the winners may be contacted. This year the club was fortunate in signing its number-one choices of bands for the fall and spring dances– Vaughn Monroe and Ray Anthony. The president of the Shoe 'n' Slipper Club heads the Joe College committee for the spring week end which features the club's formal and informal dances. The two dances each year have become the high point of the Duke social season and bring the best bands for dancing to the campus.

The Music Study Club assembles for its meeting in the Music Room in East Duke Building. Miss Evelyn Barnes assists them in the search for a true appreciation of music and those great artists who give music its meaning.

Bewitched By Bach and Beethoven

THE Music Study Club qualifications for membership impose no standard of talent. The purpose of the club is to bring together women who have a common interest in and a love for music. At each meeting a program is given, perhaps a lecture on opera, a guest artist, or a student report on the life of a composer. During the year the club sponsors an artist on the concert series. This year the Music Study Club was fortunate to have the opportunity of sponsoring Nell Rankin.

J. Foster Barnes, usually known as "Bishop," directs a rehearsal of the Men's Glee Club.

"Bishop" Barnes Begins Another Quarter Century

UNDER the direction of "Bishop" Barnes, the Men's Glee Club has completed another successful season. The two weekly rehearsals were necessary preparation for the full concert schedule.

The Glee Club launched its concert tour with its annual home presentation in February; the traditional dance was given in co-operation with the Woman's Glee Club the next night. The members then began their southern tour, appearing in concerts in North Carolina, Georgia, and in seven Florida cities. The northern tour during the Spring Vacation for forty-two picked men was culminated with a five-days' stay in New York City with radio and television appearances on national networks and a concert at the Biltmore Hotel, one of New York's finest.

The Triple Quartet was an active group within the Glee Club, traveling to several North Carolina cities and presenting a program at the North Carolina Press Banquet.

The comic opera specialty number highlighted the Glee Club's concert tour.

The Duke University Men's Glee Club is composed of the finest voices from undergraduate and graduate schools. Many members are in the choir, but only the best go on their annual tour which has made them famous throughout the eastern United States.

Perhaps the main reason that the Men's Glee Club has such widespread appeal is the spirit of unity which is apparent to anyone who has ever witnessed a performance. The reception their comedy skits receive is proof of the club's versatility, and the programs are varied to suit all tastes, ranging from church music to a take-off on grand opera. In his twenty-sixth year as director, Bishop, more than ever, is admired for his control of the club and his geniality. Thus, the members provide entertainment for others and enjoy themselves as well.

To Thee Our Voices Raise

THE Duke University Chapel Choir quietly files in as the last strains of the organ prelude fade away. Reverently, the choir chants the Call to Worship and a hush comes over the congregation as another Sunday morning Chapel service is begun.

The two hundred and fifty-odd members who comprised the Chapel Choir this year were selected from the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs. They met on Wednesday nights to practice under the direction of "Bishop" Barnes. During the year, the Choir acquired a large repertoire of sacred music, including "The Messiah" and "Elijah" oratorios, which were presented during the Christmas season and the Easter season respectively.

More important than the technical side of the work of the Chapel Choir is the spirit which motivates its members. They are people who love sacred music and enjoy singing it in unison. Perhaps it is this unity which produces the harmonious and balanced effect created by the choir. The deeply sincere musical expression of faith makes the choir an integral part of the Chapel service, a part with which Duke graduates and visitors are impressed and which they will always remember.

The Duke University Chapel Choir, directed by J. Foster Barnes, is composed of over two hundred well-blended voices. Besides singing on Sunday morning and at other special services, they present Handel's Messiah at Christmas as the highlight of the year.

The Duke University Women's Glee Club rehearses every Tuesday evening in the music room of East Duke Building. The girls, under the direction of Mrs. J. Foster Barnes, practice their own songs and those that the Chapel Choir sings at Sunday service.

Serenade of the Belles

WOMEN members of the Chapel Choir are chosen from the Women's Glee Club, sister organization of the Men's Glee Club. Weekly rehearsals on Tuesday night prepare choir music in addition to the regular glee club music. Under the direction of Mrs. Foster Barnes and the presidency of Dot Jenkins, the Women's Glee Club joined with the men to present a concert in the spring.

The social agenda included informal parties after joint rehearsals with the men. At Christmastime, Glee Club carolers were entertained by President and Mrs. Edens in their home after singing carols outside. The highlight of the season was the annual glee club week end in February, with the men's concert and the Valentine Dance forming a perfect climax to a year full of activities and pleasure.

Sparkplugs for Duke's Spirits

Students hold up their color cards to create another of the Pep Board's complex patterns.

INCLUDING this year for the first time members from East as well as from West, the Pep Board publicized minor sports, sponsored pep rallies, and collaborated with Life on the spectacular Homecoming Parade. The Board is divided into committees such as the special activities committee, responsible for the Victory Bell and the unusual cheerleader entrances, and the card trick committee, responsible for Duke's rating along with top Western schools in presentation of card tricks. Hard workers with ideas are the Pep Board's "men behind the scenes."

Card Tricks Provide Top Half-time Entertainment

IN spring we are reminded of band concerts held outside in the open air. Although Duke cannot boast a band shell, it does have a fine concert band which, under the direction of Mr. Paul Bryan, gives several concerts a year. The concert band is composed of men, most of whom are in the Duke Marching Band, and women, who rehearse twice a week in Asbury. Assisting Mr. Bryan in the affairs of this organization is first clarinetist Paul Cherry, concert master, and David Taylor, assistant conductor. At Christmas, the Band co-operated with Aycock House in presenting a sing. The highlight of the spring season was the concert given on March 18, featuring selections by the composers Paul Hindemith and Gordon Jacob, and thus proving once again to the Duke student body that band music is good music for everyone.

The Duke University Concert Band, conducted by Paul Bryan, is composed of interested students who play a woodwind, brass, or percussion instrument. They present each year lawn concerts, a formal concert, and a Sunday sing in East's auditorium.

The Duke University Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Allen H. Bone is composed of fifty-seven pieces. This organization presents each year a concert in the fall and another in the spring which feature student or faculty members as guest artists.

A Symphonic Spectrum of Sound

THE Symphony Orchestra presented a concert series highlighted by guest performers Dr. Loren Withers of the Music Department, who played Ravel's Concerto Pour Le Main Gauche, and student pianist, Terrell Jordan. A spring concert was given with the Durham Civic Choral Society.

Mr. Bryan, Mrs. Saville, and Mr. Bone discuss their plans for the band, Madrigal Singers, and orchestra.

Halftime Display Enlivens Saturday

AN autumn afternoon in Duke Stadium is more than a football game. Many factors contributed to the color and thrill of the 1952 football season; one of the most outstanding of these was the eighty-eight piece Duke Marching Band.

Friday night pep rallies were preparations for Saturday, when a muted rumble of drums forewarned the crowd of the Band's imminent arrival.

The Band's unique cheer and its fanfare before the "Fight Song" demonstrated its enthusiasm and spirit. The Band's precision of movement and musical performance were evidence of many hours of planning and practice and their half-time formations kept spectators spellbound in their seats.

The Duke University Marching Band, well-known for its spectacular formations and its stirring music, lines up on the field with a visiting high school band for the traditional playing of the National Anthem before the game.

Every Sunday morning the long rows of pews in the Chapel are filled with students, faculty, and townspeople who find inspiration in the worship service.

Spiritual Steering Board

The Student Religious Council, which lends its support to the Inter-Collegiate Council, is composed of a representative from each denominational group on campus. It meets to co-ordinate the activities of these fellowships, sometimes at a supper meeting.

MONTHLY the members of Church Board meet in the basement of the Chapel. In these meetings the board tries to co-ordinate the religious activities of the University and to provide a program for the Church. During the year the board acts as the main supporter of Edgemont Community Center and the awarder of several scholarships. This year the board has also effected a constitutional revision to keep its policy up to date and to improve its functions..

Faiths That Lead In One Direction

Unitarians meet in Durham for a panel with Drs. Davies and Eliot as their guests and Dr. Cleland as moderator.

TOO often, students put religion away as something irrelevant to college life, as something dependent upon faith and not upon scientific knowledge. Consequently, one of the very important sides of the student's life is left vacant. To counteract this tendency the various churches established groups on campus, under the supervision of a chaplain.

The Student Religious Council, made up of delegates of the various denominational groups, oversees the general programs and projects, such as Religious Emphasis Week and others.

The Baptist Student Union, in addition to its regular Sunday-night programs, also holds intercollegiate and interracial meetings. Plans and ideas gathered from the fall retreat and from work during the year are discussed and improved upon by delegates to the regional conference.

The Episcopalian Canterbury Club, which follows the national program of the Episcopal Church, observes communion service each Sunday morning in the Memorial Chapel. Retreats are held each year for fellowship and spiritual enrichment.

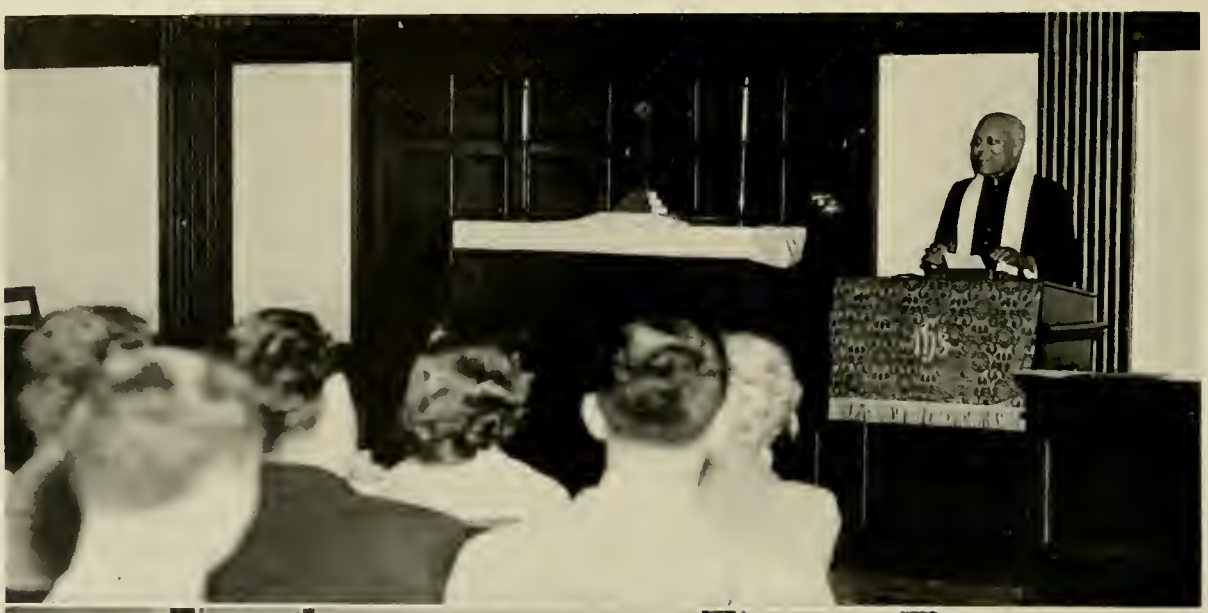
The Unitarian Fellowship, composed of faculty and students, meets each Sunday night for dinner with a program given by liberal thinkers on subjects such as Humanism, Brotherhood, and Socialism.

Denominations Co-ordinate Through Counci

Every so often, the M.S.F. organizes the Methodists and takes to the woods with Camp New Hope, one of their favorite spots, as their destination. The retreats from the pressures of school are sometimes spiritual and sometimes just for fun.

The Inter-Collegiate Council, composed of students from North Carolina College, U.N.C., and Duke, listens closely to a lecturer at a monthly meeting.

In the chapel on East campus the Student Religious Council presented as guest speaker Dr. Eddy Asirvatham from India, who spoke to the interdenominational group on religion in Asia and discussed his reasons for being a Christian.



Above is one of the panels from Religious Emphasis Week, planned and put on by students. The above panel discussed the question of Morals or Mores and was moderated by Dr. Richard L. Watson, of the history department.

Hillel Club members meet in the upstairs dining room of West Union for a Sunday dinner and an afternoon of fellowship.

In their weekly meeting, an interdenominational Cell Group holds a vigorous religious discussion.

THE Jewish Hillel Club is made up of Jewish students who meet each Friday night for a religious service. In addition, the group sponsors various social and cultural programs.

Through the publications of the Lutheran Student Association, meetings and activities are announced to help achieve its primary aim, the preservation of the religious life of students. The members participate in Student Day at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Regular Sunday night meetings are held each week in the East Duke Chapel.

At one of the regular Sunday night meetings, the Lutheran Student Association gathers in the East Duke Chapel to hold a worship service and hear a speaker.

The Baptists enjoy a rustic weiner roast at their annual spring retreat held at Fort Caswell, Southport, N. C. This outing gives them a chance to evaluate the year's activities, to make changes and to plan for the next year.

roups Conduct Program f Service and Worship

THE Methodist Student Fellowship carries on a varied program of social service, education, and fellowship in addition to its religious activities. It sponsors an annual Campus Career Clinic, it holds the York Bible Class to discuss the Christian faith and related problems, and each Tuesday evening it meets for dinner in the East Campus Union.

The Newman Club provides a Catholic environment for students who have come to a Protestant school. It stresses the importance of religion in daily life and co-ordinates its social and religious program to that of the University.

The Presbyterian Westminster Fellowship offers opportunities for social service, religious inspiration, and fellowship through its varied activities and social services at the Durham Day Nursery and the Spastic Hospital. Retreats are held each year to formulate plans and to provide a time of quiet for spiritual growth.

Members of the Newman Club, the Catholic fellowship, have Sunday morning breakfast together for fellowship.

Several times during the year, the Westminster Fellowship, the Presbyterian group on campus, travels to Camp Butner, a nearby state mental institution, where they give a party for the patients and help entertain them in many other ways.

The Episcopalian fellowship, the Canterbury Club, holds a special party and hymn sing for all the denominational groups on Duke campus in their regular meeting place in the basement of St. Joseph's Church in downtown Durham.

Future Nautical Ensigns

TRACING its history back to the Second World War, the Duke N.R.O.T.C. unit has trained scores of officers in both active and reserve branches of the navy. Training is divided into two distinct phases here at Duke. Three class periods per week are devoted to the naval sciences, orientation, gunnery, navigation machinery, and leadership while two additional hours are spent on the drill field. The midshipmen, who rank higher than the highest ranking enlisted man but lower than the lowest ranking officer in the real navy, have their own officers in command. Every member of the N.R.O.T.C. makes at least one summer cruise whether it be overseas or the Amphib cruise to Little Creek, Virginia, where actual classroom work is put into practice on navy ships.

ABOARD ship from reveille to taps the middies learned first hand how the navy gets "squared away." New among the activities for the year was the drill team which under the leadership of Batallion Commander Don Spofford made a name both for itself and the unit as they executed complicated maneuvers at the Duke-Navy football game. However insignificant each order they enacted may have seemed, they realized that by participating in this activity they were building up that background of practical experience which an officer in today's navy must have.

Professors maintain a feeling of informality with their students, often meeting with them outside of classes to discuss problems or other matters of common interest.

The Trials of Prospective Pilots

A.R.O.T.C. Has Increased Rapidly In Four Years

UNDER the new leadership of Colonel Robert J. Knight, the Duke Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps is now at maximum co-ordination and strength. The unit has shown phenomenal growth during the past four years, expanding from one squadron to six.

Beginning the four-year training program with courses in basic air science and political geography, the cadet takes subsequent training in navigation and aerodynamics. A two-hour drill period each week trains him in leadership and command. Junior and senior cadets specialize in flight operations, administration and logistics, or in general technical work in anticipation of the reserve commission they will receive upon graduation. Interested students were taken on special aerial flights this year to gain practical experience in aerial photography and navigation and to acquaint them with basic flight procedures.

ASIDE from the strictly educational curriculum of the A.R.O.T.C., a number of outside activities were undertaken by the cadets. Field trips were taken to Pope Air Force base to watch parachute maneuvers, and a crack rifle drill team was organized to put on exhibitions at field days.

The most popular activity this year was membership in the socially organized Air Force Club, which staged its annual Cadet's Ball in connection with the Duke Naval R.O.T.C. unit.

STRIVING to assemble a nucleus of outstanding men from the junior and senior classes in the A.R.O.T.C., the Arnold Air Society is an honorary organization with the purpose of furthering the A.R.O.T.C. program. Following this aim, the Society sponsored a University-wide blood drive, a field trip, and flying for A.R.O.T.C. students. It also sponsored a showing of uniforms by several companies and worked hard to advance the unit's standing on the Duke Campus.

Fred Schoonmaker was President of the Arnold Air Society during his senior year.

New members of A.R.O.T.C. honorary, the Arnold Air Society, are received into the group at a formal initiation ceremony.

The main office in Pub Row becomes mass confusion when the staff members of the various publications take over, because no matter how much of the work they try to finish beforehand there is always the last mad scramble to meet their deadlines.

All the News That's Fit to Print

FROM the basement of the West Campus Union the din of typewriters and the scratch of pencils across the surface of paper rises above the calls for deadlines and copy. Here we find Pub Row, the home of Duke's three publications: the CHANTICLEER, the Chronicle, and the Archive. Minds are at work, thoughts and ideas are developed—all is recorded amid the bedlam of photographers and business and editorial staff members.

Weekly reaping the work of many students, the Chronicle goes to press containing student news. Several times a year a literary publication, the Archive, appears with its stories and poems demonstrating Duke students' creative ability.

The staff of the CHANTICLEER may be seen throughout the year, working on the annual to be published early in May. These three publications serve as an outlet for student talent in three distinct divisions of the field of creative writing.

Student and faculty members of Pub Board meet in a conference. They are, clockwise, beginning at left: Dr. Cheek, R. Sykes, A. Oehlbeck, R. Rae, J. Gleason, D. Climenson, T. White, J. Publication Prescriptionists

THE Publications Board, which usually relegates its activity to the election of the editors and business managers of the three publications of Trinity College, found more than its share of problems during the past year. Starting off with a ban against an illegal advertising agency, the board then reviewed the recommendation that a literary club take over the direction of the Archive. Through the efforts of a special committee, the Board, however, has formed a plan by which the Archive will be operated for the next three years. According to this plan, the editorial and business positions will be filled upon recommendation by a new screening committee made up of the faculty members and the outgoing editor, as an ex-officio member. Pub Board next adopted a much delayed constitution for its own organization before beginning the publication elections.

The Annual Report

EVERY year around the first of May the yearbook arrives. After the first excited rush to find our pictures and maybe to skim over the sports section and beauty court, the annual is often relegated to the bookshelf, where it serves as a rogues' gallery for blind dates. After graduation, however, for some it becomes a source for reminiscence of college days. Realizing this phase of an annual's existence, we have planned and executed the 1953 CHANTICLEER.

During the past few years yearbooks have become more like magazines—flashy layouts, bold, black headlines, dramatic and unusual angle pictures, bleeds on every page. We believe that there is a basic fallacy in such a theory for an annual. A magazine is a publication that is read once and discarded. Its contents are designed for hasty and superficial perusal, and as we have stated above, this is not the primary function of a yearbook. A yearbook should be modeled, as much as possible, after a "good book." Novelty and gaudiness are not criteria for a book that represents the creative efforts of mature college students. Therefore, we have endeavored to incorporate the principles of simplicity and strength that are found in books that have survived the test of time. It is with this idea foremost that we present a year of our lives at Duke University.

On Wednesday afternoons, the back rooms of Pub Row are humming with feverish activity as members of the editorial staff of the Chronicle meet to turn in the week's assignments, type last minute articles, and in general prepare the paper for that night's press.

Phil Fullerton is the editor of the Chronicle and also a member of Who's Who in colleges.

PRESENTING a new pictorial front page, the Chronicle this year continued to give complete coverage of all school news, activities, and sports. Headed by Phil Fullerton, Duke's newspaper recorded the history of the college as it was made from week to week. Supplementing the paper's former layout was the new front and back page setup, putting the headline topics and sports news before the students as never before. The letters-to-the-editor department gave evidence of the depth of student feeling on current issues such as the presidential election and majorettes for the band. At a university such as Duke it is inevitable that the Chronicle should be one of the principal means of communication.

Although the Chronicle appears every Friday, the work for it is concentrated between Monday when staff members receive their assignments and late Wednesday night when articles are assembled and layouts are planned. Meanwhile the business staff manages the financial affairs of the paper. After the Chronicle returns from the printer, the paper carriers deliver it to the students and another week of newspaper publication ends.

The members of the business staff at work are: Bill Gray, Carl Dispenziere, Jack Pyle, Tom Taylor, Sam Northrop, Polly Winters, Ken Orr, and Lisk Wyckoff.

Experiment in Expression

THE Archive is Duke's literary publication. Claiming to be the oldest literary publication in the South, it has never missed an issue. This year, editor Ruthie Rae gave the Archive new life and vitality; the staff was enlarged, the number of contributors increased, and the staff was more critical in selecting material to be printed. The improved Archive attracted many future literary artists and gave their talents expression.

Members of the business staff of the Archive discuss problems of the distributing and financing Duke's literary magazine.

Ruth Rae, Editor, and Don Gould, the Business Manager, confer over problems of the next issue of the Archive.

Editorial staff members have a meeting to discuss the merit and quality of the new literature that has been submitted to the Archive for publication.

I, The Camera

SINCE pictures are one of the most important elements in a yearbook, the CHANTICLEER photographers play a major part in its composition. Not only do they take most of the pictures appearing in the annual, but they do their own developing and printing in the darkroom on Pub Row. These photographers may be seen at any time around campus taking informal shots of campus activities or formal pictures of organizations. They also serve as photographers for other campus functions wherever there is a need for them and record pictorially our college life.

"Semper Fidelis" Is Our Guide

Pictured above is the newly organized Semper Fidelis Club that has been formed at Duke to unite the Marine Corps Reserve Officers who are here on the campus, and to stimulate the interest in their future with the Corps.

THE Beta Chapter of the Semper Fidelis Society held its first organizational meeting at Duke this year under the direction of Major B. S. Read. The objectives of the society are to prepare its members to accept their future responsibilities to the Corps and their country, to stimulate interest in Marine Corps policies, and to pass such information on to the student body. Potential officers are given opportunity to become better acquainted and to share in the social functions both at Duke and the University of North Carolina. A future in the Marine Corps when their college years are over is the goal of these undergraduates.

Mechanized Magazine

George Hussey, Business Manager, and Douglas Climenson, Editor, discuss the coming issue.

AS the name implies, the DukEngineer exists primarily for the engineers, printing technical material along with the strictly non-technical last page—"Lub." Moreover, the magazine keeps the campus informed of what's going on "down at the building." The publication has grown in stature throughout the engineering profession and among other universities, selling itself and Duke Engineering to the outside world. Four times a year the engineers produce an issue with a staff of their own writers, artists, and financiers to capture campus fancy as well as national interest.

Pictured above is the group of writers, artists, and business managers—all engineering students—responsible for the publication of The DukEngineer, a technical magazine for engineers with their special brand of humor.

Society for Civil Answers

THE student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers offers to its members the opportunity to listen to lectures by prominent civil engineers. The chapter also makes field trips to industrial plants to observe various aspects of civil engineering. Among the plants the group has visited this year are the DuPont factory in Kinston, North Carolina and the American Bridge Company in Roanoke, Virginia. Anyone majoring in civil engineering is eligible to join the chapter. Upon graduation the members are then entitled to join the regular national society. Both the lectures and trips give practical information about the field the engineers will enter, which is the main object for the existence of this organization. The civil engineers as well as the other divisions of the Engineering College, played an important part in presenting the annual Engineers' Show.

Transforming Potential Into Energy

ALONG with the rest of the electrical engineering world, the Duke Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers has shown great strides of progress during the past four years. It is a respected organization not only among electrical engineering students, but also within the College of Engineering as an important part of the college. It has often pooled its resources with the other professional societies to present valuable discussions and lectures by noted men in the engineering field. A.I.E.E. offers a method of making a smooth transition to industry through early experience in a professional organization. The electrical engineers once again played a vital role in putting on the annual Engineers' Show. One of the main features of the show was a television exhibit which allowed visitors to the show to see how they would appear on TV.

Popular Mechanics

TO familiarize the student with the practical side of mechanical engineering, to make available the A.S.M.E. library facilities and publications branch, to develop public speaking ability, and to teach him parliamentary procedure and organization; this is the purpose of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. This knowledge is gained through field trips to inspect various industrial plants such as this fall's journey to the Lynchburg Foundry in Virginia and a spring trip to the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Company, the Chesapeake, Ohio Coal Piers, and the Mariner's Museum. At the Region IV Student Conference which was held at the University of Florida last year, Duke's representative received a first prize for the oral presentation of a technical paper in spite of the tough competition by the thirteen other Southeastern schools.

As for activities here at Duke, guest speakers were brought in from the different industries to discuss the practical aspects of Mechanical Engineering, and an annual softball game was held to provide closer contact between the faculty and students.

Premeditators of Medical School

FOR the first time since its organization, the Pre-Med Society has received the approval and support of the Duke Medical School, thus establishing a closer relationship between the undergraduate student and the faculty of the medical school. Dr. E. C. Horn, professor of zoology, and Dr. K. E. Penrod of the med school faculty served as advisers for the Society this year.

The Pre-Medical Society seeks to answer the pre-med's questions concerning medical school acceptance and future possibilities in medicine. Members of the Duke Medical School faculty and prominent Durham physicians presented lectures on vital problems such as "How Medical Students Are Selected" and "Preparation for General Practice." In addition this year's programs stressed the important roles of the associated fields of medicine, such as physical therapy and laboratory technology.

Norman M. Rosenbaum, a senior, is president of the Pre-Medical Society.

The Duke Pre-Med Society made a significant step forward this year when the medical school lent its formal support to their program to bring about a closer relationship between the medical school and the undergraduates who wish to apply to med school.

WDBS on the air. With these words another day of broadcasting to the student body by radio station WDBS begins. For nine hours a day the station offers programs of interest to all. There are news broadcasts seven times a day of local and international news, brought about by a recent hookup with United Press and the installation of a news ticker. Record shows of popular and classical music with Duke students as disc jockeys and complete coverage of Duke sports both at home and away complete the program line-up with its appeal to the student listener.

Stu Greenwald gives out with his fine play-by-play description of the Duke-N.Y.U. game for the campus station and the benefit of absent students, as his able assistants, Brad Craig, color announcer, and Perry Stewart, statistician, stand by.

All the work of WDBS is not done during the hours it is on the air. Behind the scenes making the wide variety of programs possible is a crew of fifty people, engineers, directors, announcers, and the business staff which must secure sponsors, both local and national. Scripts for newscasts must be written and records selected. Through these activities, WDBS gives the best in entertainment and news to the student.

Organizations Encompass Everyone

ORGANIZATIONAL student life isn't something that is easily depicted. Most of us are coming into contact daily with some activity of an organization. We have only to think of a few of the buildings on our campus to realize just how varied our activities are. One night in Page Auditorium there is the Ballet Theater; another night, a Town Meeting of student government.

In the East Campus auditorium we might have gone to the political rally before the November elections, or only a few months later we could have heard Eleanor Roosevelt, recent United States delegate to the United Nations. Any Sunday night we might have gone to a sing. But we know that this respite from the rigors of our academic learning is something we could not do without.

People crowd the stage, enjoying themselves at what seems to be a gala New Year's party, during the Y's annual Sunday night sing, "Come to the Mardi Gras," which also featured some excellent amateur talent and the best student soloists.

Jane Kirkpatrick bemoans the lack of attention from her moonshining men in the Bassett sing, "What Is This Thing Called Love."

Ardent student Republicans stage a mass demonstration in East's auditorium following the speech given for their favorite candidates, Eisenhower and Nixon, during the mock political rally sponsored by Bench and Bar.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the special guests of the Student Forum, lectures on the United Nations to students and faculty in the East campus auditorium.

Unseen and unheard, the electrician has a vital part in any production.

Miss Nell Rankin, mezzo-soprano, takes a bow at the finale of the second All-Star Series concert.

"Met" star Richard Tucker talks over with his accompanist the program to be presented in Page Auditorium.

Backstage in Page Auditorium there is preparation for the Hoof 'n' Horn musical, Anything Goes, presented at Joe College.

Dancers warm up backstage the afternoon before the Ballet Theater's performance.

ncert Series Brought ading Performers Here

ORGANIZATIONAL life isn't made up of just what we see on the outside. Behind the scenes in inconspicuous but important roles people are working that their ventures might prove successful.

The one who does the errands, the one who works behind stage as an electrician, prop man or make-up assistant all are vital elements of an organization.

Dr. James Cleland, Preacher to the University, gives one of his special Sunday morning sermons.

The Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Mrs. Saville, present the Singing Christmas Tree in the Duke Chapel.

THEN, too, there is the religious phase of organizations that plays such an important part at Duke. Everyone will remember the manner of Dr. Cleland in the pulpit, but there are other people who figure in our religious life that are often forgotten. The denominational chaplains, the leaders of our music groups are the forces behind much of our religious inspiration. Other activities—well, why don't we try reminiscing on our own: if important, they'll come back.

Chapter Four

Fraternities and Sororities

FRATERNITY or sorority is many things to many people. To the independent it is just so much excess baggage; to the outsider it is merely an organized form of social life. But to you who have become a part of the "Greek" system at Duke University because of a realization of its true aims and purposes there is a richer and deeper significance to your definition of a fraternity or sorority.

Founded as they are upon the high ideals of brotherhood and a faith in God, fraternities and sororities seek to further the individual through the group. Although the individual must accept subordination in the interests of the group, it is the group which explores the talent of each of its members. Perhaps more than at many universities the fraternity and sorority system at Duke depends for its survival upon the fulfillment of these ideals. The superficial attractions of pan-hellenic life, such as elaborate fraternity and sorority houses, and the social pressure that sometimes comes with being an independent, are not a part of the Duke campus. Their influence rests ultimately on each individual member. Their cohesion must be attained through co-operation and the development of a respect for fellow members.

You, the member of a fraternity or sorority who believed in these ideals, would remember the parties, dances, cabin parties, banquets, open houses. But these events would soon fade; only the people you had known, the friends you had made, and your own growth to maturity would remain. It was the true definition of a fraternity or sorority that would last.

No road seems hazardous to one accompanied by friends.

In an Effort to Promote Fraternity Cooperation, Council Governs Greeks

FRATERNITIES are guided by the Inter-Fraternity Council which is composed of the presidents and members-at-large of all nineteen groups. This year it successfully engineered a new fall rushing program extending over a period of two months, in which over three hundred fifty freshmen were pledged. IFC also planned and co-ordinated fraternity projects which center around social service in Durham. Projects for this year were carried out during Greek Week.

The finished product of the display shows a definite mathematical trend.

THE past school year was a busy and rewarding one for the wearers of the Maltese Cross; it was filled with events which gave us happiness, good times, fun, and inspiration. We think back to the Homecoming Dance (complete with Life magazine), the Pledge Dance in December with its beautiful Christmas atmosphere, and the Sweetheart Ball in April. Who can forget the intramural games, and Oak pleading with the boys to show up? We remember the feeling of unity that came with work on the homecoming display —and the Edgemont Party was enjoyed by all, even if the little girls getting attention were of the East Campus variety. We recall little events: the excursions to Dune's, the bonfire when the lights went out, and the bridge games in our new chapter room. Personalities stand out too—and it's hard to imagine a new year without them: Carey banging for order, Bill and his impassioned roll calls, "Sam" Ammerman bleeding us, Dean going East, and all the other seniors: Wallace, Gilbert, Lea, Larsen, Huffer, James, Van Deventer, Powell, Field, and Woodfield. The days are gone, but the memories and the friendships will always be with us.

This was, all told, a great year for ATO.

Freshmen get a glimpse of the redecorated chapter room at a rush party.

The Beta's own combo provides entertainment at some of the small parties.

THE year was 1952. Few of the Betas of Gamma Rho will ever forget it. Open houses started the fall social whirl, which was climaxed on Georgia Tech week end when, after much hard work, the brothers presented their homecoming display. The feature of the week end was a visit by a Dixieland combo from Tech, which held a jam session in the newly decorated chapter room. Setting the pattern for new, modernistic chapter rooms, the Betas installed indirect lighting, floor-to-ceiling drapes, murals, mirrors, and wall-to-wall carpeting. As autumn reached its end, the seasonal dance was held at the Carolina Country Club. The Christmas party, given with the Pi Phis for the Edgemont children, was one of the most successful in many years. The spring semester was opened by a Mule Party, held at the Saddle Club. Twenty-four new pledges were honored at a formal dance early in March. The Betas joined the Duke exodus to Ft. Lauderdale on the coast of Florida where headquarters for the Beta action was the Elbow Room. The strong pledge class will be an aid to the future, for Beta leadership in campus activities is no longer a goal—it has become a precedent.

As in past years, the Beta's went all out in planning for their Homecoming Display and predicted a rather hot form of destruction for Georgia Tech, the enemy.

Even Santa Claus attends the Christmas party for the Edgemont children.

The Delta Sig's display, the lighthouse, showed some original thinking.

THE big news of the fall semester was the acquisition of nineteen pledges, Delta Sigma Phi's largest pledge class in several years. These pledges contributed largely to the fraternity spirit and in return gained much from fraternity life.

The fall calendar for Delta Sig was dotted at periodic intervals with football victories and cabin parties, the two being much needed d versions from studies. Our intramural gridiron giants won their second consecutive division championship. After dropping our opening game, the "green wave" rolled on to six straight wins before losing in the semi-finals of the university championship. The cabin parties at Crabtree and the Christmas party were enjoyed by the social-minded brothers and their dates. A dinner dance at the Saddle Club was held on February 28, and the annual Carnation Ball was an event in the spring. A goodly number of cabin parties rounded out the spring social calendar.

The chapter won the fraternity scholarship trophy for scholastic improvement, and an honorable mention on the Homecoming exhibit which repaid much of the brothers' hard work.

The Delt's prize-winning float, which they constructed for the Joe College parade, is a huge blue whale, bearing the brothers' wish for "A Whale of a Weekend."

The Delt's Homecoming display predicts defeat for the Ga. Yellow Jackets.

WE, the Delts, have much to remember as we come to the end of another school year.

First of all, we will remember the brothers—their successes, their disappointments—for we shared in all of them. When this year began, all of us immediately pitched in and helped in the redecoration of our chapter room. When we finished we felt that we really had something to be proud of. Then came rushing, and we flashed our best smiles, shook hands, and tried hard to remember names. Our effort was rewarded by our success, for as we viewed our new pledge class we were proud. Of course, there were cabin parties, songs, and open houses. We'll never forget the week end conclaves at Jack's and the Saddle Club.

In the spring, we succeeded in winning our division prize in both the "Joe College Float" contest and Intramural baseball. Then came the "Delt Queen Dance." It was the climax of our fraternity year.

Thus we come to the year's end. We look back and think of the good times; however, we know we obtained much more. We shall always treasure the experience of being a Delt.

Jim Fulton, president, discusses some fraternity problems with their advisor, Dr. Leon Ellis.

The Confederate army forms ranks in preparation for the Old South Ball.

ANOTHER year has been completed with the initiation of a fine pledge class which raised our total membership to ninety-two, and memories of a great year which few of us will ever forget. Open houses after football games and cabin parties filled our fall semester which was climaxed by the Christmas Pledge Dance at the Carolina Inn. The intramural fields and courts were dotted with KA T-shirts. After exams the gray Conferedate uniforms were taken out of moth balls in preparation for our annual Old South Ball.

We have many unforgettable memories—Cheetah makes it after seven years—Tank and Truett busy with bowl games and pro offers—Whit gets in med school—Montgomery busy with dues, honoraries, and IFC—Hull and his one night stands—Baldwin and Crumpler challenge Goren and Culbertson—Social Chairman Johnson captures "Max" trophy—Snoop Blue Cellar dwelling—Chubby Jim Michigan bound—Mouse invades Ft. Jackson—Don Winslow pinned and setting speed records on trips to Converse—and as Wally raps the gavel for the last time another successful year has been completed by the Grand Old Gray.

The brothers exchange the eternal questions and answers with the freshmen.

The Kappa Alphas and their dates enjoy dinner in the Carolina Inn at Chapel Hill where they are holding their 1952 Christmas Dance in honor of the new pledges.

The Kappa Sig's and their dates spend a gay and relaxing evening together.

THE Kappa Sigs are proud that their local chapter contains a group of boys representing 21 states, the District of Columbia, the Philippines, and Mexico. So far this year they have won several awards, including their division championship in intramural football and the university championship in intramural wrestling. However, there are not only athletes in the fraternity, but some of the boys wear the key of Phi Beta Kappa.

This year there were numerous cabin parties, open houses and dinner-dances on the social agenda. Highlight of the social season for the Kappa Sigs was the "Stardust Week End," which included the Black and White Ball on Friday, a champagne-steak dinner on Saturday, and a cabin party on Sunday. This year the Ball was held at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh, and climaxing the dance was the presentation of the 1953 Dream Girl, Carol Smedley, and her court.

Though many of the members will graduate this year, and the brothers will hate to see them go, there will be many new brothers to take their place. It is a group which always greets the many returning alumni in a true spirit of brotherhood.

Formally dressed couples waltz slowly around the dance floor at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh where the Kappa Sig's held their annual pledge dance.

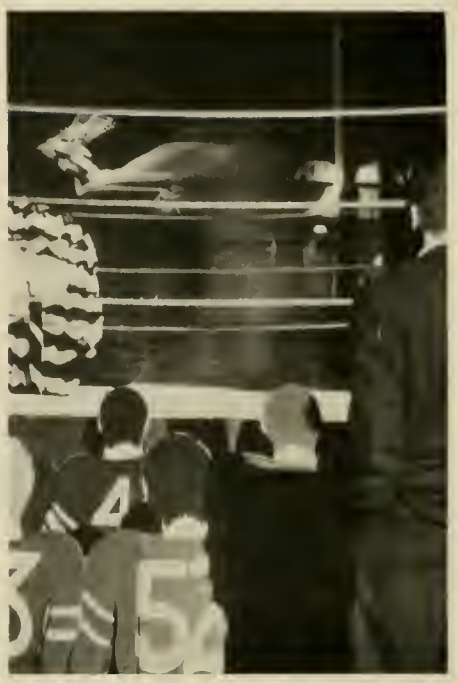
The Lambda Chi's display real energy while enjoying the spring weather.

KNOWING that a full social life is one of the most important aspects of college days, the Lambda Chi's began the year with several cabin parties and football open houses. Relaxation at the Lambda Chi "estate," a country farm near Durham, prepared the brothers for the grueling job of fall rushing with great success, for this year the chapter pledged its full quota, twenty-five boys. Meanwhile, the brothers went to work painting and decorating for the Homecoming display. In spite of their efforts they stayed up the entire night before the judging, working on their entry which depicted the frying of a Tech Yellow Jacket. Dinner dances, open houses, along with "Stag" parties kept the brothers continually on the move; time taken out only for an occasional glance at the text books. Highly competitive bridge games intermittently interrupted by over-enthusiastic groups of television viewers kept our newly decorated chapter and card rooms in constant turmoil. Enough Lambda Chis were interested in basketball to form four teams and the competition with other fraternity teams helped provide a deep spirit of co-operation with the bond of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Who's playing this hand? The Phi Delts are all great bridge fans, and whenever a foursome gets together there are sure to be plenty of kibitzers on hand.



Their Homecoming display attracted as many onlookers as a TV boxing match.

THAT variety is the spice of life might well be the motto of the eighty-five members of Phi Delta Theta, for a more varied group probably never existed on Duke campus. Their academic activities range from acquiring quality points to losing them and the brothers appear all over Duke from the football field to the chemistry lab and the dating parlors on East. Many honoraries have Phi Delts on their rolls, too. There are Phi Delts in Phi Eta Sigma, Beta Omega Sigma, and Phi Beta Kappa.

One of the most important interests of the brothers is athletics and there is hardly any function in the sports parade which does not have a Phi Delt on the program. They are at home on the gridiron, hardwood, mats, cinders, diving board, and baseball diamond. But the members of Phi Delta Theta are not one-sided. Hoof 'n' Horn, Pub-Row, the Choir, and the Men's Glee Club claim the services of many a brother. As a national organization the fraternity has more All-American athletes, Phi Betes, and members listed in Who's Who in America than any other comparable fraternal organization. With such spirit and all around interest, Phil Delta Theta faces many more successful years at Duke.

The combo provides lots of music and fun in the section and on parties.

The Phi Kappa Psi Homecoming display was a salute to the visiting alumni.

EVERY June, when the school year rolls to a close, fraternity brothers claim that it has been the best in the history of their lodge. Yet, for Phi Kappa Psi members, there seems a little more than the usual amount of justice in this claim. Starting off the year, the arriving brothers were greeted with a different chapter room with its new furnishings. Soon after settling down to the perennial fun and worry, the brothers were surprised to hear that they had an average that put them a few decimal points above the other fraternities. Then came the usual galaxy of parties, dinners, dances, and get-togethers.

Of course, there were the intramurals. Phi Psi always has had a spotty record. A few trophies were gained; a few teams were trounced by their superiors. Yet, win or lose, the teams were proud of their fraternity and always put on a good show.

With the shadow of graduation looming, the annual spring formal was held—a dinner dance—at the Carolina Inn. Then a few more parties. And finally, the seniors leave their remaining brothers. As they leave, they shall swear, that this was the best year that Phi Psi ever had.

After a banquet, brothers and pledges circle round to sing fraternity songs.

The Phi Psi's contributed their talents and manual labor in helping to redecorate their chapter room before the arrival of the freshmen and the hectic rushing parties.

The Phi Kaps go all out to impress the freshmen at their rush parties.

A COMPLETELY renovated section designed for the ultimate in social activities gave greater emphasis to 1952-53 for the brothers of Phi Kappa Sigma. Not only was the whole first floor transformed into a new chapter room and a music room, but the addition of "The Annex" to our housing facilities at last enabled all the brothers to live together. A housewarming was the first social event.

Fall usually means football, but to the Phi Kaps this year it meant a host of serenades to catch up with the brothers' activities during the summer. For the first time this year Phi Kap has maintained open houses every week end for the convenience of parents, girls, and friends of the brothers.

An informal dance and a cabin party started the year's social program. A Suppressed Desire Ball, at which they could dress to portray their thwarted ambitions, revealed the pent up personalities of the brothers. Successful fall pledging was followed by a formal dance for the new pledges and brothers. A dinner dance at the Carolina Country Club was the year's social highlight. Thus ended another year for the Phi Kaps.

At their dinner dance in the Raleigh Country Club, the brothers form a circle with their new 1953 beauty queen, her charming court, and the dance's sponsors.

The PiKA's display shows Homecoming as it might appear on Life's cover.

IN the fall of 1951 the Duke PiKA's celebrated their fiftieth anniversary in conjunction with homecoming. Adding to the festive occasion was the presentation of the scholarship award and the chapter proficiency award by the National Vice-President. In both fields PiKA at Duke led all of the other chapters.

In the spring of 1952 the PiKA camp captured first place in the "Joe College" parade with a float depicting the modes of transportation college students have used during the past century.

Homecoming displays seem to bring out the efforts of all of the members who labor into the night for over a week. After placing third in 1950 and 1951, the PiKA's huge animated cover of Life magazine won the second place trophy in the fall of 1952.

Aside from the many cabin parties and banquets listed on the yearly social calendar of Pi Kappa Alpha, the Christmas Formal and the Dream Girl Dance continued to be the functions most awaited by each brother and his date.

PiKA's serenaded a brother's pin-up in a most impressive way in the Duke Gardens. Candles outlining the fraternity emblem and floating in the pool were flanked by tuxedoed brothers.

A NEW school year found the Pi Kapps ready to enter the swing of school and fraternity life. The social whirl started with the usual round of cabin parties and open houses following the football games. Pretty faces were evident as brothers danced with pin-ups and imports to Vaughn Monroe's music. A crew took Charlottesville by storm as Duke crashed through against U. of Va., and on Homecoming week end the brothers ran that "crazy bug" display for an honorable mention. Two rows of neophytes filled the chapter room in the pledging ceremony before the Carolina game, and then all went to a post-game party at the Gamma chapter in Chapel Hill.

The Rose of Pi Kappa Phi, Grace Sale, was crowned during the traditional Rose Ball held at the Carolina Inn. Finally the Christmas party ended the semester's social affairs. The three Phi Betes led the fraternity through exams in fine style.

The pledge dance, initiation, and Joe College along with the weeks at Myrtle Beach and Daytona quickly ended the year. Suddenly after finals many of the well known faces were gone and another year of college life was over.

The Pi Kaps make use of feminine wiles to attract prospective pledges.

Those SAE's really had a good time constructing their Homecoming float.

SEPTEMBER, 1952, found the 67 brothers of N. C. Nu chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon returning to the Duke campus from all sections of the country. As usual, general confusion prevailed in and around House E for the first week or so, but gradually things settled down and the brothers concentrated on the serious business of getting through college, or at least staying in.

In order that the oppression of the academic burdens might be alleviated at frequent intervals during the year, the Social Committee scheduled a boistrous social season which included such memorable events as the Christmas Dance, the Spring Formal, cabin parties at Smith's Lake, Section parties, parties in the Duke forest, mid-week break parties at the Club, and those all important pre-game parties on the second floor of the section.

To balance off the social functions, the Phi Alpha Mario Lanzas got together and formed one of the best glee clubs in years; while the athletes and pseudo-athletes made a good showing for Minerva both on the varsity and intramural teams.

All in all, the 1952-53 social and scholastic year proved to be a most successful and interesting one. The brothers of Phi Alpha of Sigma Alpha Epsilon had enjoyed the events of the year but still looked forward to those days which were ahead.

There's nothing like a little fun and gaity in the section, and this crowd of brothers is apparently greatly amused at somebody's antics during a "Rat Court" session.

Sigma Chi's and their dates get together in their circle at the S 'n' S.

THE Sigs maintained a high position on campus, as they were led by Werber and Sommers. Tepe captained the 1952 Blue Devils, as Sommers and Caudle also distinguished Beta Lambda on the gridiron. A large pledge class was taken in under the new rushing system. The university pigskin championship was captured with Patterson aerials.

The Sweetheart Ball was a success at the Carolina Country Club; Brother Edens gave the keynote speech. Joanne Miller was crowned by Sara Martha, returning the Sweetheart Cup to East. The Homecoming display won more brass for the card room, and Sigs failed to win the Wheelbarrow Race for the first time in four years. The pledges formed the starting five for Duke cagers, and Bradley felt the loss of Groat when he left after his January graduation.

The Sigma Chi Open got underway with large handicaps going to Wagner and Aldridge. "Wolfgang" Pyle figured out the '55 exam schedule. Sigs fielded six hardwood squads. Pub Row was graced by brothers Northrop and Jordan. The annual Triad was held with the Betas and the Phi Delts.

One more year, many new angles, same old Sigma Chi. Farewell to seniors and to all an "In Hoc."

The newly crowned sweetheart of Sigma Chi, Joanne Miller, reigns over the 1952 Sweetheart Dance, which was held at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh this year.

Sigma Nu's relax in the section, spending the evening in a bull session.

WITH the coming of September and the great return to Duke, the Sigma Nu's got off to a fast start with open houses before the early football games. As the Blue Devil's ran off with the Conference title, the fraternity held affairs for the brothers, their dates and friends. The rest of the fall week ends were occupied with the usual get-togethers at the Rathskeller, Club 15, the Saddle Club, and other local haunts.

In sports the Gamma Delta chapter's golf team with Hood, Pritchard, Edwards, and Rose copped the University championship and the tennis doubles trophy was won by Lynn and Coulhurst. The fall semester was brought to a close by the Christmas party. With a new semester, the fraternity settled down to the routine before the weather warmed up. Talks of cabin parties, picnics, and the jaunt to Daytona brought expectation of spring vacation. The brothers returned to a newly-decorated chapter room. April was featured by the turnout for Joe College, and in May, the White Rose formal held at Hope Valley in conjunction with chapters at Carolina and State. Closing the year was the annual apache party. The graduating brothers will be missed by everyone, but Sigma Nu has seen a busy year which few of the members will ever forget.

THIS year, as well as last, was an extremely successful one for the Sig Eps. As a fitting high point of last years activities, the annual Sig Ep Ball was presented in Greensboro last spring with the five chapters in North Carolina and the one at the University of South Carolina. On Friday night a party was held at the Shrine Club. A banquet and formal dance at the King Cotton Hotel followed on Saturday evening. The high light of the formal was the regal crowning of the 1952 Sig Ep queen.

This autumn Sig Eps reorganized and made plans for the coming year. Chief among the plans was a revitalized social program. Weekly Saturday night parties for the brothers and their dates were initiated with great success. Dances and informal get-togethers were also in vogue, as was the ever popular cabin party at Perry's. Included in the fall season was the Pledge-Paddle Ball and preceeding banquet, given in the honor of the new pledges by the brothers. The annual Christmas party for the Edgemont children followed in quick succession with equal success.

Everyone looked forward with great anticipation to this year's Ball, which was held in April in Raleigh and was the climax of the year's activities for the fraternity.

SPE's "Joe College" is surrounded by scenes of the week end's activities.

"I'm a Ramblin' Wreck from Ga. Tech" is the theme of the TEP's display.

TAU Epsilon Phi was founded on October 19, 1910, at Columbia University by a group of ten men who desired to perpetuate the friendships they had made with each other long after they had graduated from college. With the same aims in mind, thirteen men in the spring of 1950 laid the foundation for Duke's newest addition to the fraternal ranks. Approximately two years after the founders organized, the "Lavender and White" of TEP came officially to the Duke campus. The night of April 26, 1952 will long be remembered by many of us, because two years of dreaming and working were culminated in a National Charter.

In this, our first appearance in the CHANTICLEER as a National Fraternity, we feel that it is justifiable to give a short synopsis of our achievements. TEP men have received recognition in all the activities embracing university life. Our athletes have won trophies in basketball, baseball, and in Greek Week field day competition. Since our main purpose here is to acquire knowledge, our brothers have not been lax in their studies, for scholastically we have held the Inter-Fraternity Council scholarship improvement cup for a semester. We have become famous on campus through our outstanding student leaders, and we feel that now TEP has earned its place among Duke fraternities.

The TEP wheelbarrow team poses before the Inter-fraternity wheelbarrow race.

The president of the fraternity proudly receives their national charter certificate, which was awarded to the TEP's at a special ceremony during the spring last year.

THETA Chi is one of the older social fraternities, having been founded at Norwich University, Norwich, Vermont, in 1856. Gamma Sigma at Duke, however, is one of the newer fraternities on campus, being accepted into the national in 1949.

During the past summer, Dick Claxton represented Gamma Sigma at the National Theta Chi Convention in Los Angeles, at which time 109 chapters met. It was at this convention that the Duke chapter was awarded the Stanford Scholarship Trophy, the honor given to the chapter maintaining the highest scholastic record for the previous year.

Early in the fall, Gamma Sigma underwent complete renovations in both the chapter and card rooms giving the chapter a new outlook on life. The social calendar included rushing functions, cabin and alumni parties, and several dances, culminating in the annual Dream Girl Dance, at which time the Dream Girl of Theta Chi was chosen. Another highlight of social events was the Mason-Dixon Jubilee. This was the annual convocation of the Theta Chi chapters of North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland. The Jubilee, which encompassed both business and social activities, was held this year in Richmond, Virginia.

Some of the Theta Chi brothers spend an energetic evening playing bridge.

During rushing, several of the brothers and the freshmen gather in the section to congratulate the freshman pledges that have just "shaken up" with Theta Chi.

A few of the ZBT's entertain the freshmen informally at a rushing party.

THIS year once again finds ZBT among the leading campus fraternities. The high starched collars which typified our founding brethren have changed to cashmere sweaters, repp ties, and white bucks, but dress is possibly the only change from then until now. Through the years Zeta Beta Tau has maintained its high standards and again this year our campus-wide attainment is quite enviable. In the scholastic vein ZBT has had two of its seniors selected for the ranks of Phi Eta Sigma and the Dean's List.

But scholarship is not the only achievement of the chapter. In intramural activities we have handball champions as well as successful football and bowling teams. In varsity sports ZBT has representatives on the soccer, track, football, and swimming teams, and many of our members hold officers and are prominent in the various student activities.

Among the social highlights of the Zeta Beta Tau social season were the Homecoming Dinner-Dance and cabin party at Crabtree Park, the fraternity's annual May affair, and numerous open houses for the boys and their dates following each home football game. The year has been an active one for the chapter scholastically, athletically and socially as ZBT retained their hold on the corner of the quadrangle

Pan-Hel Council Maintains Unity

THE composition of the Woman's Pan-Hellenic Council is much the same as that of the IFC, consisting of representatives from each sorority. Its duties are much the same and it also carried out a fall rushing season. In an effort to improve its rushing plan it questioned sorority members and new pledges to determine improvements in the system. This council, however, faces problems which arise because sorority members do not live together and do not have the unity found in fraternity sections. Each sorority, allotted a chapter room in which to carry on its business and social gatherings, finds itself limited to few social functions. Thus, some question of the worth of the present sorority system has arisen. It is true of both sororities and fraternities that, although they are essentially social groups, they do not dictate the social life of the average student. All these problems were thoroughly discussed by the guest speaker, panel, and sorority members in the Pan-Hellenic Workshop session, which was a climax to the Greek Week activities.

BETA Upsilon of Alpha Chi Omega completed a well-rounded program this year. At the monthly chapter dinners, the full pledge class and actives quickly became old friends. Over picnic suppers of fried chicken or spaghetti, affairs of interest were discussed outside of the formality of regular meetings.

Some of the discussion centered around the annual Christmas party which was held for the children of Wright's Refuge. Her a Day, March 1st, is set aside by the national organization, on which day every chapter performs a service for a particular charity. This year, Beta Upsilons worked with the patients at the Cerebral Palsy Hospital in Durham. The Cerebral Palsy Association is the chief object of the national chapter's philanthropic activity.

Alpha Chi Omega entertained and presented its peldges at a dinner dance at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh. Other social activities took place in the newly decorated chapter suite in Mordecai House. Some of these were Sunday open houses with fraternities, pledge open houses between the sorority and fraternities, and a supper for the Alpha Chis and their dates.

Though the space is limited, the A Chi O's manage to meet the new rushees at one of the many parties this fall.

TO climax the ten day rush period, Omicron treated its eighteen new pledges to a dinner at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill. This was only the first in a series of fall social affairs for the chapter. They gave a Halloween party at Smith's Lake for the Zetes, and in December entertained the Sigma Chi's from Carolina. Before the Christmas holidays the pledges gave their annual Big Sister Breakfast. After exams were over, plans were made for the sorority's big yearly event—the initiation and pledge dinner-dance which was held in the Union ballroom.

Omicron has taken an active interest in community projects this year. Many of the sisters have worked at the Edgemont Center and Wright's Refuge. The sorority's main project was to help out at the Golden Age Club, a recreational group of elderly people.

As this annual is being distributed, the sorority is preparing to say farewell to its senior members at a banquet given in their honor. These girls and all those who will be back in September will remember 1952-53 as one of Omicron's most successful years.

ALPHA Epsilon Phi is back on campus again with our wonderful pledge class of seven. After the lack of enough girls to make the chapter active last year, as it had been in the past, this year we are making a start toward resuming our former position. The first of the projects on our list has been to fix up the sorority room. We have had dinners in the room and have had open houses for the fraternities on West, Carolina, and North Carolina State. Then, too, there was a student-faculty coffee at which our pledges got to know members of the faculty. The pledges have had a dinner in their honor and everyone was present at the spring dinner dance.

Besides these activities, the members have been busy with other organizations on campus, Duke Players, Delta Zeta Sigma, CHANTICLEER staff, Modern Dance Club, "Y" social services, Pegasus, and the Hillel Society. Honors have come to sorority members, too, for one of our members of Alpha Epsilon Phi was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Delta.

Next year we hope there will be even greater success and achievement toward re-establishing AEPhi, as one of the most active sororities on East campus.

LOOKING through our book of memories, the class of 1953 feels that this has been the best year for Beta Nu. In September we began working immediately on rushing, and at the end of the rush period we had a pledge class of seventeen wonderful girls. The pledge banquet which followed soon after rushing began a series of activities. After-dinner coffees were instigated and proved to be very successful. Sunday morning breakfasts in the Pan-Hel House, dinners at Rinaldi's, group dinners in the Union—all of these brought us together.

As a group we played—our Halloween and Christmas parties were strictly in the "Holiday mood." The retreats in October and in April, although for the "outdoor girls," were enjoyed by all. The pledge dance opened the new semester with a Bang!

As a group we worked—throughout the year we worked on scholarship and on our national philanthropic project, Cardiac Aid. Easter we played "Peter Rabbit" for the Edgemont children at out Easter Egg Hunt with the Lambda Chis.

With the realization that this year is over, we have a sense not only of accomplishment but also one of pride.

DELTA Delta Delta has added another wonderful year to its many successful seasons. With that famous Tri Delt spirit we capitalized during rushing and made a big success of all our projects and socials. We are particularly proud of the Tri Delt scholarship given every year to a Duke student.

With the alums and Tri Delts of Chapel Hill, we celebrated Founder's Day and met again for the state convention. Christmas baskets for poor families and a contribution to Edgemont were two other local projects. After dinner coffees, serenades, dinners in the room, and the week end with the pledge dance and cabin party kept us busy socially. Contributing to our social life, the Sigma Nus and Pi Kappa Alphas at the University of North Carolina entertained us with parties at Chapel Hill. Tri Delt singing talents were displayed at the Pan Hel Sing, in which Delta Delta Delta placed first last spring.

The year ended with the traditional Pansy Breakfast, when the graduating seniors were honored. They said good-bye to four years of college life and a rewarding association with Delta Delta Delta.

There are lots of laughs in store for all when Tri-Delt pledges entertain the actives with a party and comic skit.

DELTA Gamma's primary philanthropic project is Sight Conservation, and Beta Theta chapter has participated in this national project by holding an annual Christmas party for the blind children and by co-operating with various civic organizations in projects for the blind of Durham.

Another project of the sorority is that of international education. Delta Gamma has co-operated with colleges in bringing promising students from other countries to American universities. As a result of this work, Delta Gamma has become a member of UNESCO.

During the year, members attended weekly night "coffees" and occasional suppers in the chapter rooms. Other social functions of the year included the pledge banquet at the Lamp Post, where the chapter enjoyed the company of the Province Secretary. In November, the chapter held a party at Smith's Lake where the pledges entertained. In April, there was the Founder's Day Banquet at Hope Valley Country Club. Also in the spring, the pledges were presented at the Pledge Dance. The Senior Banquet, early in May, was given in honor of Beta Theta's 1953 graduates.

CLIMAXING two weeks of rushing, Thetas welcomed their seventeen new pledges at a breakfast banquet held at the Lamp Post. The enthusiastic pledges immediately planned to work at the hospital as their pledge project and also to help the actives with their plans for several parties for underprivileged children. Beta Rho chapter also contributed to the national Theta philanthropy, Institute of Logopaedics in Kansas. Social functions have included an Open House given for us by the ATO's in their newly-decorated chapter room, and a picnic for the pledges held at the W.A.A. cabin. The pledges were honored at the annual Golden Triad Dance in February given with the Kappas and Pi Phis. Following initiation in March, a banquet was held and scholarship cups were awarded to the girl with highest scholastic average in the chapter, the pledge with the highest average in the pledge class, and the girl with the greatest scholastic improvement. Our national District President visited us early in November to inspect the chapter and meet with the officers and classes. In addition to the numerous social events and weekly meetings, the Thetas met weekly for after-dinner coffees and for monthly dinner meetings.

EACH year, Sigma Delta includes among its projects the sale of Kappa Delta Christmas seals for the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond, Virginia. In this way, Sigma Delta co-operates with the national philanthropic work of Kappa Delta, which is to relieve suffering among crippled children. Other projects include a Thanksgiving basket given through the Welfare Department to a needy family in Durham and a Christmas party given with the PiKAs for the underprivileged children of Wright's Refuge. Stuffed animals and toys made by the Kappa Delta's were included in the contributions to Edgemont and Wright's Refuge, together with the services volunteered by the girls throughout the year.

The two highlights of Kappa Delta's social program were the pledge banquet and a pledge dance. The banquet was held in October at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill. The dance was in February in the East Campus Union ballroom. Each week the Kappa Deltas held informal supper meetings and two Big Sister-Little Sister dinners were held in the Oak Room on West Campus. The pledges have their social responsibilities, too, and the Monday night coffees before assembly were given by them.

LOOKING back we see the chapter beginning the year by pledging sixteen fine freshman girls. With the let-down following rushing and mid-semester quizzes came teas, open houses, after-dinner coffees at which faculty members were invited to speak, and a Christmas party for Edgemont. Competitively the Kappas ranked at the top in 1952 by placing third in the Pan-Hellenic Sing and winning first prize in their division in addition to the award of the most beautiful float in the Joe College parade. The chapter displayed sixteen fraternity pins, six engagement rings and two wedding rings during the year.

Plans for redecorating the chapter room culminated in a hectic scramble to restore order just before rushing; however, the result is a striking tribute to the hard work of a few members. Kappas upheld their tradition of interest in campus activities by boasting the membership of W.S.G.A. president, two house presidents, two judicial representatives, and several F.A.C.'s. Among women's fraternities, both national and local, Kappa holds top honors scholastically for the past year. In the spring the Kappas were hostesses for the Lambda Province Convention.

The Kappas seem to be having quite a bit of fun as they exchange gifts at the annual Christmas party in the chapter room.

CLIMAXING a very successful rush period, Gamma Epsilon's first party was given by our new pledges for the actives. Continuing social life included listening-in parties, informal desserts, joint parties with fraternities and other sororities. During the annual visit of our District President, we gave a coffee to which alumnae and Phi Mu's from Carolina were invited. Our annual pledge banquet held at the Bartlett House was a great success with a lively skit presented by a few of our talented sisters. With the new year came the familiar sight of pledges with paddles to be signed, the pledge dance, the celebration of Founder's Day, and serenades. A special project for this year has been a hospital toy cart for the children's ward. At Christmas time small presents were also given to the children. Throughout the year Phi Mu's also enjoyed informal talks by professors at coffees in the sorority room. Initiation in the spring was highlighted by a breakfast. Another tradition was the party honoring our graduating seniors to whom presents were given from the sorority. Our cabin party in the spring has also become traditional as one of our year's last parties.

PI Beta Phi got off to a wonderful start this year by adding eighteen new girls to our group. Rushing was climaxed by a banquet for the pledges, and two weeks later each pledge received her "big sister" at the Halloween Party. Then at Christmas, group carol singing, our Christmas dance, and a party given with Beta Theta Pi for the children of Edgemont added much to the holiday spirit.

Second semester began with the traditional Golden Triad, given in honor of Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Pi Beta Phi pledges. Spring ushered in cabin parties, open houses, Joe College Week End and most of all, initiation, when the pledges became active members of the sisterhood.

All of this is Pi Phi, but beneath the gaiety and fun lies a deeper and more serious purpose. Pi Phi strives to serve and co-operate with her community and nation by helping with social service work and philanthropy. Through fun and service Pi Beta Phi offers its members the opportunity for a lasting friendship and an opportunity to reach the goal of the fraternity, that of "striving to attain a most noble womanhood."

SIGMA Kappa's principal national philanthropic project is the Maine Seacoast Mission, a charitable organization in charge of members of the clergy and assisted by the personal and financial aid of all our chapters. We also contribute yearly to send four deserving European children to special schools.

Among the social functions of Alpha Psi chapter was a tea in October, at which Miss Huckabee, Miss Jenkins, and Miss Brinkley were present. Miss Brinkley gave us an informative account of her stay in England last summer.

Other events occuring during the year were an open house for a fraternity, a Christmas party, and the pledge dance in February, when the pledges were presented formally to the sorority through the traditional triangle of Sigma Kappa.

On several Sunday mornings the Sigmas gathered in the chapter room for "pajama breakfasts," and for those girls who stayed here over Thanksgiving there was a party in Southgate after the Coed Ball. A cabin party at Crabtree and a wiener roast were also held to complete the year's social program which was even more active this year than formerly.

THE wearers of the turquoise-blue and steel-gray are active and prominent on the Duke campus. As a group, they undertook this year many worthy projects and enjoyed a well-rounded social life. Through its many services and projects, Zeta Tau Alpha has aided a cerebral palsy program, a health center in the Virginia mountains, the National Blood Donor Campaign, and many other worthy causes. In addition, Zeta Tau Alpha gives scholarships each year to students in the United States and other countries. Phi chapter also participates in local service projects by means of work with Edgemont and other needy groups.

The social calendar of Phi chapter included weekly after-dinner coffees, a dinner-dance in honor of the pledges, an initiation banquet, a senior banquet, fraternity open houses, gate parties, a cabin party, and breakfasts for visiting alumnae and mothers.

Bound by fraternal love, the members of Zeta Tau Alpha continued to work for "a truer and nobler womanhood in the world," and came nearer to their goal this year through working and participating in activities together.

Some of the Zetas are enjoying a game of bridge while others are content merely to kibitz at their annual Christmas party.

The fraternity open houses and rush parties are of great importance and provide much fun for both the brothers and freshmen.

Fraternities Add Zest To Social Life

As a change from the traditional serenades on East, this year the sororities serenaded West Campus with Christmas carols.

Greeks Emphasize Rushing and Duke Week En

IN the fall, with the incoming freshmen, sororities and fraternities come to the front of Duke life. Crowded sorority open houses in the red-brick Pan-Hel house, final parties with girls in evening dresses, shake-ups, and girls in the fraternity sections to help entertain the prospective members are all a part of that hectic season known as rushing. After pledges are won, the real year of sororities and fraternities begins. Homecoming time brings the artistic talents of the brothers to the fore as elaborate displays in front of each section compete for the Homecoming award. Thanksgiving with its wheelbarrow races is next on the agenda. The variety of fraternity pins painted on sorority mirrors increases as Christmas romances become serious and candlelight serenades dot East Campus.

A fraternity softly serenades a brother's new pin-up by candlelight in the Sarah Duke Memorial Gardens.

Woe betide the predestined victim when the fellas feel it's high time he enjoyed a refreshing bath a la fish pond.

YET pinnings and parties are only a part of sorority and fraternity life. Community service is carried out in the annual "Greek" week, when boys and girls do odd jobs in the Durham area. Sorority girls in blue jeans paint Edgemont, while the boys wield hammers and saw in repair work. Climaxing the big "work" week is an inter-fraternity-sorority dance. Close on the heels of the dance comes planning for the floats to be used in the "Joe College" parade, and many hours are spent trimming the huge trucks. Cabin parties at Crabtree, gate parties, and the long beach week ends in eastern Carolina round out another year of "Greek" life at Duke.

The new graduate dormitory is a popular spot for the fraternities and sororities to give joint functions.

Most of the fraternities' displays for Homecoming Week End were really major problems in construction engineering.

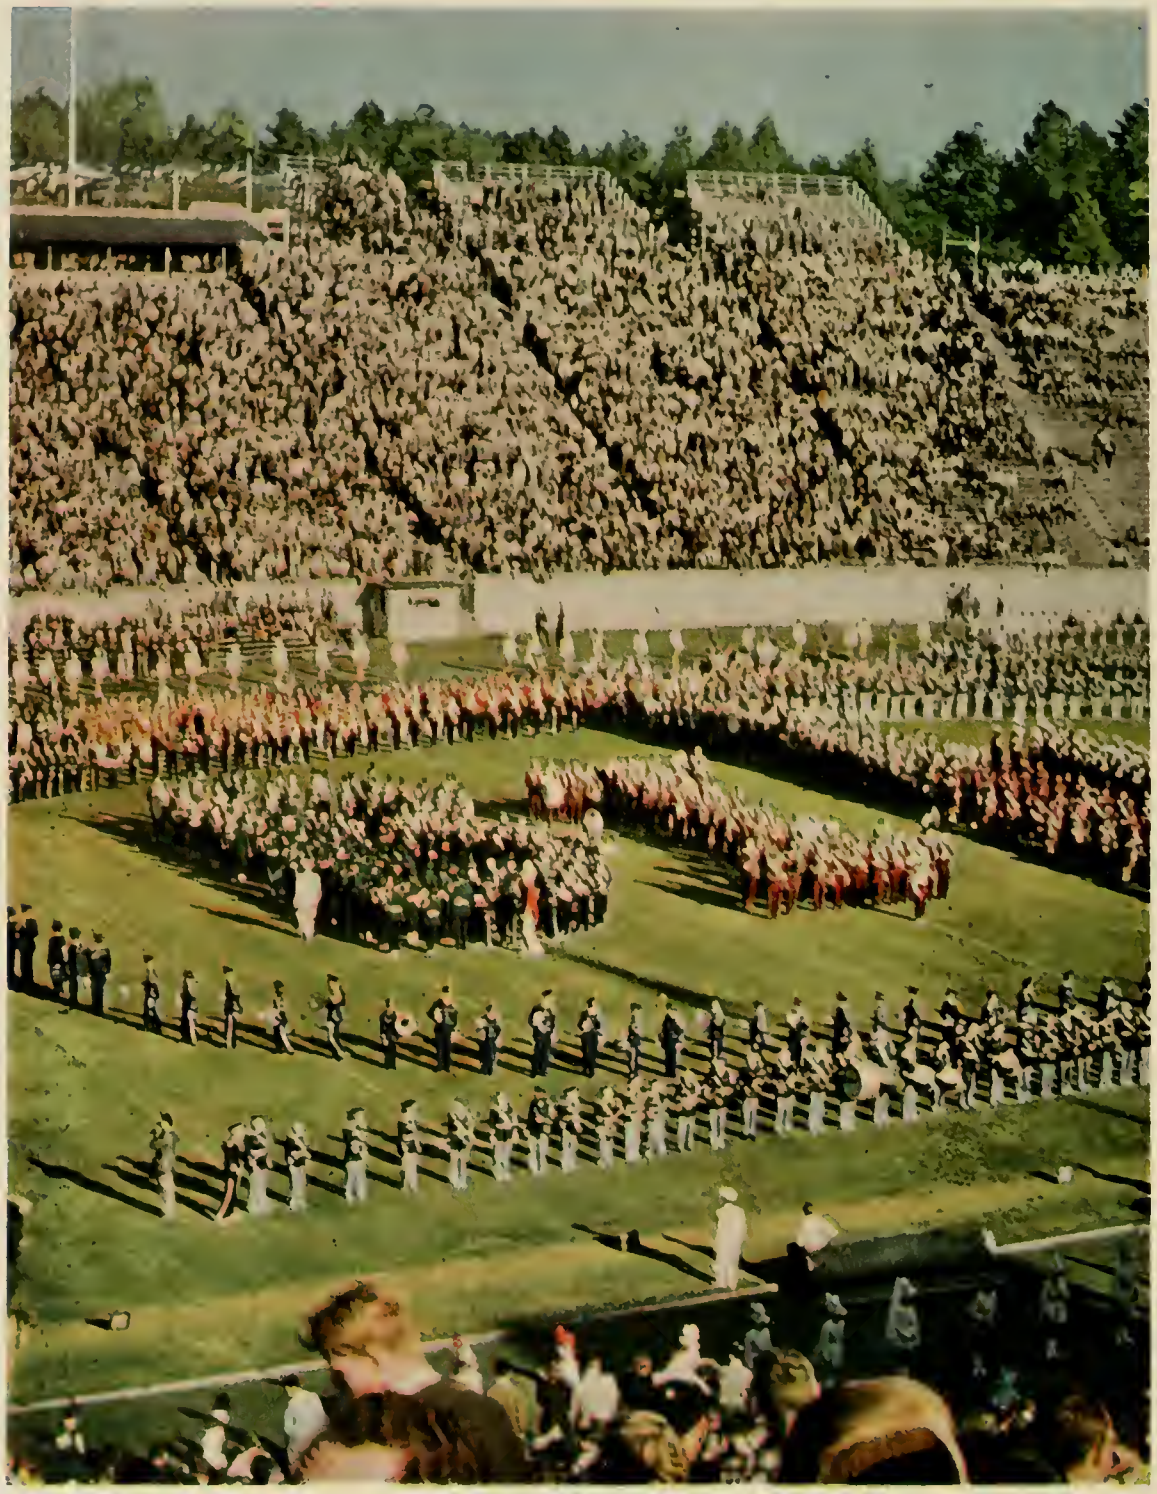
Chapter Five

Athletics



IT was a Saturday afternoon in autumn, and that could mean only one thing at Duke University—football. You found yourself one of the forty thousand spectators jammed into the horseshoe stadium. A few hours before these people had been normal enough, but now they and you along with them had been transformed into puppets who responded to twenty-two men on the playing field. You jumped up out of your seat as Duke scored a touchdown or you sat silently, heart in throat, as the visitors threatened the Duke goal line. You didn't stop to analyze your emotion. It wasn't just the mere winning or losing of an athletic contest, for its roots went far deeper than that.

From the day that you had entered college, you had been a part of a gradual process that had instilled Duke University in you. You came to know, to be proud of, and perhaps even to love your university. There was a mounting desire to communicate this feeling somehow, and the enthusiasm and pandemonium of football, basketball, or any of the other athletics released this pent-up emotion. That was one reason why winning or losing made such a difference. It wasn't just the losing of a game; it was a denial of an expression of your pride in Duke.

Victory and defeat, however, were subordinated in the actual participation in athletics. It mattered little whether you were a varsity athlete or engaging in intramurals or physical education. The final outcome was determined by how you played the game. Without fair play and sportsmanship the taste of victory was bitter. More than you realized, athletics were a part of your liberal education; a part that insisted upon a healthy body and aided in your growth toward a sound mind.

"Against all of these downward tendencies intercollegiate athletics furnishes an uplift into publicity in contests where the aspiring types of manhood compete for mastery."

JOHN FRANKLIN CROWELL

Coach Bill Murray, who instituted the split-T formation here at Duke, is shown supervising a calisthenic drill. This year, his second at Duke, he guided the team to an undefeated season in Southern Conference competition.

There's much more that goes into putting a football team on the field on Saturday afternoon than most people realize, for success or failure depends not just on the forty men who make up the Varsity Team.

Murray's '52 Conference Champions

Top: Coaches Murray, Hersh, and Caldwell spread out on the field to watch the boys practice a few head-on tackles; middle: Murray demonstrates some strategy to the team during the blocking drills; bottom: Red Smith practices kicking for extra points with some valuable instruction from Coach Falcone.

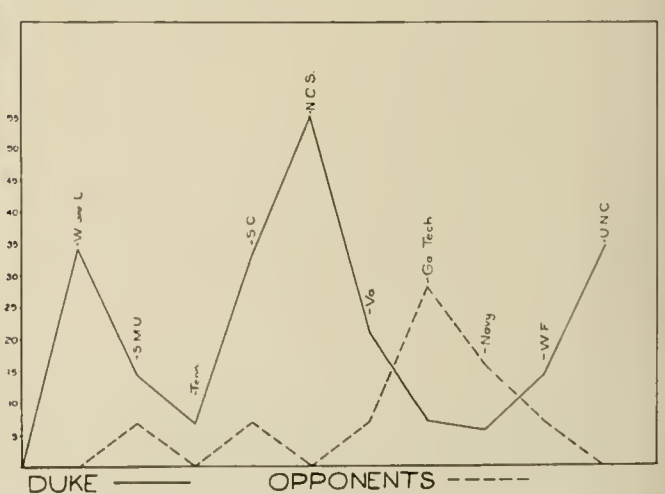
UNDER the watchful eye of head coach Bill Murray, seventy-five to one hundred hopefuls turn out for practice in September before school begins. By the time the first game comes around, a cohesive unit of about forty men has been formed. It is these men who come out of the tunnel into Duke Stadium to the roar of the crowd, but they are not the only factors in turning out the team.

Much of the credit for the success of the Duke football team goes to the men whose names the average sports enthusiast never hears. Behind Coach Murray is an able body of assistants whose job it is to see that he has the data available for making the right decisions. These men must know not only the weaknesses and the strength of our team but also the same information about the opposition so they can take advantage of these points and turn them into winning factors.

One of Duke's all-time greats, Ace Parker, keeps our offensive backfield on the move and tutors the backfield men in the finer points of the game. But those holes up front don't open by themselves, and it's the job of offensive line coach, Tom O'Boyle, to see that the offensive backfield sees daylight and sees it often. Coach Marty Pierson directs the play of the offensive ends in the important phases of pass catching and blocking.

Defensive line coach, "Dumpy" Hagler, sees that the defensive line holds the opposition while "Hersch" Caldwell, the defensive end coach, faces a similar problem on the flanks.

Coach Carmen Falcone's defensive backfield proved to be effective in pass defense, ending up second in the nation. Coach Bob Cox and his assistants, Ted Youngling and Joe Self, are in charge of the junior varsity team.



Some of the greatest exponents of the game of football have said that the hardest part of the game is the day to day punishment that takes place on the practice field. Five days a week the football candidates practice plays that must become mechanically perfect by game-time. All this is done without the roar of the crowd or the glory that is present on the weekend—that's where the real love of the game shows itself. The hours spent in the empty stadium under the watchful eye of the coaches are what builds a Duke team.

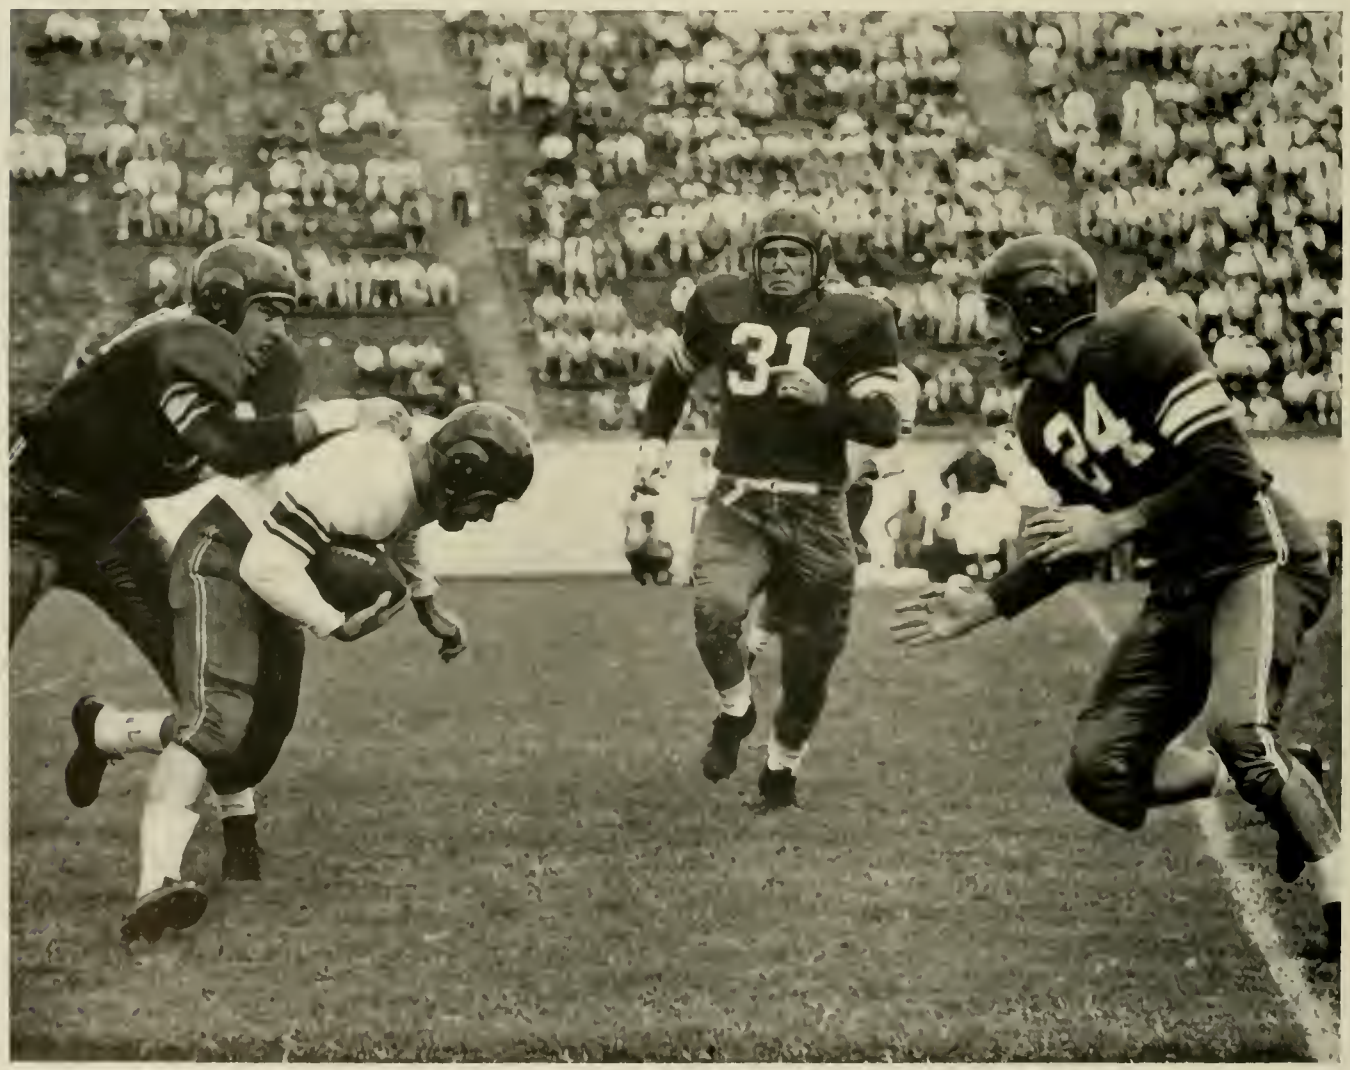
The Duke squad gathers on the gridiron in a last minute huddle with their coaches before the Carolina-Duke contest begins.

DUKE 34 Washington & Lee 0

Carey tackles a W. & L. man, who has fumbled the ball, while Meadows and Lea come up to recover the fumble.

WITH Worth (a Million) Lutz engineering the attack in the season's opener, Duke University scored in every period to rout the Generals of Washington and Lee 34-0. Both teams had first game jitters, but Duke took advantage of all the breaks. Behind sensational blocking, led by Captain Lou Tepe, Duke's offensive team scored in many diversified manners to pile up five touchdowns. The powerful defense stifled the W. & L. attack which crossed the fifty yard marker and penetrated into Duke territory only twice. Safety man Dick Sommers sparked the day by gathering in a punt and side-stepping his way 52 yards to pay dirt. Other T. D.'s were made by Lutz, Pitt, Kistler, and Charlie Smith.

W. & L. ball-carrier runs into Duke defense, Ed Meadows making the tackle with Red Leach (31) and Billy Lea (24), assisting.



Howard Pitt (82), Duke's sensational pass-catching end, dramatically demonstrates his powerful defensive ability in the second half of the Duke-S.M.U. game, ably assisted by John Carey (15), Duke line-backer.

DUKE 14 Southern Methodist University 7

With only a few seconds remaining, Pitt waits for the touchdown pass from Worth Lutz giving Duke a 14-7 victory

AS the first North Carolina football team to win a major college game on Texas soil, Duke turned back the Mustangs 14-7 under the lights in the Cotton Bowl, Dallas, Texas. Duke stayed in the hole most of the first half until Bill Keziah intercepted a pass to set up the first touchdown. With only three seconds remaining in the first half, Lutz took the ball and connected on a 9 yard scoring aerial to Pitt in the end zone. A stubborn Duke defense caused the erratic SMU to throw away opportunities to score. With 12 seconds remaining, Lutz started an end sweep but eyed Pitt in the end zone again and connected with a pass for the winning touchdown.

Red Smith (49), Duke's powerful right halfback, circles right end for a long gain with Bill Keziah (86), Duke left end, leading the interference. Smith took a pitchout from Lutz on this run, which set up the only touchdown scored in the Duke-Tennessee game.

DUKE 7
Tennessee 0

lue Devils Humble Vols
or Third Straight Win

THE powerful Tennessee Volunteers, who later went on to the Cotton Bowl, found their roughest afternoon of football in many a year at the Duke stadium. The score was 7-0, but that didn't tell half the story. The Blue Devil defense held the Tennessee offense to a total gain of twenty-five yards, both on the ground and in the air. The Vols could manage only two first downs, and one of them came on a penalty. Duke threatened repeatedly; however, they managed to push over only one score and finally got the winning touchdown on a plunge through center by Jack Kistler.

Duke men are caught in a moment of relaxation.

Caudle (37) gains ground around Duke's right end.

DUKE 33
South Carolina 7

During the Duke-South Carolina game, Red Smith (49) breaks off left tackle to carry the ball on down the field. He is assisted on the play with effective blocking by Duke men, Yogi Bonin (61), Charlie Smith (26), and Ray Green (43).

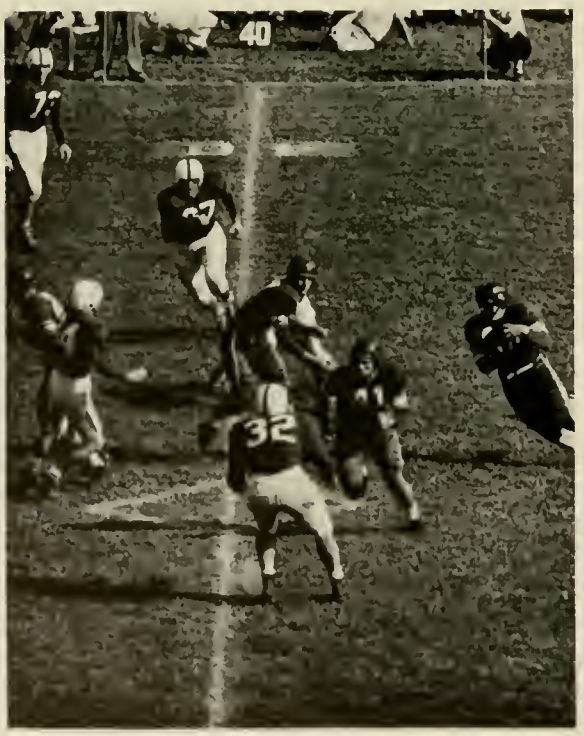
AGAINST the Gamecocks of South Carolina, the Blue Devils ground out a machine-like 33-7 victory by scoring at least once every quarter. Worth Lutz pitched scoring passes to his favorite target, Howie Pitt, for the first two touchdowns, and Jerry Barger directed the last three scoring drives. The Gamecocks' failure to master the brutal Duke defensive line play easily put the game in the win margin for Duke. Coach Bill Murray swept the bench clean of the forty players as the Devils rolled up the score which showed the best offensive attack of the season. The Gamecocks fought hard all the way but were out-classed by a superior ball club when they met the powerful Blue Devils who produced their most impressive victory of the season.

Howie Pitt (82), Duke's offensive left end, goes into the air to catch a pass against the North Carolina State Wolfpack, demonstrating the ability to break loose downfield which made him one of the most feared offensive ends in the Southern Conference last year.



DUKE 57

North Carolina State 0

THE powerful Blue Devils unleased an avalanche of touchdowns in the first 3 quarters to ride out an easy win over the Wolfpack. Duke dominated play from the kickoff on while the hard charging defensive line never gave States's backfield a chance to get set. Duke scored in just about every conceivable way: on long passes, on long runs, on blocked punts, and on long drives. Murray again cleared the bench, but State was helpless in trying to hold down the rough steam roller attack.

DUKE 21 Virginia 7

Piney Fields (23) outdistances the U.Va. defenders as he scores the clinching touchdown on a thirty yard run.

DUKE'S talented Blue Devils traveled north to Charlottesville where they roared over Virginia's scrappy Cavaliers 21-7 to maintain their undefeated status. It was Virginia's first loss at home since 1949. Duke not only smashed the Cavaliers' unbeaten mark but also their defensive mark which was the nation's top. The Blue Devils chopped the Cavalier line to shreds, netting a total of 328 yards running and passing. The Blue Devils were unable to crash through the Virginia line at will but controlled the ball through the first half. Virginia then sent an inspired ball club back on the field, but they could not get back into the ball game. Murray was non-committal but praised the fine Virginia team which never gave up. He called it another "Team Victory."

Worth Lutz (17) starts out on Duke's famous optional pitch-out play, the most consistent ground gainer all season. The offense demonstrates the precision blocking which paved the way for Duke's wrecking the Cavaliers' winning streak.

Burrows is helped off field after his injury on the second play.

GEORGIA TECH 28

Duke 7

Bill Teas, Ga. Tech's halfback, runs up against Duke opposition.

During the Georgia Tech game, played on Homecoming week end, Tank Lawrence (77) grabs G. Turner, a Tech fullback, as John Carey makes a dive across a Yellow Jacket blocker in an effort to be of assistance on the tackle.

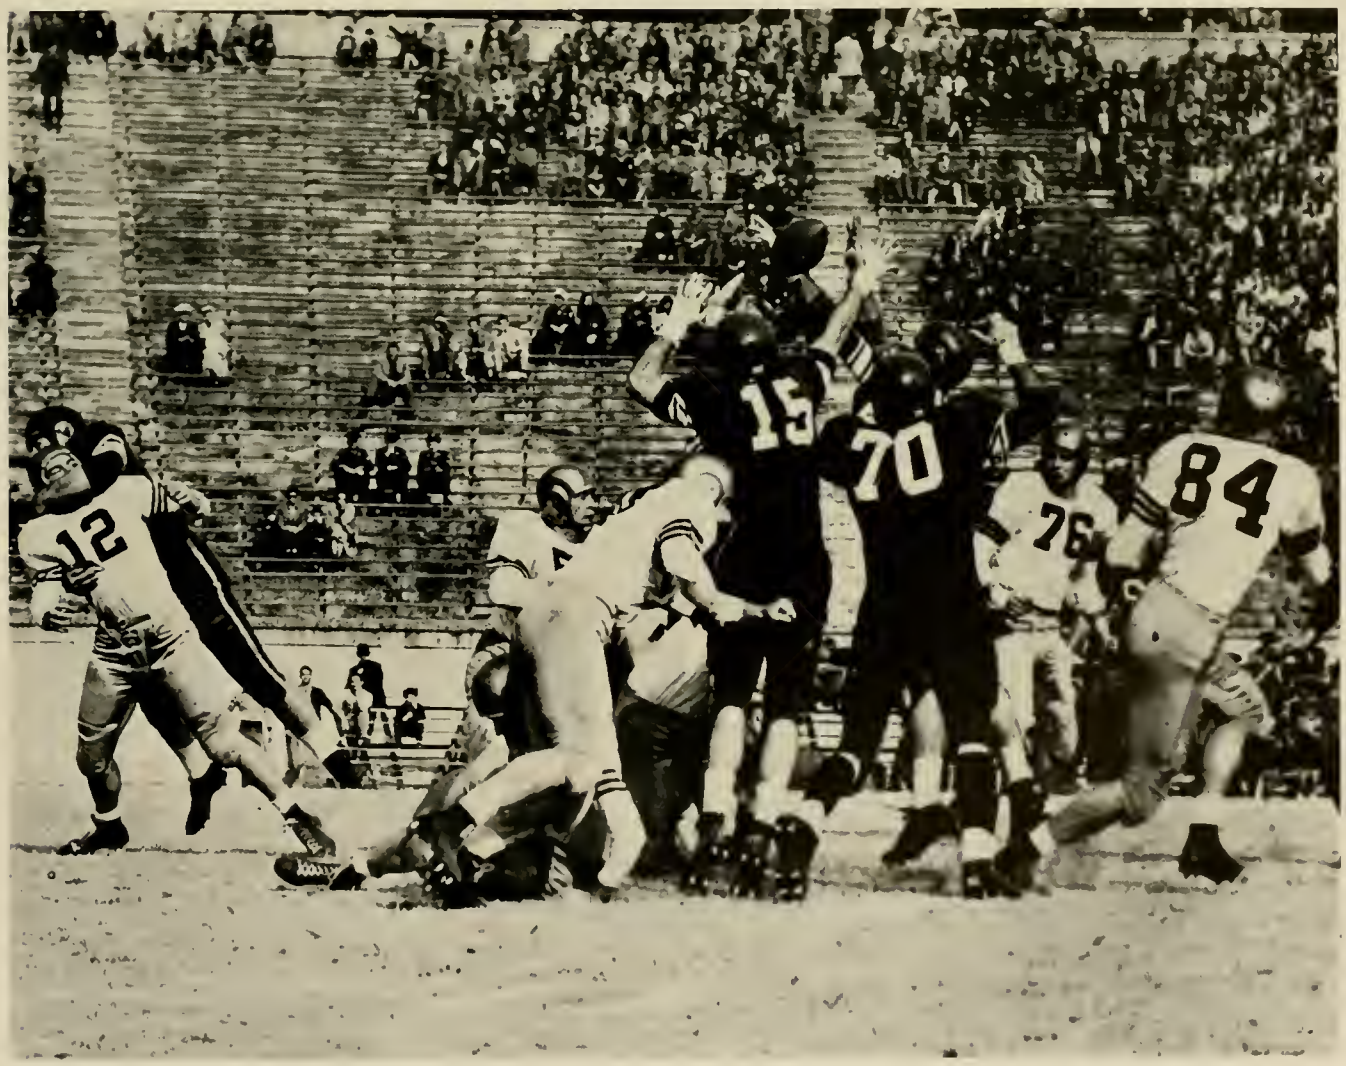
A MAGNIFICENTLY prepared band of Yellow Jackets from Georgia Tech stung Duke's proud but outclassed Blue Devils in a 28-7 decision before the Homecoming crowd. Duke, unbeaten in six previous games this season, was completely out run, out charged, out fought, and out smarted by the number two ranking team in the nation. Worth Lutz was bottled up by the hard-charging Tech line, while Jerry Barger put the only life in the Duke offense with a drive late in the game.

Caudle (37) leaps high in an attempt to break up a pass.

NAVY 16
Duke 6

The Letdown After Tec
Sees Duke's Second Los

A VASTLY underrated Navy team hammered Duke coming and going to score a 16-6 upset. Despite the numerous injuries, it would have taken the Blue Devils' best to move the stubborn Navy defenders who played their best game of the year. Duke, held practically powerless by just as good a defensive line as it has seen all year, was within Navy territory only three times during the entire ball game. Despite the 6-0 half time lead, the Blue Devils were outplayed and humiliated by a team of fighting middies.



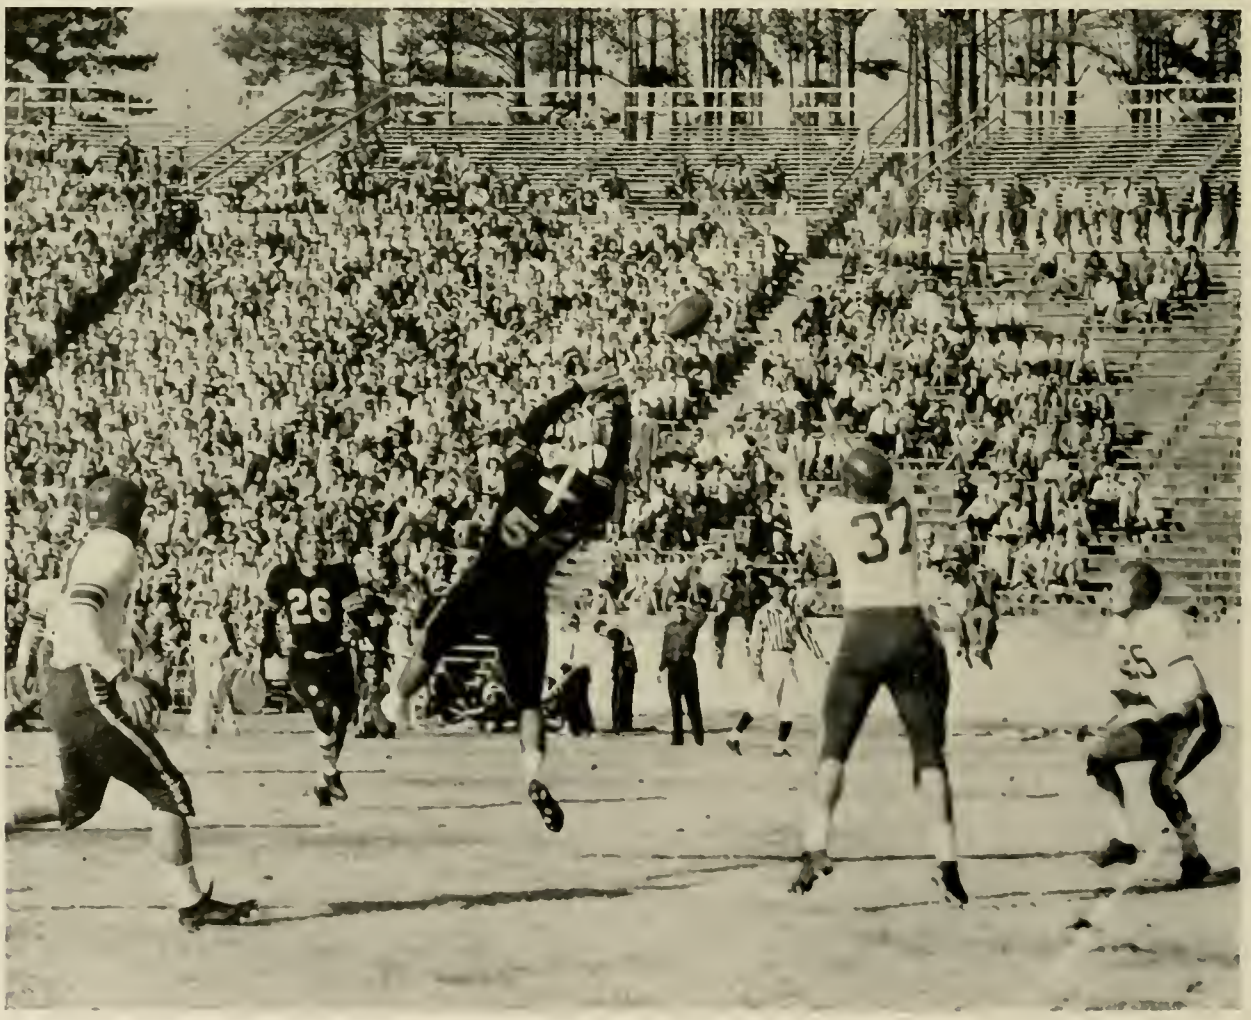
As the ball eludes the outstretched hands of John Carey (15) and Ed Meadows (70), Tank Lawrence smothers the Navy passer. The strong forward wall and a fast secondary defense were good reasons why the Devils were second in the nation in pass defense.

DUKE 14
Wake Forest 7

DUKE'S Blue Devils, with all of the bad games apparently out of their system, showed their early season spark in beating down a battling Wake Forest eleven 14-7. The victory snapped a four game losing streak against the Demon Deacons. Duke leaped to an early lead and staved off repeated Wake Forest threats. Even though statistics favored Wake Forest, the Blue Devil defensive platoon was back at peak form in the clutch. Coach Murray commented, "We are happy to win again," as he saw Worth Lutz run for one touchdown and Charlie Smith score the other. The Demon Deacons tried hard but couldn't overcome the early Duke lead.

Byrd Looper (41), after taking a screen pass from Worth Lutz, runs from his own goal line out to the midfield stripe.

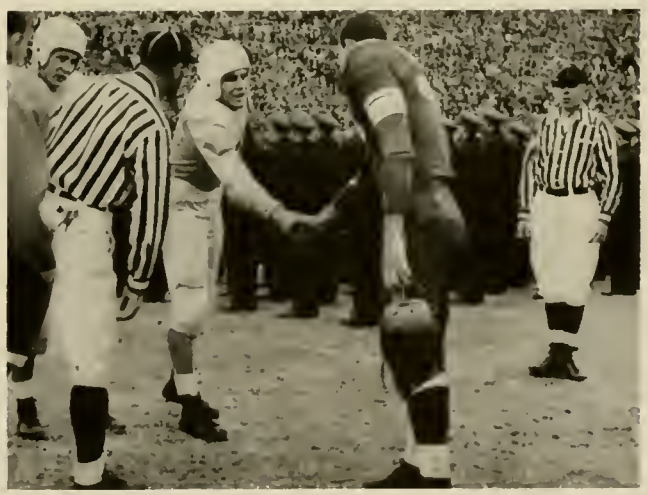
Lloyd Caudle (37) and Dick Sommers (25) in Duke's defensive backfield get set to intercept a long Wake Forest aerial.



DUKE 34 North Carolina 0

During the annual gridiron battle between Duke and Carolina, Red Smith, who scored three touchdowns, kicks an extra point for the Blue Devils while Duke's strong forward wall successfully holds out the Tarheel line from their attempt at blocking the kick.

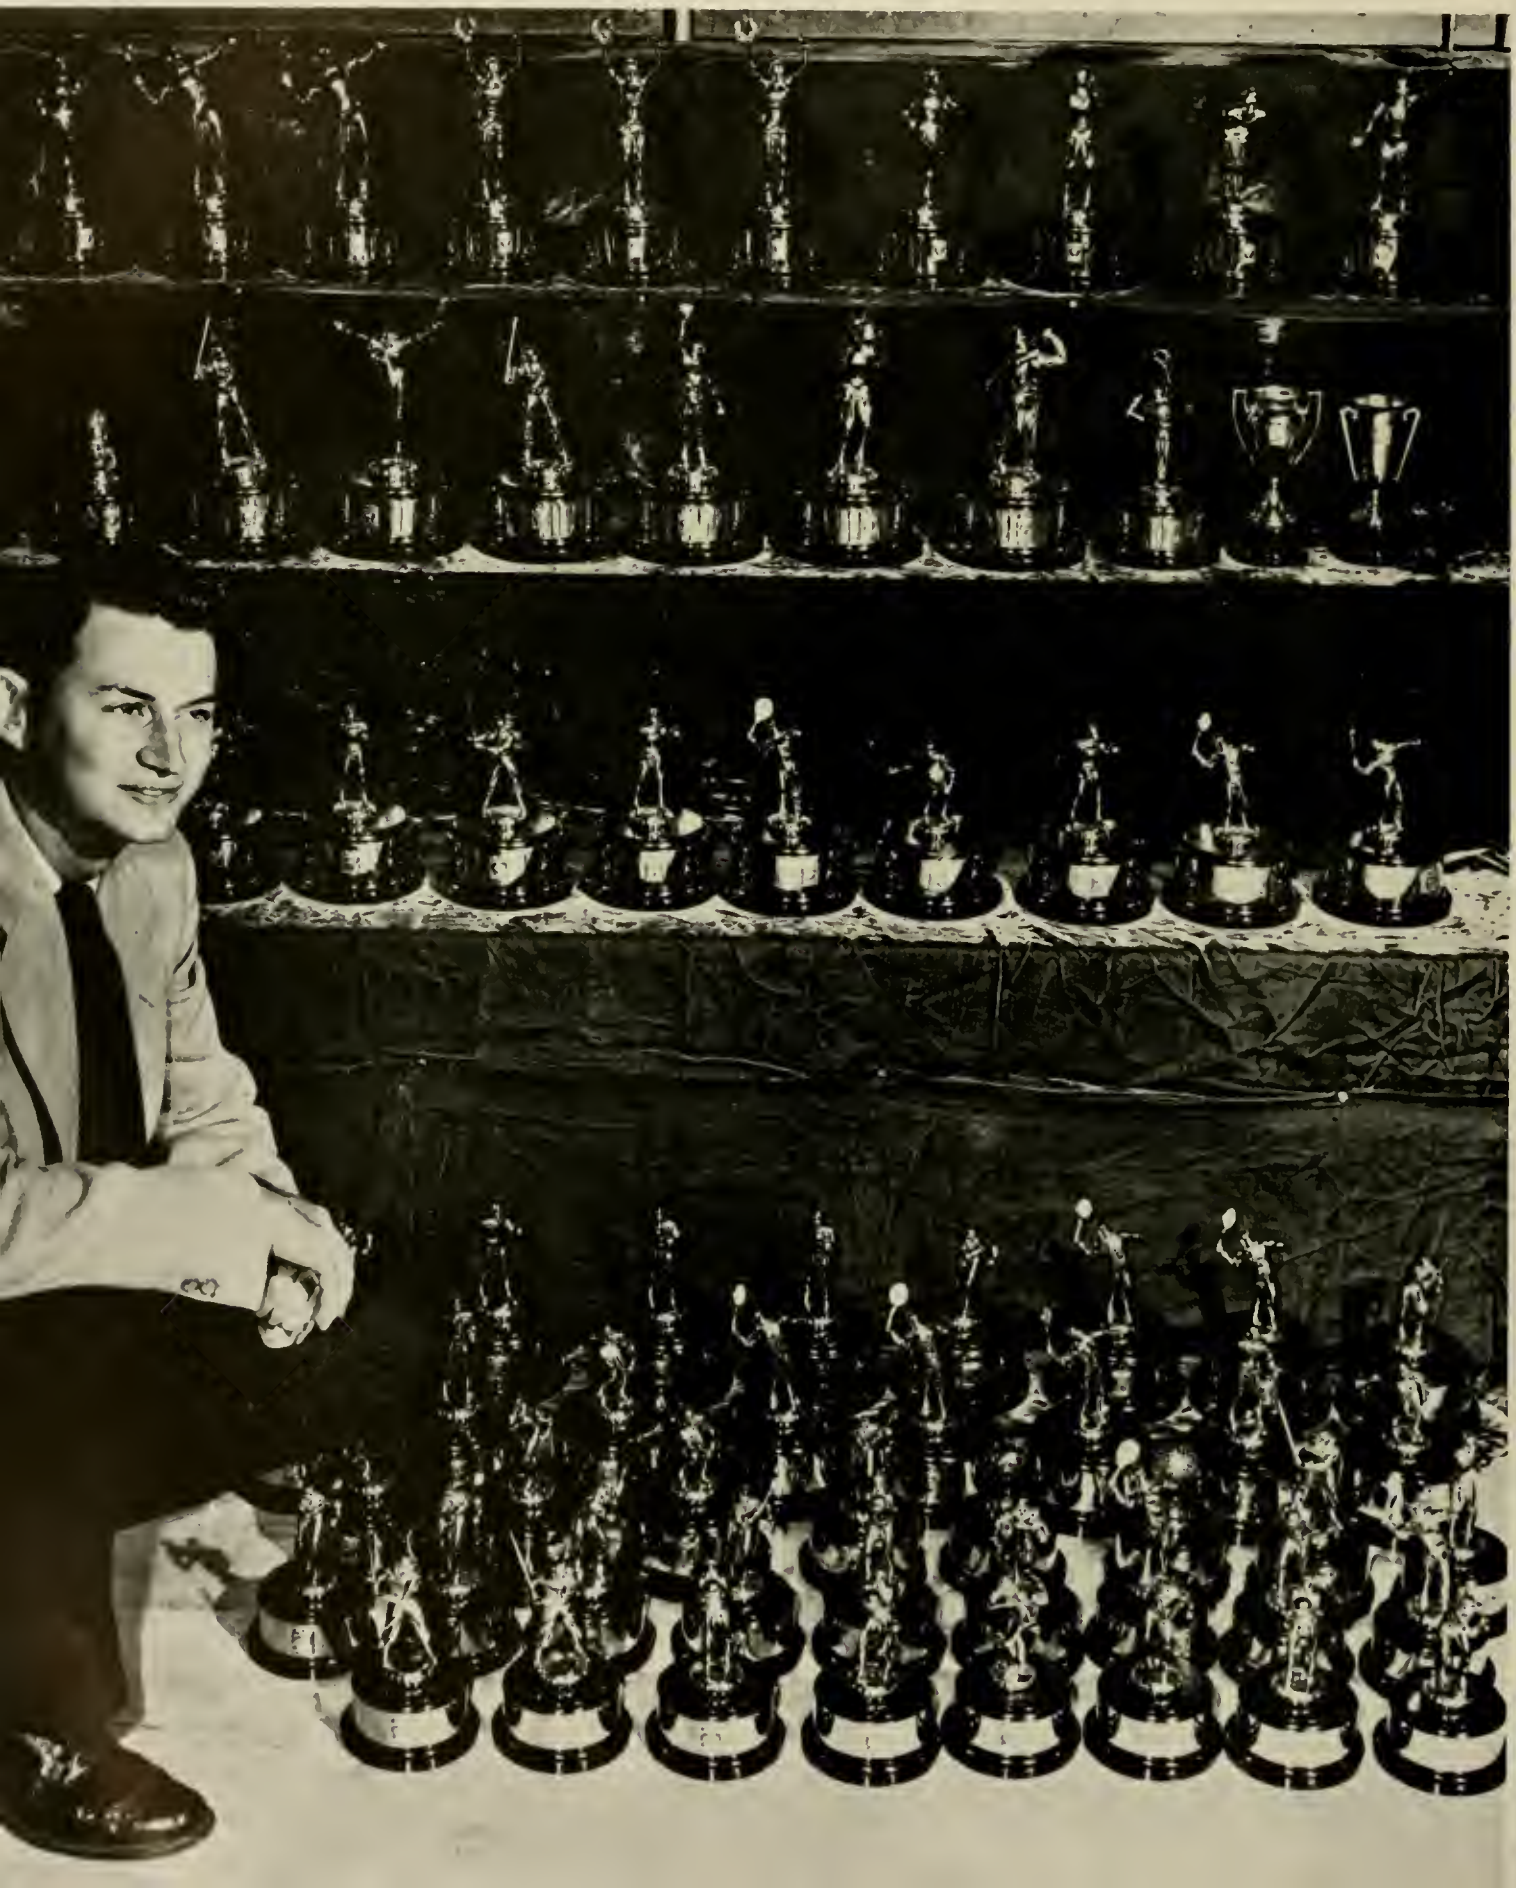
A VASTLY superior Duke football team scored the first four times it had its hands on the ball and closed out the season with a one-sided 34-0 triumph over North Carolina's Tarheels. Meadows played the greatest defensive game of his career and climaxed his bid for All-America honors. With Red Smith scoring three times, the Blue Devils hit their stride early and there was no stopping them. Other touchdowns were scored on a long pass from Worth Lutz to Bill Keziah and a one yard plunge by Byrd Looper. Superlative play all season netted Captain Lou Tepe the Jacob's Blocking Trophy.



Duke's captain, Lou Tepe, shakes hands with a Carolina co-captain before the annual battle between the rivals.

Sports for All, All for Sports

Brown Finch, the senior intramural manager, poses with some of the trophies that are awarded in the intramural competition.



During an intramural basketball game between the Delts and the ATO's, two Delt players, both of whom seem determined to get that ball, jump high off the floor, while their teammates and opponents look on expectantly.

During one of their required P.E. classes, some of the boys perform various stunts on the parallel bars.

Intramurals Offer High Caliber of Competition

THE year's intramural sports program was highlighted by close contests in every branch of athletics, as freshmen, fraternities, and independents competed for the large number of trophies which were awarded. The fall season was featured by a Sigma Chi victory in the University football championship. Bob Green, freshman, won the fall tennis singles while Lynn and Coulthrust copped the doubles crown. In handball Jerry Magidoff won the singles title and the Magidoff-Brown duo won the doubles championship. SAE won the cross country championship as Fred James led the intramural harriers to the tape. Fred Shabel won the horseshoe singles and teamed up with Dick Schwartz to win the doubles title. The wrestling team championship was won by Kappa Sigma.

In the 1952 spring track meet, Lee Brinson nips Lloyd Caudle at the tape in the finals of the intramural hundred yard dash.

Rapid volleys and smooth serves make this a lively game between members of a P.E. class.

Boxing can be fun as well as technically difficult, as these boys, who are taking it in P.E., well know.

Exercises in Brawn That Produce Physical Fitness

WHEN you came to Duke you expected physical education to be much the same as you had known in high school. From the moment you first took your P. E. endurance test, however, you knew that physical training in college would not be just a recess; it would be a learning process. Freshmen were given instruction in swimming, boxing, wrestling, and tumbling, while courses in tennis, badminton, basketball, and handball were offered to upperclassmen. When your two years of required courses were completed, the gym took on a new life for you. It became a place where intramural contests were held and finally was the place where you could spend that free afternoon playing basketball or getting a much needed workout.

Tiny Hamilton, always found around the gym, is in charge of the cage that handles all the P.E. equipment.

During a typical class period, the old gym on West campus hums with energetic activity, as the amateur gymnasts try to increase their skill and muscle power by practicing on such apparatus as the rings, trampoline, and the parallel and horizontal bars.

Win Streak Results in Tourney Bid

AFTER a slow start, the 1953 Duke basketball team began to make the Duke fans forget the loss of their star, All American Dick Groat. At the writing of this article, they had swept through nine straight opponents and seemed assured of a berth in the Southern Conference Tournament. In seven of these games the Devils entered as definite underdogs, but each time the team went on to win with great second-half comebacks. A typical performance was the one against Wake Forest when they overcame a sixteen point deficit in the last quarter.

The Duke team started off in fine style as they won four out of their first five games. Their opening win revealed a pattern that was to be repeated throughout the season as Coach Bradley substituted freely, and no one player was mainly responsible for the victory. Washington and Lee, Davidson, and Tennessee were the next victims of the Blue Devils, but Wake Forest handed Duke its first loss of the young season.

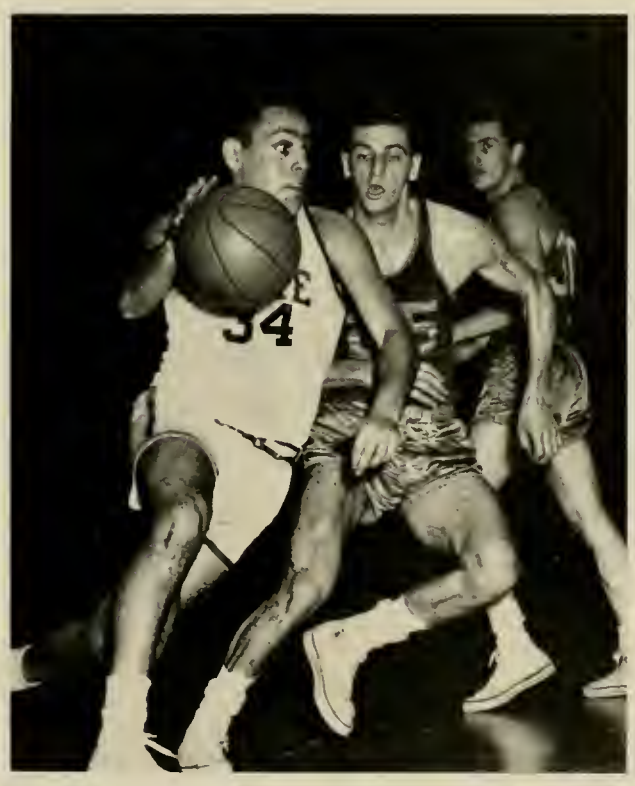
On their Northern trip the Duke cagers failed to win against George Washington and Temple. Coach Bradley had to be hospitalized on account of illness after the George Washington game. The Blue Devils emerged from the Dixie Classic with a one and two record. Starting the new year, they defeated the South Carolina quintet, but could not keep pace with the N. C. State Wolfpack in the Duke Indoor Stadium. The Devils then went on to take V.M.I. and McCrary. In the Navy game here at the Indoor Stadium Duke gave indications of their real strength as they won from Navy 78-73 after trailing for most of the game.

Rudy D'Emilio (15) and Fred Shabel (34) go up to take a rebound off the backboard in the Duke-Navy game.

Coach Harold Bradley and team manager Charles Barr talk over some problems involved in turning out a polished basketball team.

The Indoor Stadium echoes with cheers and cries from the spectators and cheerleaders as Duke's cagemen score again.

During the short time-out Coach Bradley gives advice to the Duke five before they go back on the court.



Fred Shabel, Duke guard, shows ball-handling skill as he dribbles around a defender in the Duke-Navy game.

With Bill Reigel at forward, Marv Decker rebounding well at center, and the steadying influence of Fred Shabel at guard, Duke found itself.

Reserve Strength Plays Important Part in Wins

Bernie Janicki and Rudy D'Emilio continued to be important cogs in the Duke attack, and such new faces as Joe Belmont and Ronny Mayer saw action frequently and often came in to pull Duke through tight spots. The rejuvenated Big Blue took three successive thrillers as they downed the Mountaineers of West Virginia 91-85, the New York University Violets 89-82, and Carolina's Tarheels 95-89 before packed houses in the Duke Indoor Stadium.

Lou Tepe receives the Center Theater's most valuable football player award. Lou also received the much coveted Jacobs' Blocking Trophy.

Duke Lambasts State F
Second Year at Coliseu

The Dukes jumped to sixth place in the Southern Conference standings atoning for an earlier loss by beating a determined George Washington team 83-80. In a tense overtime battle, the Devils came from behind again to edge Wake Forest 101-99 as Rudy E'Emilio sank a driving layup in the waning seconds of the ball-game. As the yearbook goes to press, Duke has just run its winning streak to nine straight by dropping the favored Wolfpack of State College 84-82 to climax a long uphill battle for a tournament berth. They have now taken first place in the big four. Bill Reigel dropped twenty-nine points to run his average over sixteen points per game with D'Emilio and Janicki close behind. With four games left and a 9-3 conference record, the fighting Blue Devils look good for a conference berth; but win or lose, they have proven themselves a great team with a fighting heart.

An exciting moment in the Navy game, as Janicki (20) attempts a hook shot.

Rudy D'Emilio leaps high under the basket to take a rebound from Navy.

During the time out, coach Bradley and the team go over some new strategy before they go back on the floor for the next quarter.

Coombs Closes With Championship

Miracle of Three Wins In Twelve Hours Brings Title

IN completing his 24th and final year at the helm of Duke's baseball team, Jack Coombs, Duke's "grand old man of baseball," put the finishing touches on his brilliant coaching career and guided his 1952 Blue Devils to the Southern Conference Crown, and then all the way to the N.C.A.A. tournament at Omaha, Nebraska. In his last season the "Old Master" bowed out with a 31-7 record for the year, bringing his overall record at Duke to an impressive 378-170 won-lost total. A tribute to his coaching and influence, Duke pulled a baseball miracle when they captured three games within less than twelve hour periods to retain their Southern Conference title. Coach Coombs listened from the hospital as his charges eliminated George Washington in the afternoon semifinals of the Southern Conference tourney.

Coach Coombs, now retired after 24 years at Duke, directs the team from his seat in the dugout.

Bob Davis, the Big Four's leading hurler, displays the form which earned him an envied 6-0 record in 1952.

The Devils went on to sweep a double header and the crown from N. C. State the same night. With "Colby Jack" out of the hospital, Duke traveled to Kannapolis, N. C., where they won the district 3, N.C.A.A. title by beating Tennessee, Rollins, and Florida, thereby qualifying for the national tourney at Omaha. The Blue Devils, now at full strength, showed the kind of pitching and power hitting that brought them the Southern Conference crown. In Omaha, Duke came through the first round against Oregon State but fell to tough Penn State and Western Michigan in the quarter and semi-finals respectively.

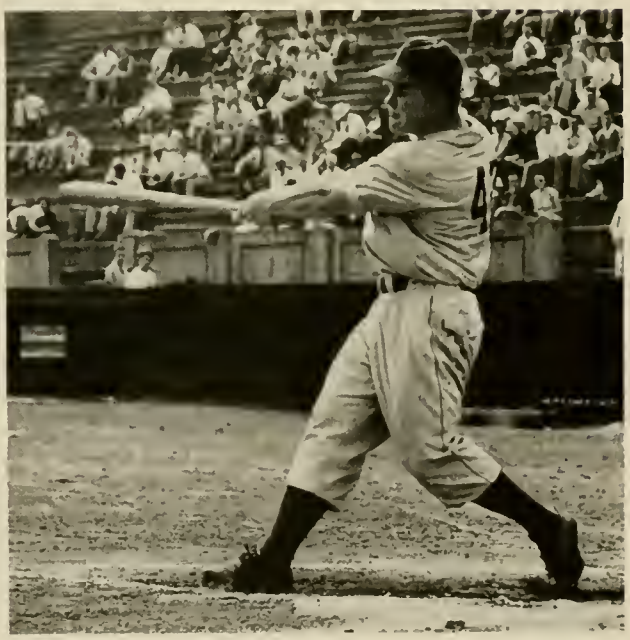
Duke's infield, one of the best college ones in the country both at bat and in the field, is composed of, from left, Bill Werber (first base), Billy Lea (second base), Dick Groat (short stop), and John Gibbons (third base).

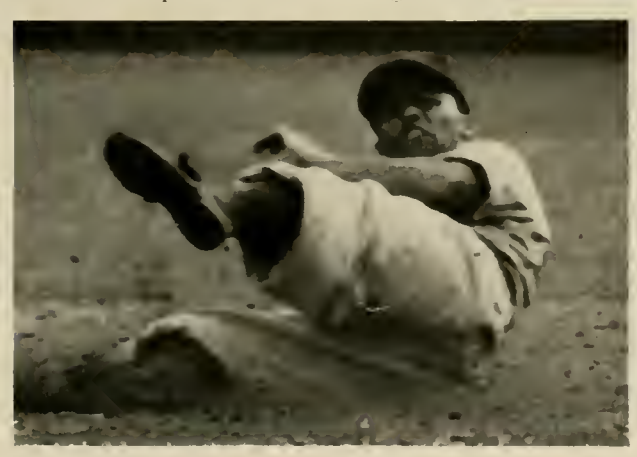
Joe Lewis unleashes one of his fast balls that made him an effective and dependable pitcher among the Big Four last year. This skill led him to a record of five wins and one loss, placing him second to his teammate, Bob Davis, in the won and lost percentages.

The Duke team gathers around home plate to welcome Red Smith, Duke's leading hitter last season, after a home run over the right field fence, which drove in the first two runs of the Duke-Carolina game in Chapel Hill.



Red Smith, Duke outfielder, lashes out another base hit.

Benny Cavaliere, speedy Duke centerfielder, raises the dust with his spikes as he does a long slide into third base.



Duke's infield centered mainly around All-Americans Dick Groat and Bill Werber. Groat combined his fine ball-hawking fielding talents with a lusty .371 batting average to make everyone's baseball All-American. Werber contributed the long ball hitting needed in the infield along with a healthy .309 batting average to join Groat on the All-American Club.

Rout of Tarheels Tops Track Season

Shankle Shines As High Point Man in All Meets

DUKE'S 1952 track team, under Coach Bob Chambers, salvaged a relatively mediocre season by turning steam on a strong U.N.C. aggregation by 76-55—the first win against the Tarheels since 1946. Making the prospects look brighter for the future was the freshman cinder star Joel Shankle who turned in stellar performances consistently— topping them all by taking four firsts against U.N.C. Along with Shankle, who was high scorer in every Duke meet, dash-man Henry Poss and versatile John Tate contributed quite a few points during the year.

Beside the win over U.N.C., Duke's other big feather was the runner up spot they won at the Southern Conference outdoor games. Here again Shankle took individual scoring honors for the games against the best the conference had to offer.

As the year-book goes to press, it looks like the 1953 Blue Devil thinclads will be able to improve upon last year's record. Traveling to Chapel Hill for the Southern Conference indoor games, the team scored thirty-four points to far outdistance its nearest rival. Led by Captain John Tate, who won the 440 and 880 yard events, Durham Lawshe, who won the shot-put, and high point man Joel Shankle, who copped points in his specialties, the high jump, broad jump, and hurdles, they looked impressive in the season's opener. Shankle was particularly outstanding in scoring for the Devils, while Tate's finishes brought Duke to victory.

Taking the lead, John Tate does a flying leap over one of the low hurdles in the dual meet against Princeton. Tate is one of the top quarter mile runners in this country, and therefore one of the valuable men on the Duke team.

Coach Bob Chambers and Henry Poss, captain of the '52 squad, take time off from practice to discuss the outcome of the last meet.

J. Shankle, versatile track star, shows one of his specialties, the broad jump.

Lacrosse Men Rank Sixth in Nation

Bickel (30) demonstrates All-American defense play.

DUKE'S 1952 Lacrosse team dealt with a tough schedule to post an impressive 7-3 record. The stickmen lost to Maryland, Rennsalaer Polytech, and Mount Washington, but downed first ranked Princeton (9-4) and other strong teams to be ranked sixth in the nation and second in the South.

Bob Bickel Heads List O
Four Duke All-American

The team was built around a nucleus of four All-Americans. For the second time in as many years, Bob Bickel was honored by being named to the first string defense post. Captain Don Bafford and Dan Peacock were named to the second team. Brooke Cottman was given an honorable mention at attack to round out the quartet. The 1953 team started off in auspicious fashion as they won their three games during the first week of the season.

Duke attack man, J. Barry (83), flashes a smile of triumph as he sends another powerful shot into the cage for a Duke score.

Duke Gains Conference Team Title

Coach Hendrix talks to co-captains, Schellenger and Deimling, while the manager, C. Levergood, looks on.

A YOUNG but potent Duke 1951 tennis team compiled an impressive 11-3 record, outstroking several of the ranking tennis powers in the country.

The Blue Devils coached by James Hendrix swung South early in the season edging the University of Florida 5-4. They continued their winning ways at home scoring over strong Dartmouth, Kalamazoo, and William and Mary. Duke climaxed the season with a win over rival University of North Carolina 5-4, copping the Southern Conference title. The netmen's freshmen stars, Dave Schimmel and Buzzy Hettleman, won the deciding match in the Carolina victory with a three set win in doubles.

Golf Team Wins Ten Consecutively

Ellis P. Hagler is coach of the Duke varsity golf team and an assistant football coach.

BEGINNING his twentieth season at the helm of the Duke golf team, Coach Dumpy Hagler's Blue Devils headed South, beating South Carolina, The Citadel, and Rollins before being tied by a University of Florida team $13\frac{1}{2}$-$13\frac{1}{2}$.

Success Climaxes Hagler Twentieth Year as Coac

Returning home, the Blue Devils outstroked an impressive list of opponents for 10 straight matches. They holed out ahead of Harvard, Virginia, Navy, and Ohio University. They ended the season with a 16-3-1 record as they took both State and Wake Forest in Big Four play.

Tankmen Capture Seven Victories

Tom Todd exhibits the form which made him an outstanding breaststroke contender on the Duke swimming team.

COACH "Jack" Person's 1952 tankers successfully swam their way to a season's record of seven wins against only two defeats. The Blue Devils opened the season with a win over William and Mary, and swam past Georgetown's Hoyas to the tune of 64-20 before dropping one to a strong U.N.C. aggregate. In their 43½-40½ win over Virginia Military Duke's Wes Haskell turned in a sparkling performance in the 200 yard breaststroke. The mermen went on to defeat Virginia Tech, University of South Carolina, Clemson, and Georgia Tech to complete the season.

Matmen Are Victors in State Again

The members of the Duke wrestling team are, from left to right, first row: R. Burrell, Captain, A. Rowe, J. Roth, P. Landau, G. Raimondo, R. Rehor. Second row: C. Gearhart, R. Levine, L. A couple of team members practice some holds while others watch.

AS the yearbook goes to press, Duke's 1953 wrestling team shows prospects of having its best season in many years. Coach Carmen Falcone's matmen have come out on top in three tough matches, downing Washington and Lee, University of North Carolina, and Davidson. Jim Roth, Captain Bob Burrell, Bill Buchheit, and Fred Campbell were undefeated going into the remaining matches with Navy, N. C. State, and Virginia Tech.

The members of the Duke University Soccer team, from left, first row: Parker, Ost, Donigan, Vivona (manager), Getz (manager), Wagner; second row: Tarr, Newbill, Riquezes, Ponte, Strauch (captain), Duys, Schaffer, Schaub; third row: James, Bazemore, Reiner, Van Blarcom, Derba, Newbill, Brown, Montgomery, Cunningham, Coach Bly.

Soccer Team Gains First Southern Conference Championship in Decade

DUKE'S 1953 soccer team, under the tutelage of Coach Jim Bly, brought the university its first Southern Conference Championship since 1935.

Captain Dave Strauch had the distinction of being Duke's first All American soccer player. Along with Strauch, such standouts as Joe Duys, John Ost, and Joe Riquezes helped bring Duke to a 6-1-1 season and the Southern Conference crown.

As the N. C. State goal keeper comes after the ball, W. Schaffer drives it over for another Duke score.

Coordinators of Coed Athletics

THE Duke Coed, being a relatively active person, likes athletics and usually will find time for her favorite sport.

She is fortunate in having an extensive athletic program which covers a wide range of interests—from archery to basketball. The Women's Athletic Association keeps the schedule active by organizing this extra-curricular program. It draws up schedules of events and tournaments for individuals, houses, sororities, and at the end of the year awards trophies, and plaques to the lucky winners.

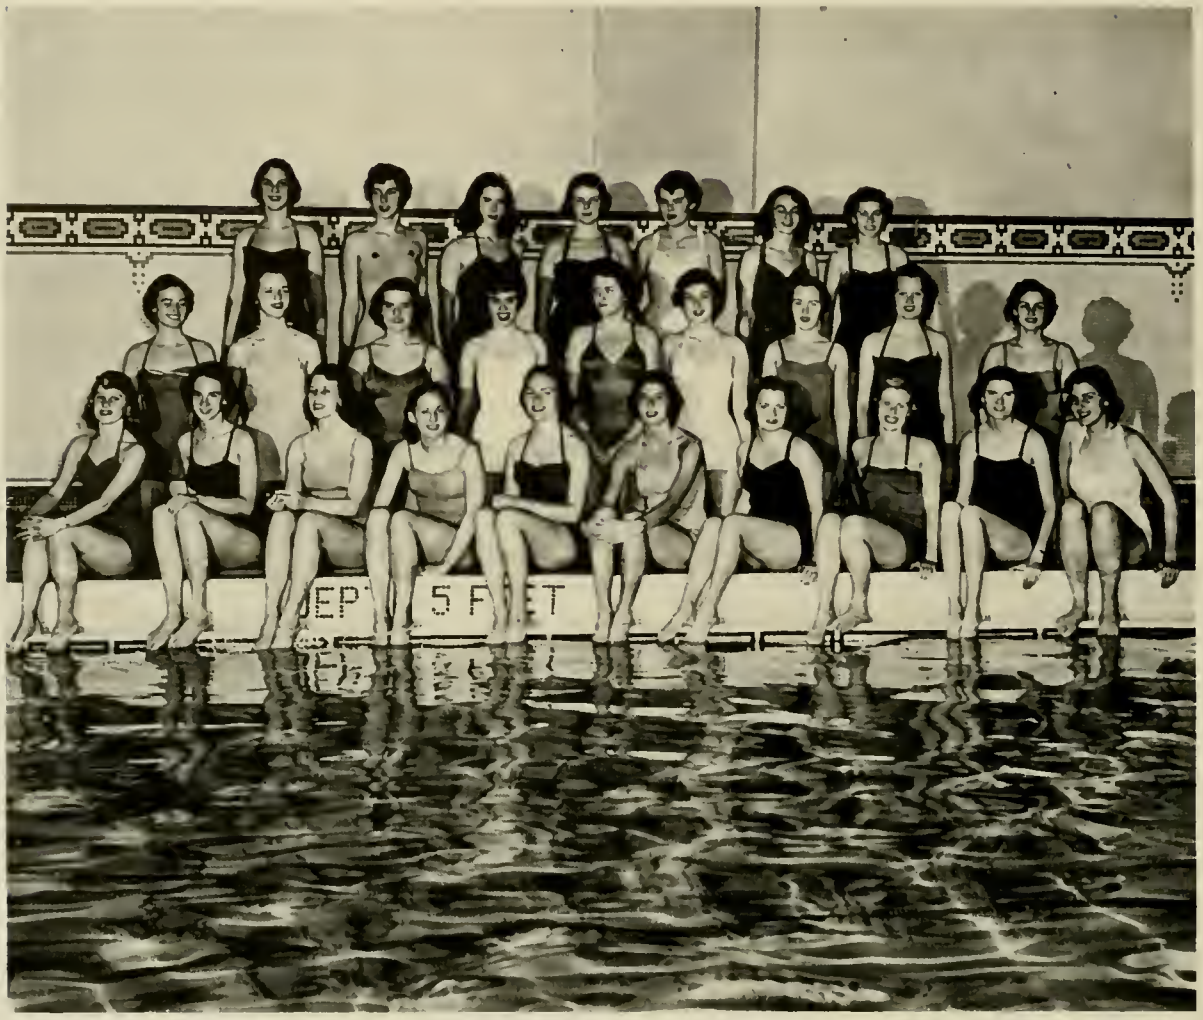
W.A.A. helps to contribute to a richer, more valuable college career by making the Duke coed's college program a more balanced one.

The goalie moves quickly to the defense as opponents, with sticks swinging, strive to push the ball over the goal line for another score.

The alleys echo with the sound of balls and dropped pins, as these coeds practice bowling.

Fencing is a course calculated to develop graceful control and agility of movement, and these girls are out to prove that the fairer and gentler sex can do as well as Errol Flynn when it comes to executing skillful thrusts and parreys during one of their classes.

A Myriad of Mermaids



Members of the Nereidian Club pose by the East Campus swimming pool, left to right, first row: S. Diuguid, J. Crumbley, V. Bush, M. Westcott, J. Burghard, J. Miller, V. Williams, L. Royce, N. Jones, A. Lerian; second row: J. Green, J. Clark, J. Duncan, M. Woolery, N. Lipscomb (president), P. Cohan (vice-president), M. Scheller, R. McLemore, C. Washburn; third row: M. Williamson, M. During their annual spring aquatic show, this member of the Nereidian Club poses briefly before her dive.

IN the early fall, interested coeds flocked to the East campus pool to display their acquatic skills and try out for the Nereidian Club. New members were easily spotted the next day wearing bathing caps as part of their initiation. Throughout the year Nereidian sponsored exchange swims with nearby schools and planned for the water pageant in the spring. Originality, color, vivid costumes, and tricky water stunts, plus uniformed synchronized swimming, perfected by much practice and patience, characterized the annual April aquacade. The theme of this year's Nereidian show was "The Greatest Show on Earth" that featured a carousel and circus acts.

Interpretation Through Dance

EXPRESSION through movement is the aim of the Modern Dance Club. Under the leadership of Miss Claire Williams, the dancers appeared before various audiences upon request and participated in such artistic activities as the Greensboro Arts Forum. Climaxing the year was a spring concert for which members created the choreography with original costumes and settings.

In preparation for their annual spring concert, the members of the Modern Dance Club practice some of their technique in the auditorium on East Campus to accustom themselves to the lighting and the restrictions of space on the stage

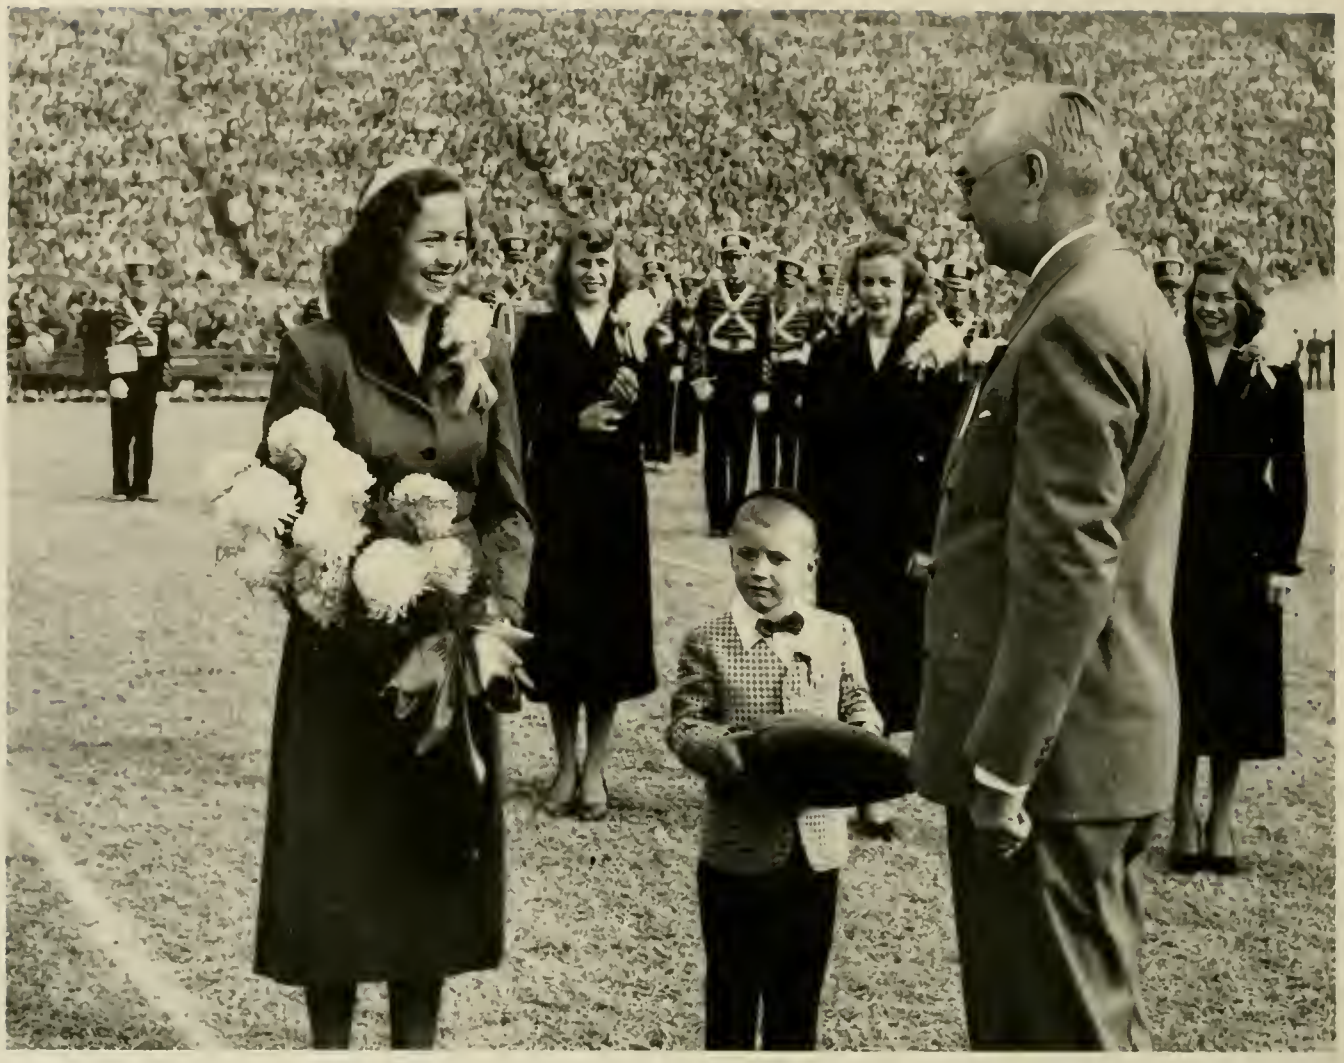
Even though it's a rather vigorous form of exercise, basketball is one of the favorite gym courses for the more athletic coeds. Apparently the girls can get pretty rough in the fight over the possession of that ball when the opposing team's score goes up.

"Swing your partner" and "Promenade" are familiar calls to these East campus coeds who are taking square dancing as a gym course.

For the Love of It All

BRIGHT sun and shirtsleeves, old men mopping their faces with handkerchiefs, coca-cola, and popsicles, are all a part of southern football as played at Duke. But the chilly nights around the bonfire for pep rallys counteract the warm days in the stadium, and by the time December comes Duke students are ready to move inside to watch the Duke team play rings around all opponents. Then as warm days come again, nearly all of the student body takes to the tennis and lacrosse fields. Baseball players warm up; calls of "Strike two" are heard over at the baseball field, and the track team tries for another season to beat previous records.

Did they make it or didn't they? At an exciting moment in the game, the Duke student section, their faces mirroring either wild enthusiasm or blank consternation, rises as one man to cheer their Blue Devils over the goal line to a touchdown and victory.



With the maids of honor in the background, Trish Moeller smiles happily as she stands holding a bouquet of giant chrysanthemums shortly after she was crowned Homecoming queen in the traditional ceremony during the halftime of the Duke-Ga. Tech game.

Return of the Native

Grads and Undergrads Vie In Celebrating Week End

AFTER a pep rally the night before, Homecoming Day brought excellent weather for the Georgia Tech game. Alumni and students alike milled about the ingenious fraternity displays, Durham merchants featured Homecoming displays in store windows, and the alumni attended the annual barbecue. Although suffering their first setback against Tech, the Blue Devils and their fans were entertained at fraternity open houses following the game. That night, the alumni attended a class reunion dinner, and the students a dance in the Old Gymnasium.

Duke alumni and friends enjoy themselves at the barbecue feast which was held in their honor as part of the homecoming festivities.

Students and visiting alumni join in a huge pep rally held the night before the Homecoming game.

This view, looking down on one of the quadrangles at night, shows the Homecoming displays of house CC and of the TEP's.

A few days before the Carolina game, Cameron gives the students a pep talk after which they went to the stadium to support the team during their practice.

The Spirit of the Devils

FLASHING skirts of blue and white, a leaping Blue Devil and rhythmic roars from the crowd of students spell pep rally, Duke style. Rallies, designed to give life and spirit to all Dukesters, are always colorful, but never more so than the night before the Duke-Carolina game, when the flaming bonfire and the curling line of the snake dance seem to promise victory for sure.

In the hot, flickering light of the flames Duke students sing and cheer for a Blue Devil victory in the Carolina-Duke game, as they form a seemingly endless line around the huge bonfire which is built the night before and carefully guarded by freshmen.

Bill Stern, the famous sports broadcaster, gives his usual exciting play by play description of the Duke-Ga. Tech game, which was covered by many national hook-ups.

At half-time, the visiting band and majorettes rate some comments from the Devil and his friend.

Students look on while workers remove the blue paint put on by some of Duke's rivals from U.N.C.

Although staunch rivals on the gridiron, the Blue Devil cheerleaders show their amiability toward the South Carolina cheerleaders before they exchange cheering sections and lead the crowds in the stands in a cheer for their own team.

Cheering crowds of enthusiastic students, paper strewn trees, and Blue Devil cheerleaders are all part of the ever popular pep rallies which are held on the main quadrangle of West Campus the night before each football game.

With mixed emotions the crowd wends its way in a steady stream from the Duke stadium to the main quadrangle and fraternity sections after Duke has just lost its first football game after winning their six straight.

Chapter Six

Honoraries

OUT of the great assembly of young men and women at Duke rise the few who, as a result of their special abilities, interests, and activities, are elected into the honorary societies of the university. Membership in one of these groups is an indication that the individual has made definite, praiseworthy accomplishments whether they be in the field of athletics, music, leadership, scholarship, language, or literature. Some of these honoraries are branches of nation-wide fraternities, a chapter of which can be awarded to a college only after it has fulfilled high requirements. Others originated locally, and were founded to fill a certain need on the campus—a need which could be met only by setting up an independent organization.

During the spring of the year, an air of suspense settles over each campus, and speculations are made as to who will be chosen for Red Friars, White Duchy, Phi Eta Sigma, Sandals, Ivy, Beta Omega Sigma, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Delta, and others. Certain characteristics of a member of one of these honoraries set him apart from everyone else. Perhaps his smile is a little more friendly, his handshake a little firmer, his manner more poised. Since his time is well organized, he manages to perform the impossible. All phases of his personality though he be in the dorm, the classroom, on the campus, at sports events, or at meetings, fit into a pleasing mosaic. There's something within him beyond the ordinary, and it is the inner "something" that pushes him forward to high goals.

Election into one of the honorary societies, which are integral parts of the university and marks of distinction, is a promise of the individual's future contribution to the life of his community after he leaves Duke University.

"Honors come to men and women as a by-product of quality—quality of being, quality of performance. A University campus is dignified by the presence of societies which recognize and honor excellence in leadership."

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

National Honorary Recognizes Important Duke Men

ONE day each spring and fall, outstanding senior men are tapped for ODK, Duke's leadership honorary fraternity. The tapping takes place on the Chapel steps where the wooden key of ODK is an impressive symbol of the induction of new members. Those who are selected for the national fraternity are men who have given their leadership and service to campus life.

PHI Kappa Delta is the leadership and scholastic fraternity which honors outstanding junior and senior women. Primarily for those who have contributed the most to overall campus life, its members nevertheless boast high academic averages. On one day each spring and fall, new members are tapped. Although the fraternity is an honorary one, its members meet regularly to hear guest speakers and to discuss and exchange views on current campus problems. A yearly project has been the sale of Duke Songbooks.

THIS year forty-three Duke University men and women were recognized by Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges, the national blue book of outstanding seniors, listing their names and achievements in the college world. The book itself is of high value as a reference, and those who have been elected to its mention likewise regard it highly as an honorary organization.

Although the students elected to the membership of Who's Who receive their mention in a purely honorary sense and have no organization or projects as such, they are given special opportunity to make contacts with prospective employers by means of a student placement service. Therefore they receive benefits other than the satisfaction of being recognized by Who's Who.

SANTA FILOMENA

Secret Society Selects Nurses With Outstanding Merit

SANTA Filomena, honorary nursing society, acknowledges achievement and promotes higher nursing standards. The members are chosen from the rising senior class. Except for the tapping ceremony, all the meetings of the organization are secret. Santa Filomena's flower is the white lily, and the members wear a small gold lamp as a symbol of the one carried by Florence Nightingale.

PI TAU SIGMA

The Perpetual Brotherhood of Mechanical Engineers

THE purpose of Pi Tau Sigma, national honorary mechanical engineering fraternity, is to recognize high achievement in the field of mechanical engineering, to foster the ideals of the engineering profession, to stimulate interest in co-ordinate department activities, and to promote the professional welfare of members. George Marsden was selected by Pi Tau Sigma as the outstanding sophomore of last year. This year the main project was to set up a filing system on all past Pi Tau Sigma graduates which will make an available contact for future job selections.

TAU BETA PI

Engineering Standards Upheld by Maturing Honorary

TAU Beta Pi, with its forerunner on the Duke campus, Delta Epsilon Sigma, has sought to mark the men who have shown engineering talent in their achievement, ability, and character. Each year the membership shows mature growth through its projects and its value to the initiate.

At Duke Tau Beta Pi is relatively young, having been organized and accepted by the Association in 1947. Nationally, Tau Beta Pi has been in existence since 1885 when it was organized at Lehigh University. Since then the Tau Beta Pi idea has developed to its present strength over ninety active chapters are functioning in engineering schools throughout the country.

BETA OMEGA SIGMA

Growing Sophomore Honorary Seeks Nationalization

BETA Omega Sigma made plans this year to carry out several new projects along with its jobs of assisting in Freshman Orientation Week, guarding the bonfire, and aiding with Homecoming week end. This year the organization recognized ten sophomores for the time and energy they had spent in school service—J. Bell, W. Huntley, P. Landau, A. Meyers, L. Harper, R. Ruda, G. Price, D. Brown, L. Barnhardt, and C. Rackley. Then it pursued the task of getting a charter for the fraternity in hopes of instituting new chapters on other campuses in North Carolina.

SANDALS

Sophomore Leadership Honorary Emphasizes Service

MEMBERS of Sandals, the sophomore women's honorary, began their year of service assisting with the Freshman orientation program. Collaborating with BOS, Sandals presented students the opportunity of an "Evening in Paris," in October, giving dance favors of Evening in Paris perfume.

Although duties of checking roll in assemblies and typing Pay-Day bills were again continued, the Sandals' particular projects this year were working with the Office of Admissions as guides for prospective duchesses or visitors to the campus and increasing the usefulness of the Ark. Plans were laid to carry the project out further next year.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Outstanding Freshman Scholars Receive Recognition

PHI Eta Sigma, sophomore men's scholastic honorary, encouraged freshman scholarship with tutoring service and a reception with Ivy for B-average freshmen. It also gave an initiation banquet and an annual banquet with Carolina and State.

SIGMA DELTA PI

Senors and Senoritas Exemplify the Spanish Customs

AN invitation to join Sigma Delta Pi, national honorary Spanish society, is extended to all students who excelled in over fifteen hours of Spanish while keeping a good over-all scholastic average. This organization promotes an active interest in the language, literature, and culture of Spanish speaking countries. Last year an official from the Pan American Union and several Spanish professors from Duke lectured at the meetings. This year's highlight was its annual Christmas fiesta celebration, held in true Spanish tradition using Spanish customs and games.

TAU PSI OMEGA

French Honorary Here Is Charter Chapter of Nation

Le Mond ou l'on S'ennui was the title of the play presented in April this year by Tau Psi Omega, French honorary society. Speakers and cabaret parties made varied and enjoyable meetings, while each Tuesday evening in East's Union the society occupied a table. During the meal only French was spoken, even in requesting the salt. This year this table became increasingly important to many members, graduate students, and professors taking part in the discussions. With Ted Conna as president, Tau Psi Omega enjoyed an active year.

ORDER OF ST. PATRICK

Engineers Who Wear the Shamrock and Kelly Green

YOU will have to ask the engineers why they look to Saint Patrick as their patron saint, but no matter how the association came about, the name has sprung up in engineering school organizations throughout the country. At Duke the shamrock and kelly green of the Order of Saint Patrick point out a man who has become recognized as a leader in student activities in the College of Engineering.

However, recognition in the Order is coupled with service. The leaders of the various organizations join in an integral group that concentrates on getting things done for the college as a whole as well as for their own group.

ZOO CLUB AND ΔΦA

Groups Expressing Interest in Zoology and German

THE program of the Zoology Club included guest speakers from other universities and reciprocal visits to the laboratories of neighboring colleges and universities. Highlights of the year were week ends at the Marine Zoological laboratory at Beaufort and the student-faculty picnic.

Delta Phi Alpha, a national German honorary, attempts to cultivate an appreciation of the German language and culture. Selecting its members from students who have maintained a "B" average in German for four semesters, this society presents students from Germany as speakers.

VARSITY "D" CLUB

The Letter "D" Denotes Superiority in Athletic Skill

THE Varsity "D" Club, composed of Duke lettermen was, as in past years, active in charity work. Its members contributed their services in directing the children's sports at Edgemont Center.

Also, the club worked for the March of Dimes, collecting dimes from the gymnasium floor, which were thrown by spectators preceding the Duke-Carolina wrestling matches. Conspicuous in their navy blue letter sweaters, the club members were instrumental in the blood drive which they sparked last year.

DELTA PHI RHO ALPHA

Women Athletes of All Around Ability Are Laureled

EACH year seven women are selected from the rising junior and senior classes for membership in Delta Phi Rho Alpha on the basis of good sportsmanship and skill in at least two sports. This society, which was founded at Duke in 1921, attempts to further campus athletic interests and to encourage coeds to take a positive and leading part in athletic activity. A gold key is awarded each year to the senior girl who has done the most to promote and advocate athletic participation. In addition, group participation is encouraged by the presentation of a gold cup to the sorority and to the house which have accumulated the largest number of points in athletic competition during the full year. Throughout the year, seasonal sports are played by the sororities and houses in friendly competition which draw the members together.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

Preparing Prospective Leaders in the Business World

THE professional business fraternity, Alpha Kappa Psi, exists for the purpose of helping business administration and economics students to prepare for the future. The aims of the fraternity are to further the welfare of its members; to foster scientific research in the field of commerce, accounts, and finance; to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher ideals therein; and to promote and advance in institutions of collegiate rank courses leading to degrees in business administration. This year a program was again followed for securing outstanding speakers and of keeping members informed concerning the latest possibilities in business and economics.

ΜΣ AND ΠΜΕ

Freuds and Einsteins Gather in Respective Societies

ALTHOUGH making a late start this year, Mu Sigma, psychology honorary, had varied programs with speakers, movies, discussions, and experiments. They also sponsored a symposium, which everyone was invited to attend, on engagement and marriage.

PI Mu Epsilon's purpose is the promotion of mathematical scholarship and aims to do this by electing its members to the honorary on the merits of their high averages in advanced mathematics. Programs with different speakers are held at various times during the year.

At their meetings, members of Mu Sigma, the psychology honorary, do various experiments, hold discussions, and even psychoanalyze each other.

Pi Mu Epsilon, the math honorary, meets several times each year to hear speakers on mathematical subjects and to solve problems just for fun.

Honors Are Inevitable Result of Diligent Work

FRANTIC figuring of averages and activities, the hushed quiet of the auditorium as a hooded figure moves through the rows of girls, red carnations in coat lapels, the scrolls presented to the students chosen to be in Who's Who; these are the outward signs of years of hard work and the recognition of them.

Names of new Phi Kappa Delta members are posted on a replica of the key.

Faculty and student members of Phi Beta Kappa, the highest national scholastic honorary, exchange ideas and apparently witticisms at the reception held at the University House in honor of those students who had been recently tapped for membership in the society.

OVER in the hospital, in a darkened room, the members of Santa Filomena, nursing honorary, light their candles and pledge to follow the creed of Florence Nightingale, while the Engineering Building witnesses the meetings of its top students, as they ply their slide rules. Throughout the campuses the BOS and Sandals, as part of their service to Duke, guide visitors who may meet a boy on his way to a business fraternity meeting where a mock session of the New York Stock Exchange is going on. Down at the gym Duke lettermen in the Varsity D club are planning a spring program for the children at Edgemont, and in the East Campus Union tables are being set up for the weekly meetings of the language fraternities.

The names of the new initiates are posted on the ODK key on West only after they have been formally tapped.

The members of Sigma Delta Pi, the national Spanish honorary, relax at their annual Christmas Fiesta party. To make things even more realistic, one aspiring senorita takes a swing at the strangely elusive pinata to the great amusement of the others.

The old members of the secret order of Red Friars stand behind the men who are to become a part of this, the highest honorary on West Campus, which each year selects the seven outstanding members from the rising senior class to carry on their traditions.

THE honoraries represent a secret goal to most of the Duke students. To win a coveted key is truly worth the long hours in the lab and the drudgery of memorizing defective verbs. But the honor of being in these fraternities is by no means their only attraction. There are interesting speakers and worthwhile projects. Most of all there is the satisfaction of working with people who are as fascinated in your own special field as you are.

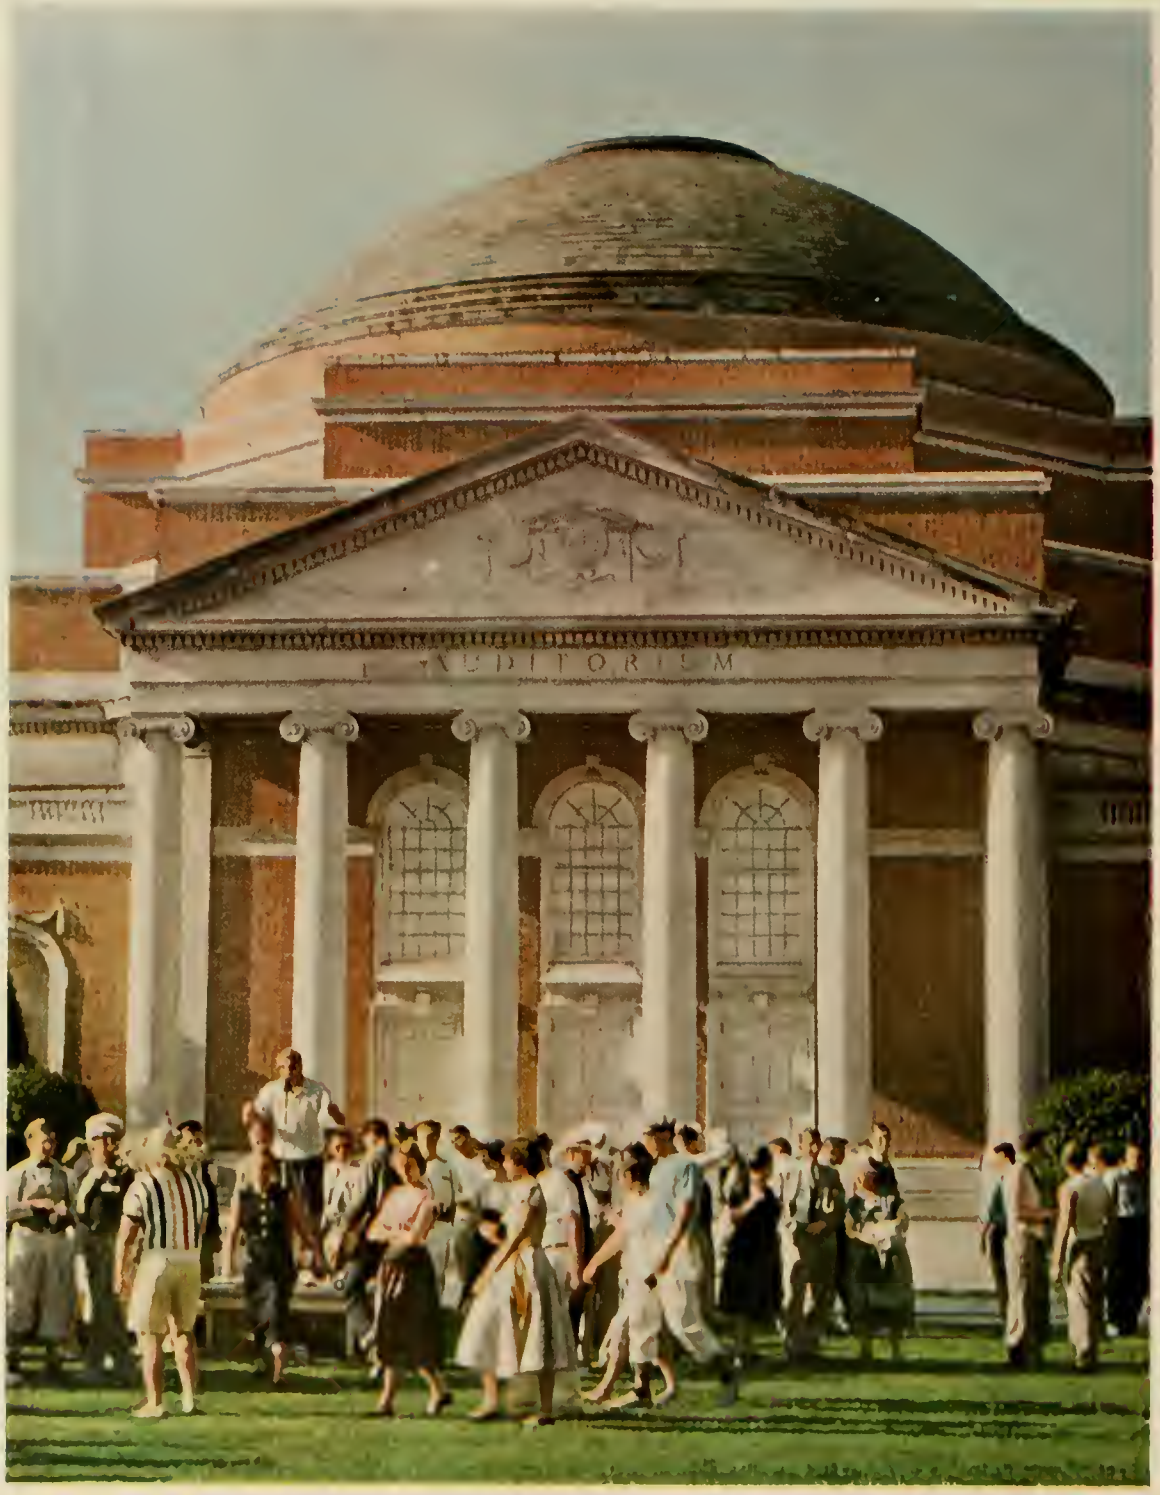
Mystery and Secret Rites Characterize Honoraries

Duke's Varsity D Club relaxes and feasts at their banquet in the Union Ball Room on West Campus.

After the tapping ceremony, two ODK members pin the names of their new initiates to the replica of their key

Chapter Seven

Features



AUDITORIUM

FOUR years of a liberal arts school mean many things. You have seen the effects of your life as a student, a member of organizations and honoraries, a fraternity or sorority member and as a participant or spectator in athletics. But there is another and important aspect of your life at Duke that can receive only superficial coverage. You have seen the attempt to depict this phase both by picture and word in the student life sections at the end of each division. By the very nature of the term student life, however, there is too much diversity for each individual to have his own activities represented. Therefore, in recalling what went to make up your lives, one picture must be able to represent to you other similar events. A picture of a fraternity dance brings to mind other dances and all the memories that went with them; a picture of someone picking up mail at the post office brings to mind those other times that you have looked hopefully for that expected letter.

This part of your life that the feature section tries to represent may not be education in the sense of books, but it is education in the sense of social living. College life is your first real attempt to live with people who are strangers to you. Living with them presents problems that are solved by actual experience. The dances, the cabin parties, the big week ends, the movies on Wednesday night all are a vital element in living your four years at Duke. The manner of achieving these activities reflects your character perhaps more than any other part of your university life. Therefore, we present this section of the yearbook with all its fun and frivolity realizing the serious import which it carries. This section depicts the highlights of the year as well as the day-by-day activities. It has tried to capture your life as an individual, as you have seen it and will see it again.

"Good Leadership May Also Be Developed Through Recreation."

—R. Florence Brinkley.

You and the Night and the Music

There is a magical attraction in the swish of formal dresses, the sound of music, and the aura of soft lights which makes a dance, whether a fraternity function or campus-wide, one of the most popular events in the social calendars of all Dukes and Duchesses.

Sweet and Lovely

THANKSGIVING Eve broke the suspense for twenty finalists in the CHANTICLEER Beauty contest. They then discovered whom Milton Caniff, renowned comic strip artist and creator of "Steve Canyon," had selected as Beauty Queen. During the intermission of "Frost Frolics," the Coed Ball presented by the Social Standards Committee, the queen was crowned by President Edens against a background of snow covered pine trees, silver dusted snowflakes, snow dunes, and silver icicles. Ed Wallace, CHANTICLEER Business Manager, presented her with a silver loving cup. Caniff picked the queen, her two maids of honor, and her court of eight girls from twenty who had been chosen by a campus-wide election which passed from East to West Campus.

Caniff Selects Queen and Court from East's Beauty

Milton Caniff, the creator of the famous comic strip character, Steve Canyon, was again selected to pass the final judgment on the 1953 CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen and her court.

MARY BRYSON

Durhamite Mary Bryson was crowned CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen after having been in the Court each of the last two years. A junior, Mary is currently vice-president of Jarvis house and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. She has been a Sandal and also the Assistant Treasurer of WSGA.

MEB BENTON

Meb Benton, one of the prettiest members of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, is a sophomore from Saco, Maine. We can see why this is the second year that she has been elected to the CHANTICLEER Beauty Court.

PATRICIA MOELLER

Patricia Anne Moeller, a junior from Charlotte, North Carolina, has been in the Beauty Court for three successive years. "Trish" was also elected Queen to reign over this year's Homecoming celebrations.

Barbara Seaberg is a senior from Tenafly, New Jersey, and a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Alice Matheson is a senior from Raeford, N. C., and a member of Delta Delta Delta.

Beverly Glass is a sophomore from New Orleans, La., and a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Carolyn Winius is a freshman from St. Louis, Mo., and a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Jeanne Trudeau is a junior from Kings Park, N. Y., and a member of Zeta Tau Alpha.

Ginny Brown, a sophomore from Albemarle, N. C., is a member of Delta Delta Delta.

Ginny Bush is a junior from Charleston, W. Virginia, and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Helen Foppert, a junior from Philadelphia, Pa., is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

The Duke Merry-Go-Round

The Devil's Den is one of the most popular spots on East Campus for a snack or dancing after the movies.

Education Includes Mor Than Classes and Book

TELEPHONES ring in the dormitories as boys from West queue up by the phone annex in the Union to make their week end plans. Ideas are tossed back and forth over the wires for it is hard to decide where to go. It may be a basketball game with Carolina, or dancing at the Saddle Club. But for entertainment, a student need go no further than his own campus. The Devils' Den on East Campus is a popular center for an evening's dancing or for a snack after the show. First run pictures, including foreign films, are presented three times weekly at the Quadrangle, located in Page Auditorium. For the athletically inclined, there are bowling alleys in the Ark on East which is also used for social events of all kinds from Square Dance Club meetings to house dances. And there is always Durham with its many theaters and exciting stores. With the variety of things to do and places to go, no matter what the decision, the evening is assured of success.

Stag or drag, the students line up in typical fashion for the night show. The Quad presents on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights the best in American and foreign films, providing good entertainment at lower cost than usual.

Peppy Clements receives the trophy for the SAE's after the boys pushed to victory in the annual Wheelbarrow Race.

Running counter-clockwise around the track makes it even tougher to gain the lead in those last few yards.

At Christmas coeds observe the hanging of the greens.

As winter approaches the social life at Duke picks up momentum. The junior varsity game with Carolina with the wheelbarrow race between the halves has become an annual affair on Thanksgiving Day. Then comes Christmas with the ceremony of Hanging the Greens on East and the coeds caroling on the Men's Campus. Fraternity parties for the children at Edgemont add to the festive atmosphere, while the pageant of the nativity slowly winds its way down the Chapel aisle.

When exams come to an end, the post office becomes the center of all activity as the post cards which carry the all-important final grades are anxiously awaited by all. But exams and their headaches soon pass and the early Carolina spring brings premature spring fever to everyone. Couples walking hand in hand appear on East Campus, while the lawns and benches on West become the meeting places for fraternity men. Those who wish to study, sunbathe, or play bridge move outdoors, while car owners take a renewed interest in their vehicles as they wash them in the fountain behind Page. Warm weather brings outdoor activities and a new interest in sports. Some boys clad in shorts head for the tennis courts while others knock a practice golf ball around the Quadrangle. And Duke Gardens begin to lose a bit of their early splendor as the Seniors walk its paths for the last time as undergraduates, for soon it will be time for graduation.

Everyone on West makes the daily journey to the P.O. to get his fan-mail, packages, and news from home.

A man's best friend, the campus cop, pauses momentarily to write a ticket for an unsuspecting car owner.

Morning, noon, night, and between classes, the boys flock to the Dope Shop for refueling and discussion.

What Is This Thing Called . . . Home?

These last minute chores before going to bed give the girls a chance to discuss the high spots of their respective evenings.

Friends Gather in Dorms For Study or Relaxation

MANY aspects of college life cannot be classified into scholastic or religious categories. Life in the dorm constitutes a major part of a student's life, since so much of his time is spent in a dormitory by necessity or choice. No matter how many classes, meetings, or activities he has to keep him busy during the day and evening, he usually returns to the dorm at some time during the day for some reason or other.

East coeds gather for an evening of bridge and to catch up on all the latest gossip.

Three of West's males pursue their studies while a protruding foot reveals a more enjoyable aspect of dorm life.

While the late movie or Saddle Club goers come dashing up the walk, the lights blink on and off as a final warning, and inside the desk girl tries frantically to close the house and persuade last minute couples to leave.

"If those girls weren't so fussy . . ." the men grumble as they whisk through that last minute shave before a date.

Each night the chow man is surrounded by the hungry crowds as he brings sandwiches, fruit, and cookies.

Some students stay in the dorm most of the time, studying, playing bridge, or sleeping; so to some, the section or dorm is extremely important. To others it is merely a bed or a place to store books. On East, the dormitories provide the center for a coed's social life with their many parlors where dates are entertained, meetings are held, and studying is accomplished. Since at Duke there are no sorority or fraternity houses, the dormitories are an extremely vital element.

One of the main highlights of Joe College Week End was the parade on Saturday afternoon. All the sororities and fraternities threw themselves into the competition for the prizes, hiding their masterpieces in warehouses until the judgement on East. Pictured above is Pi Kappa Alpha's float which was awarded first prize for originality. The ATO's float (color plate) was the most beautiful.

KIDS FOR A DAY

"IN the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love—and Joe College week end." Days before April 17, East Campus coeds could be seen hammering away at the outside dorm decorations, which included everything from a musical carousel to Mighty Joe Young. To dream up an original float idea was the aim of every sorority and fraternity. These floats formed the parade which ended at East Campus for milk-drinking contests and wheelbarrow races.

Dressed in the latest fashion, Duke men make it "bottoms up" in a quick milk toast to Joe College.

The students spread out on the west quad to enjoy a picnic lunch and listen to more Elliot Lawrence music.

Elliot Lawrence accompanies his famous band at the informal dance on Friday night of Joe College Week End.

Elliot Lawrence's orchestra provided a dreamy atmosphere for the dances Friday and Saturday nights and a bouncy musical background for picnic lunchers on the West Campus lawn Saturday afternoon. Hoof 'n' Horn made its contribution to the celebration by presenting both nights "Anything Goes." Costumed Joe Colleges and Betty Coeds went all out to make the annual week end a "better than ever" feature of Duke college life.

Whoops! One down and three to go, as the remaining contenders wheel their partners forward to reach the finish line of one of the crazy races held on East's quad.

All's Well That Ends Well

FOR you, the senior, this last paragraph is written. For some the end of a school year only means a brief summer vacation and then back to Duke in the fall; but for you it is the culmination of four years of college life. Each one of you now goes his separate way, or to the services. You leave feeling a little wiser, but vastly humbler because of your realization of the infinitude of learning. Your four years have been mixed with triumphs and failures, joy and sadness. Whatever college has meant, you cannot blot out the memory and influence of your sojourn here.

CAROLINA THEATRE

Durham's Largest and Best Theatre

The FIDELITY BANK'S Central Office is conveniently located at Main and Corcoran streets, in downtown Durham. Other offices serve busy neighborhood communities at Driver and Angier, Ninth and Perry, Vickers and Jackson, and Roxboro Road and Maynard Avenue. The FIDELITY is Durham's oldest bank, and has served Duke University and its students for many years. You are always welcome at The FIDELITY.

"Jahn & Ollier Again"

A familiar and reassuring slogan

FAMILIAR... because it has appeared in thousands of the country's finest yearbooks for the past half century.

REASSURING... because those years of specialized experience bring complete service, outstanding quality and dependable delivery to the yearbook staffs with whom we work.
